GOOD MORNING!

Honduras Storm Havoc 'Beyond Belief'

Confirmed Death Toll From Hurricane Fifi Reaches Nearly 4,000

From News Wires

Tegucigalpa, Honduras — Rescue workers parachuted into the ravaged town of Choloma on Saturday and reported 2,760 bodies have been found there, bringing the confirmed death toll from Hurricane Fifi to nearly 4,000 nationwide, the government said.

The Honduras National Emergency Committee said earlier it believes between 7,000 and 8,000 people died in the storm which raked the Honduran coast with 110 m.p.h. winds on Thursday.

Access to the hardest-hit areas has been difficult as most of the low-lying coastal region remains under water. As more and more bodies were being discovered, rescue teams resorted to burning the corpses to avoid outbreaks of typhoid, a committee spokesman said.

"It's beyond belief. There are bodies everywhere," another officials said. He estimated at least 150,000 persons were left homeless by the storm.

The scene in San Pedro Sula, Honduras' second largest city and industrial center, 150 miles northwest of the capital city of Tegucigalpa, was utter chaos as refugees poured in from surrounding disaster areas. There was no public transportation and merchants were charging whatever the market would stand for goods and services, when available.

Rescuers reported when they reached the town of Cruz Laguna, which had a population of 1,500, every house had been washed away by floods and not a single person could be found.

The emergency committee said another 1,000 bodies were found in the coastal town of Ceiba, which had been cut off for three days.

Lt. Ignacio Acosta, of the emergency committee said at least 75% of the houses and 90% of the roads in the hard-hit northwest region were under flood waters.

Acosta said banana plantations were "100% destroyed" in the states of Atlatida, Yoro, Colon, and Cortes, where a U.S. company of United Brands and Standard Fruit have major holdings.

Sanchez Report

U.S. Ambassador Phillip Sanchez flew over the stricken area for six hours Saturday and reported all large agricultural valleys under water and "crops 90 to 100% ruined." He said he saw bodies floating in flood waters and survivors clinging to trees and homes surrounded by water.

"I don't doubt that the death toll estimated by the government — originally thought to be excessively high — will now go even higher than estimated," Sanchez said.

"As water recedes and rescue brigades are able to get to the most hard-hit areas, we would not be surprised if the figure increases," said Col. Eduardo Andino, emergency committee coordinator. "This is a great tragedy."

The major fear voiced by authorities was the threat of outbreaks of disease, such as cholera, from polluted waters, lack of food and shortage of warm, dry clothes.

If the figures are confirmed, Fifi would rank as the third or fourth most devastating hurricane in modern history. A cyclone in 1969 killed 300,000 persons in East Pakistan, a hurricane in the West Indies killed 22,000 persons in 1780 and Hurricane Flora killed 7,800 persons in Haiti in 1963.

Medical supplies, food and clothing were enroute from the United States, Panama, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Canada, Venezuela and other countries.

Mass Graves

Andino said rescue workers pulled bodies from floodwaters in Choloma and threw them into mass graves, while medics purified water and distributed medicine to try to prevent outbreaks of typhoid and other diseases. Choloma is roughly 120 miles northeast of Tegucigalpa.

Andino said 10 to 12 foot tides apparently pushed floodwaters back to Choloma where they weakened a dam.

"When the dam burst it cast earth, water and rocks on the town," Andino said. "We think that the people were sleeping when the town was flooded. When we flew over it, we saw houses on top of other houses. It must have been a wall of earth and water that fell upon them."

Andino estimated that 100,000 people were stranded by floodwaters, many without food or water.

Some of the stranded are "in nearby hills, some on the roofs of their homes, and still others in trees . . . But there are many roofless houses, and people have been balancing on the tops of walls for three days." Andino said.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said, however, reports from pilots of reconnaissance flights by two U.S. Army U21 Beechcraft planes over the area indicated "that the death toll probably will be in the hundreds rather than the thousands."

Embassy officials said they had heard nothing from 70 Peace Corps volunteers who were working in the northeast of Honduras, the richest agricultural region in the country. It took Fifi's heaviest blows and the Honduras Embassy in Washington, D.C., said Saturday all communications to the area were out.

While relief planes and ships headed for Honduras, the hurricane blew into southern Mexico with lessening winds that demoted it to a tropical storm. It brought heavy rain and flooding to seven Mexican states.

Honduran Hurricane Victims Need Help

Miami (AP) — "We need help so desperately. Please. We need everything," said Anthonio Valladares, Honduran consul-general to Miami. "Food, medical supplies, everything."

Valladares had just talked by telephone to officials of his government in Tegucigalpa, capital of the Central American country where hurricane Fifi may have killed as many as 8,000 people.

"This is the most terrible thing that has ever happened to my country," he said Saturday.

Valladares has been keeping his downtown office open 24 hours a day. There are about 3,000 Hondurans in Miami and many are anxious for news about relatives living on the country's northwest coast, where the storm hit hardest.

Tan, the Honduran national airlines, has taken over the responsibility of flying donated relief supplies to the country. As of Saturday, the donations were just beginning to trickle in.

"As soon as we have enough supplies, we're going to speed them down," said Capt. Oscar Castro, operations manager for Tan at Miami International Airport.

Economic Spotlight Swings to Center Ring

Washington (AP) — The economic spotlight swings to the center ring this week with the country's leading experts, advocates and policymakers groping for ways to keep a 12% inflation rate from turning into deep recession or worse.

There will be some 1,000 people in the hall when the much ballyhooed Economic Summit Conference convenes Friday in a Washington hotel, climaxing a dozen specialized pre-summit meetings which have been running since Sept. 5.

But there is little indication that this diverse and ideologically divided brain trust will be able to agree on much — or that the White House would buy it if they did.

There also are signs that despite the massive gatherings of advice, the Ford administration already is moving toward drawing its own plans along the lines of the President's long-held personal economic philosophy.

Meanwhile, President Ford and his war on inflation have come under criticism for moves such as encouraging states to approve utility rate hikes, which would in turn accelerate inflation.

Alan Greenspan, Ford's chief economic adviser, angered many last week when he told spokesmen for the poor and minorities that stockbrokers were the group hardest hit, proportionately, by inflation.

And there were rumblings that the pre-summit meetings themselves were only making things worse, by demonstrating the lack of progress and direction while emphasizing the problem.

The stock market hit a 12-year low when the Dow Jones industrial average reached 627.19 points on Sept. 13. Some market analysts blamed the pre-summits for scaring investors.

Prices Soar 1.3% in August

Last Friday, while a mini-summit was discussing problems of the poor, the government reported consumer prices had soared 1.3% in August following sharp increases in the cost of meat, clothing, mortgage interest and medical services.

It was the biggest inflationary surge in 12 years and lifted consumer prices 11.2% above a year ago. At the same time, real spendable earnings hit the lowest level since December 1970.

President Ford moved to reassure the public last week when he said in his conference that the economy is not headed for a depression.

"We do have the problems of inflation," Ford said. "We do have related problems, and we're going to come up with some answers that I hope will solve these problems."

The answers are supposed to start materializing at the summit, which was initially suggested by Democratic Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and seized upon by Ford in his inaugural speech.

The summit will be held Friday and Saturday in a spacious convention room at the Washington Hilton. There will be 700 to 800 active participants, not counting aides and observers but including government officials, academics, economists, labor leaders, bankers, businessmen and spokesmen for the poor.

All the participants from the pre-summit meetings have been invited. But to avoid pandemonium, various specialties and interests will be represented by designated spokesmen in the presentations.

Paul McCracken, the University of Michigan professor who was first chief of ex-president Richard Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, has been designated to pull together the various suggestions into a report to Fod.

But indications that this may be more an exercise in showmanship than presidential counseling came in the past week when Treasury Secretary William Simon said Ford will announce his complete economic policy shortly after the meetings are concluded.

Simon also predicted a course which is vintage Ford — "a basic shift away from an economy which promotes consumption to one which encourages savings and invetment."

Two more pre-summit sessions are scheduled for Monday — one in New York featuring economists and a second in Washington including leaders from state and local government.

Ten earlier meetings have covered

Exiles From Four Nations Hear of 'Inconsistencies'

Amnesty Plan to Become More Lenient?

Toronto (UPI) — About 50 U.S. exiles from four nations were told Saturday that public pressure could make President Ford's conditional amnesty plan for deserters and draft dodgers "more lenient."

Jack Colhoun, 29, a deserter from Madison, Wis., said Ford's plan was riddled with "glaring inconsistencies. The plan was so poorly constructed that there is surely going to be more pressure put on to make it more lenient. There is still a need for universal and unconditional amnesty."

Colhoun said the plan contained a loophole which allows deserters to take an undesirable discharge and escape the alternative public service requirement of the President's proposal.

"This was a real curveball for us," Colhoun said. "We had always thought that any amnesty plan would tend to be harder on deserters than on draft dodgers."

The two-day conference being held at the International Student Center on the campus of the University of Toronto will consider several resolutions calling for a boycott of the Ford plan and in favor of unconditional amnesty.

The meeting was billed as the "Second International Conference of War Resisters and Exiles." The first was held in Paris last year.

Representatives of exile groups in Sweden, France and England attending the meeting voiced support for the Canadian call for unconditional amnesty and the boycott.

Attendance at the conference increased by late afternoon to almost 100. Toronto lawyer Paul Copeland addressed the delegates on the legal aspects of Ford's program and what possible reactions the Canadian government could have to people who return after doing alternative service in the U.S. Copeland said he had written to the Canadian government for clarification on its attitude.

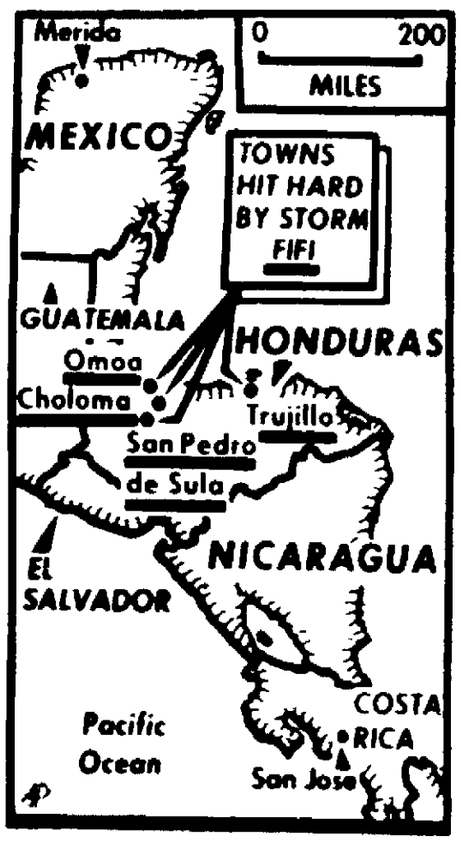

The three — David Kinnamon, 29, a deserter from Indianapolis, who lives in Sweden; David Swartz, 29, a deserter from Cromwell, Ind., who lives in France, and Fritz Efaw, 27, a draft dodger from Oklahoma City, Okla., who lives in England — said they represented war resisters living in Europe.

In Washington Saturday, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said deserters and draft dodgers would not be sought out and arrested on the basis of inquiries they may make into the amnesty plan.

As of Friday, the Defense Dept. said it had received two letters and 569 telephone calls from persons checking on details of the program.

The plan calls for deserters and draft dodgers living in exile to "earn re-entry" into the United States by repledging allegiance to the country and agreeing to work up to 24 months in a low-paying public service job.

There are an estimated 28,000 men affected by the amnesty plan, all Vietnam-era draft dodgers and deserters. Most are living in Canada.

Stealing Ladies' Purses Is Their Bag

Rome (AP) — In the good old days they pinched bottoms. Now it's handbags.

The most dangerous digits in Italy today do not belong to the lone wolf whistling down the Corso, but to a motorized petty thief more interested in a lady's purse than her person.

His opening tune is not a "Hey, bella, vieni con me?" — "What about it, baby?" in loose translation — but a deafening roar as he accelerates his motorscooter up to his chosen victim and yanks her purse away.

Scippatore, or bag-snatcher, attacks are reported once every 57 minutes, according to the latest figures released by Italy's Central Statistics Institute.

Crucifix Chains

Police in Milan say their scippi problem reaches right down to adolescents, with young boys on bikes snatching little girls' wristwatches and crucifix chains.

Typical of the growing anxiety over motorcycle delinquency was a protest letter to the afternoon paper Paese Sera, signed by residents of the Rome suburb of Pineta Sacchetti.

"We are subjected to frequent attacks by youths on motorcycles who race around from morning to night sowing panic among our poor womenfolk," the letter said. "Isn't it time that the police were given a freer hand in dealing with them?"

Paese Sera, a Communist paper, replied that the police were too busy keeping tabs on workers demonstrating for their "just rights" to pay much attention to scippatori.

Too Speedy

Police, however, say bag-snatchers move too quickly to be caught or identified.

In the absence of tough police action, the Naples Tourist Board this year issued leaflets in four languages warning visitors against the growing threat posed by bag-snatchers.

The unpopular warning reminded older Neapolitans of a similar "affront" in 1943, when allied troops marked the city's approach roads with posters reading: "Naples, city of thieves."

The French embassy in Rome reported more than 130 complaints by scippi victims in the past four months. Officials at the British Embassy said they meet a dozen scippi sufferers each week.

$1,200 Taken

Italians have devised various ways to protect their purses. Youths keep banknotes in small pouches slung around their necks. Older men carry leather purses strapped to their wrists. Smart ladies in Gucci shoes hide crocodile bags in plastic grocery carriers.

But even Italians get snatched.

Ariana Colombo, a young boutique owner, was carrying the week's takings — $1,200 — to a bank 20 yards from her shop when a scippatore struck.

"I was in bed with a raging fever for two days afterwards," she recounted. "And then I went out combing the streets looking for that character. If I ever see him, I'll murder him."

Braniff Pilots Agree To Call Off Strike

Dallas (UPI) — Pilots flying for Braniff International Saturday agreed to call off their day-old strike which had shut the airline's service down in 46 domestic and 12 Latin American countries.

In a joint announcement agreed to by the pilots and the airline during a session with the National Mediation Service in Washington, the two parties said full service would resume Monday.

According to the resolution, the remaining issues in the contract talks will be turned over to a fact-finding board jointly agreed to by the airline, the ALPH and the National Mediation Board.

LBJ Living Memorial Start Set

Ground will be broken Friday for the first living memorial to a former U.S. President, the Lyndon B. Johnson Memorial Grove on the Potomac River, the National Park Service said Saturday.

The 15-acre site — with a 45-ton chunk of pink Texas granite as its centerpiece — is within the Lady Bird Johnson Park, named in honor of the former first lady who stressed beautification in Washington and throughout the nation.

A private fund of $1 million already has been raised to prepare the grove, which will be maintained by the National Park Service at a cost of about $50,000 annually, and more money is being sought.

Alcohol Abuse Projects Included in Education Bill

President Ford signed on Saturday a bill that will provide funds for education about alcohol as well as drug abuse in schools and communities. The bill provides for an appropriation of $90 million for the next three years, fiscal 1975 through 1977, for a program of grants and contracts to provide school and community alcohol and drug abuse education projects, with 60% of the money to be spent on programs in elementary and secondary schools. Up to now, drug abuse education courses, but not alcohol abuse projects, were authorized.

Chou Walking

Premier Chou En-lai, a driving force in improved U.S.-China relations, is able to walk about unattended in the Peking hospital where he has been confined for most of the past three months, the Philippine News Agency reported Saturday. The 76-year-old Chou, who reportedly is suffering from a heart ailment, was described by Philippine First Lady Imelda Marcos as "fabulously well" when she met with him for an hour shortly after her arrival in Peking Friday.

Cyclist, 10, Jumps

Len Couture, 10, ignored a legal roadblock Saturday and sailed his motorcycle over four cars at the Kansas State Fair. "I feel great. It's just like playing baseball," the young Plainville, Kan., daredevil said later. On Friday a judge denied a request from Len's parents that he overturn a ruling from the fair board banning the performance during Saturday's motorcycle races. The fair board reaffirmed its opposition after the ruling by voting 9-2 against the stunt. However, the board also voted not to seek a court order to block the performance.

Slipped His Mind

Steven Ford, 18-year-old son of the President, forgot to register with his Selective Service draft board on time. "It just slipped Steven's mind," said deputy press secretary John Hushen. Young Ford's draft board, while noting that it was a "technical violation" of the law, decided it was typical of many other young men who miss their deadline and that there would be "no action taken" against the President's son, Hushen added.

British Poll: Liberals Gain

Britain's third-ranking Liberal party showed strong gains Saturday in a public opinion poll published as the British general election campaign went into its first weekend. But the poll showed the incumbent Labor party still ahead. The Opinion Research Center tally, published in the London Times, gave the liberals 23% of the vote, 6% more than a month ago.

Greek, Turkish Cypriots Complete POW Exchange

Greek and Turkish cypriots exchanged their remaining sick and wounded prisoners Saturday. Mariner Shots of Mercury 'Exciting'

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — America's Mariner 10 space probe streaked by the planet Mercury Saturday for the second time this year sending back some 500 "exciting" pictures showing the sun's closest neighbor is pockmarked with craters.

"We are seeing some very exciting things in the pictures that we've never seen before," said project scientists viewing the photos as they emerged on visual screens one every 42 seconds.

"At first glance the planet looks like it has a thin upper crust and a very dense center, more like the structure of the Earth than the moon," said a project spokesman.

Mariner 10 made its closest pass of Mercury at 3:50 p.m. CDT at an altitude of 29,814 miles.

A project spokesman said it would take several days for the pictures to be fully evaluated after going through a computer enhancing system.

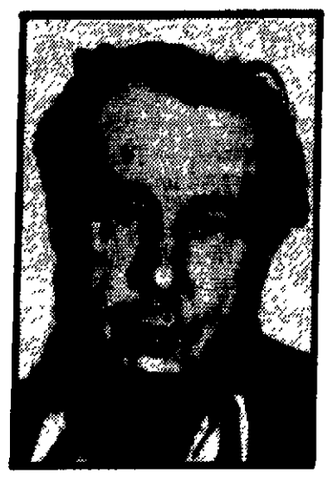

"There seems to be little doubt, as many now realize, that what is going on in the USSR is not simply something happening in one country, but a foreboding of the future of man, and therefore deserving the fullest attention of Western observers.

"No, it is not any difficulties of perception that the West is suffering, but a desire not to know, an emotional preference for the pleasant over the unpleasant. Such an attitude is governed by the spirit of Munich...

Join Young Americans for Freedom today

The Sharon Statement

"Adopted in Conference at Sharon, Connecticut, September 9-11, 1960"

IN THIS TIME of moral and political crisis, it is the responsibility of the youth of America to affirm certain eternal truths.

WE, as young conservatives, believe

THAT foremost among the transcendent values is the individual's use of his God-given free will, whence derives his right to be free from the restrictions of arbitrary force.

THAT liberty is indivisible, and that political freedom cannot long exist without economic freedom;

THAT the purposes of government are to protect these freedoms through the preservation of internal order, the provision of national defense, and the administration of justice;

THAT when government ventures beyond these rightful functions, it accumulates power which tends to diminish order and liberty.

THAT the Constitution of the United States is the best arrangement yet devised for empowering government to fulfill its proper role, while restraining it from the concentration and abuse of power.

THAT the genius of the Constitution—the division of powers—is summed up in the clause which reserves primacy to the several states, or to the people in those spheres not specifically delegated to the Federal Government

THAT the market economy, allocating resources by the free play of supply and demand, is the single economic system compatible with the requirements of personal freedom and constitutional government, and that it is at the same time the most productive supplier of human needs,

THAT when government interferes with the work of the market economy, it tends to reduce the moral and physical strength of the nation, that when it takes from one man to bestow on another, it diminishes the incentive of the first, the integrity of the second, and the moral autonomy of both,

THAT we will be free only so long as the national sovereignty of the United States is secure; that history shows periods of freedom are rare, and can exist only when free citizens concertedly defend their rights against all enemies,

THAT the forces of international Communism are, at present the greatest single threat to these liberties,

THAT the United States should stress victory over, rather than coexistence with, this menace, and

THAT American foreign policy must be judged by this criterion: does it serve the just interests of the United States?

Sexual Taboos, Clothes Shucked

Los Angeles (UPI) — Public nudity and group sex are enjoying tremendously growing popularity in Southern California and proponents of the movement predict a nationwide increase in both.

From nude beaches to country clubs dedicated to group copulation, Californians in increasing numbers are setting aside traditional taboos about sex and exposing their bodies.

Is the phenomenon massive exhibitionism and voyeurism? Or, is this the dawn of a new sexual morality?

The answer is probably a combination.

Nude Wrestlers

Set aside the fleshpots of Hollywood's massage parlors, porno theaters and one establishment offering men an opportunity to wrestle nude girls. They cater to the licentious.

Aside from these is the new sexual freedom, and there are degrees of personal involvement in it.

Nude beaches are comparatively tame. Nudist ranches and clubs provide greater numbers of naked bodies in a social setting. Then there are nude encounter groups and nude marathons which include touching among the sexes and sometimes sexual play.

Rustic Canyon

Some encounter groups and marathons are organized solely for the purpose of sexual exercises, but reputable psychiatrists and psychologists say they are few in number.

The two best-known large nude life-style retreats are Elysium Field and Sandstone, both in rustic Topanga Canyon, less than a half-hour's drive from Hollywood.

Sandstone is virtually a sex-experience club. It has 500 members who pay $240 a year for "an alternate life style." Members are free to roam the $500,000 estate ranch house and guest cottages, swim in the pool, wear clothes or go nude, play chess, sit around and chat or engage in sexual intercourse with any willing partner.

Pleasure, Sexuality

There are special seminars at Sandstone for which members pay as much as $40 or a little as $25 for "people who are interested in releasing blocks to excitement, growth, pleasure and sexuality."

Elysium Field is less sexually oriented. According to Ed Lang, who runs the nonprofit Elysium Institute, it is intended to "provide practical and experiential opportunities for development of human potential."

The basis for that experience is going nude, shucking one's inhibitions along with one's clothes. But Elysium members need not disrobe, nor need they bring partners.

Men Pay More

Annual membership in Elysium costs $50 for women, $100 for men. Seminars cost from $10-$50 per session. The subjects range from "On Becoming a Sexual Being" to "The Tactile Celebration." There is no open sexual intercourse among participants.

There are overnight sleeping accommodations at Sandstone and Elysium Field.

One serious exponent of the movement is Dr. Ralph Yaney, 46, a respected psychoanalyst with offices in Beverly Hills.

Yaney was a member of Sandstone for three years, one of its guiding lights. An exponent of nudity and an active voice for changes in sexual standards, Yaney said:

"I see in nudity an expression of evolutionary processes. It's a new freedom, getting back to the beginnings and bringing us all closer to the God source."

Walter Brennan

Actor Walter Brennan, 80, Dies

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Veteran actor Walter Brennan, who won three Academy Awards, died Saturday night after a long battle with emphysema. He was 80.

Brennan, who appeared in hundreds of films dating back to 1923, died at 4:45 p.m. at St. John's Hospital here, a hospital spokesman said. Brennan had been under treatment since July 25 for respirator problems.

Even though he won three Oscars, the tall, lanky actor gained fame in recent years as the crusty but warm-hearted Grandpa Amos McCoy on the television show "The Real McCoys."

Brennan had been in and out of the hospital here a number of times. He maintained a ranch in nearby Moorpark, 35 miles north of Los Angeles.

Brennan's wife of 54 years, Ruth, and three children were with him when he died.

Brennan appeared in hundreds of films dating back to 1923 and won three Oscars, the first performer to do so. But it was his role as Grandpa McCoy in the television series which lasted from 1957 to 1962 that brought him the most fame.

In the most remote places of America people would look at him, startled, and say, "Why, you're Amos McCoy!"

Although he played many hillbillies and crackers, Brennan in real life was an urbane gentleman of wealth and wide interests. He was a Yankee New Englander with a technical engineering degree from Rindge Tech in Cambridge, Mass. He dressed conservatively and spoke with an accent as broad as any at Harvard University.

But for the screen he submerged his own personality into whatever role he played. He specialized in portraying wizened old codgers down on their luck. He knew scores of old-man-type walks and a hundred dialectic drawls.

The late Gary Cooper once said of him, "He'll come into the studio sprightly as ever and disappear into his dressing room. When he comes out for a scene he'll be shuffling and croaking like an old man."

Brennan won his three Oscars for "Come and Get It" in 1936, playing a lumberjack who aged from 25 to 75; "Kentucky" in 1938, portraying an 84-year-old scout, and "Westerner" in 1940, in which he was Judge Roy Bean. He was nominated for a fourth Oscar for his role as the elderly preacher in "Sergeant York" in 1941.

After the "McCoys" he starred in three short-lived television series of the 1960s — "The Tycoon," "The Guns of Will Sonnett" and "To Rome With Love."

The "McCoys" always held a soft spot in his heart: "I used to watch old Grandpa McCoy and laugh and cry at myself." But he quickly added, "Of course I'm nothing like the man."

He also made such films as "How the West Was Won," "Those Calloways," "Who's Minding the Mint" and "Support Your Local Sheriff."

By keeping busy, he made more money than many stars. And invested it wisely, mostly in land.

He was also a supporter of conservative political causes.

He was semiretired in recent years, living on his 11-acre Moorpark spread with his wife.

Maj. Gen. Murray Tells of Bloodbath

U.S. Treatment Of Vietnam 'Sadistic'

By Larry Green

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — Despite high American hopes, detente with China and Russia has failed to stem the flow of Communist arms into South Vietnam. The result is a "bloodbath" in South Vietnam with the war continuing at a pace more fierce than ever.

Maj. Gen. John Murray, who just retired after serving as the top American military man in the crucial first 16 months of the Vietnam "ceasefire," said in an exclusive interview that he sees "no evidence" that Hanoi's two suppliers of arms have "cut down (delivering) supplies."

At the time of the Vietnam ceasefire, which allowed the United States to finally withdraw its remaining troops from the long conflict, the Nixon administration said it had assurances that because of the new American relationship with the two Communist super powers, Hanoi's arms pipeline would be constricted.

Murray, who served as U.S. defense attache until his retirement from the Army last month, was interviewed in Chicago. He is becoming a vice president for the American Association of Railroads.

The general also said that at current American aid levels, South Vietnam will be hard pressed to hold its own within one year.

"What we are doing now (to South Vietnam) is sadistic," he said: American aid is going down and Vietnamese casualties are going up.

Since the first of the year South Vietnam has had an average of 500 men killed a week. Transposed into a country the size of the United States, that is 250,000 dead a year and that figure does not take into account civilian and Communist deaths.

If Congress is reflecting the mood of the nation, he said, then it should eliminate aid entirely. Right now, he added, "We're faking it. We're refusing to recognize reality over there. We've got our heads in the sand."

At present military aid levels, amounting to $700 million in the current fiscal year, Murray said South Vietnam, after a year's time, "will be in serious trouble."

The chances for the South Vietnamese government, now almost exclusively backed by American economic and military aid, are not good, Murray said.

Saigon is currently vulnerable to attack and long-range artillery guns, capable of firing up to 20 miles are within 30 miles of the capital's outskirts, he disclosed.

Communist troops, he said, move with impunity around the country and now have a sophisticated logistics and replacement system allowing them to jump into battle immediately and to remain in combat positions.

This is a radical change over their operations during the 10 years of American involvement there, when it would take up to six weeks to prepare for battle and even longer replace dead and wounded troops.

So serious is the situation that the South Vietnamese army is now fighting without any reserve forces to throw into important battles, he said.

Fighting is flaring near the country's two major cities, with division-size battles continuing only 30 miles north of Saigon and southwest of Danang.

If the Communists ultimately win, he predicted, there will be "one hell of a bloodbath" throughout the country.

An advocate of increased military aid to the country, Murray does not see the need to reintroduce any American military personnel.

He said the country's army, given the assistance it needs, can hold the Communists off.

Murray believes it is in the best economic interests of the United States to do this. He said there is "enormous economic" potential there.

The general also said it is in the United States' moral interests to continue supporting South Vietnam so the world will know that America will live up to its promises and responsibilities.

48-Legged Bicycle Hinged in Middle

Danville, Ill. (AP) — What is bright yellow, has 48 legs, weights three tons and is 42 feet long?

"Some people have started calling it 'Superbike.' I guess that's as good a name for it as anything," said Tom Sheahan, who dreamed up the bicycle built for 24 and saw the project through.

"We feel we have the longest rideable bike in the world," said Sheahan. "We heard that a 50-foot-long bike for 31 was built in Austrlia but that it couldn't be ridden."

Sheahan and fellow members of the Eastern Illinois Shrine Club built the bike to raise money for a crippled children's hospital. It was constructed for $5,000 out of bicycle and motorcycle parts. It rolls on three motorcycle wheels and is hinged in the middle — for rounding corners.

Since the bicycle was completed in May, the Shriners have hauled it on a boat trailer from town to town, appearing in parades and festivals for a small fee.

"We have a lot of fun with it, but it took us quite a while to get the hang of riding the thing," Sheahan said.

"The hardest part of it is getting going. When we start we have every other man put his feet on the ground. The others put their feet on the pedals. Then we start shuffling along and when we get up a little momentum the driver yells 'pedal' and we all lift our feet and start pedaling like crazy . . ."

Two Unprecedented Elements

Battered of pocketbook and beseiged by torrents of conflicting opinion, the work-a-day American hopes somebody will have some answers — workable answers — to ease the pressures of inflation.

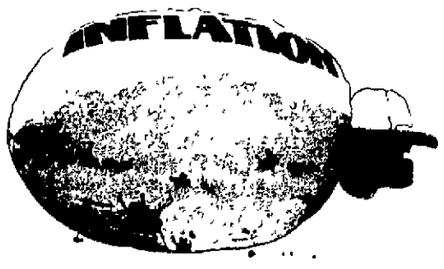

The customary answers don't seem to be working. Reduce demand, citizens are told, thereby increasing supply and causing prices to moderate. On a national basis, demand has been moderated. There has been no real growth in the country's industrial output.

But prices continue to advance. Wholesale prices which rose 3.7% in July were up another 3.9% in August. Using only the August figure, the rise translates into an altogether devasting annual rate of 46.8%. The consumer price index jump of 1.3% in August was the largest monthly increase since 1947, except for time when price freezes had just been removed. The September CPI may be worse.

So the government economists who looked for the double-digit inflation of 1973 to drop to a single-digit character in 1974 have been proven wrong.

There are two elements of our economic crisis which are, really, entirely new. And they are beyond the ability of the responsible authorities to wholly master and bend.

One is the unprecedented jump in the price of energy. The industrial world is in bondage to fossil fuels for energy production, mainly oil and its byproducts. A few nations control the majority of the world's oil resources. So the oil-producing nations, essentially ruled by Arab potentates, turn the screws on everybody else. Should the United States serve up the head of every Israeli citizen on a wooden platter, the Arabs now would not cut the price of crude oil. Too many of them have well learned the lessons of administered prices.)

The second conditioning factor is the weather. Even with bandit prices for energy, we would have been in better shape had the national harvests not been afflicted by the curse of drought. There is no way in increase the food supply and utlimately trim costs without larger harvests.

Away from the juggling of money supply, deferred government spending and whatever else comes from the Ford economic strategy two directions seem obvious: America must accept policies which will promote enlarged stocks of food and fiber, doing what we can to offset climatic hostilities. And America, while practicing energy conservation — either voluntarily or by edict — must wring a greater efficiency from its energy resources.

Cities Extend Tin Cup

It may be virtually guaranteed: The 1975 Legislature will not take a handkerchief to a tear-stained face and tell Nebraska's cities, yes, yes, we truly understand your terrible problems. So you can have half of all the money raised by the pari-mutuel tax.

For the League of Nebraska Municipalities to really think senators would surrender $2.5 million taken from the fans of hay burners is to show the same political immaturity that infected sponsors of a 1974 piece of lunacy. It would have rechanneled $1 million annually from the state's cirgaret tax to the cities.

The position on pari-mutuel tax diversion adopted by the League at Scottsbluff last week reflects the All-American desire of taking the easy way out. If cities have revenue problems — and all do, all the time — there are two statutory remedies immediately available.

One is the property tax route. Few Nebraska municipalities are at their mill levy ceilings. Fewer yet have made any serious effort at insisting on the accuracy of local real estate tax assessments.

The second avenue is the sales tax. Of the dozens of Nebraska incorporated towns and cities, only three to date have imposed upon themselves the municipal sales tax.

Until cities have taken all the politically hard steps before them in existing law to maximize revenue inflow, their bargaining position with the Legislature will be weak.

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

The editor of the Omaha World Herald thinks a fireman's lottery at the present time "is not a happy one" and that there are "too many complications" in the proposal set forth by State Sen. John DeCamp.

Pointing out that drawings in 13 states already are under federal scrutiny and that firemen might not be able to use the mail or deposit proceeds in federally-chartered banks, the editor raises some interesting questions: "And how about paid departments? Police departments? The humane society? Public servants all.

"Is there no peace? Must we be faced with an indeterminate line of lottery ticket salesmen?"

The Scottsbluff Star Herald is of the opinion that state officials shouldn't be so carried away with horn blowing and "making claims that might not be correct" over the state being the first in the nation to complete its mainline Interstate allocation.

Instead, officials "should stress that with the completion of I-80 they can now concentrate more on improving or rebuilding other important highways in Nebraska. Whenever a motorist gets off I-80, the condition of Nebraska highways deteriorate in condition.

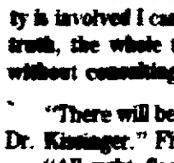

"Until the state can lay claim to having other highway projects underway or programmed, they should go a little slow in beating their chests and yelling like Tarzan," the editor wrote.

The Holdrege Citizen came up with a suggestion as how to solve the problem of meeting maintenance costs on the new fieldhouse under construction on the state fairgrounds.

The cigaret consumer provided the money for the building through an increased tax, so how about "an increased tax on cigarets . . ." to cover maintenance.

The Pierce County Leader confesses that "inasmuch as no one is going to observe the 55 mile per hour speed limit on the Interstate anyway, and inasmuch as the presence of large number of troopers does not bother motorists and truckers," the debate in Congress to keep the 55 mph limit "seems rather silly."

The editor favors retention of the 55 mph maximum on two-lane highways, but thinks the four-lane limit could be raised to 65.

'To Tell the Truth'

Washington — There is some question as to whether State Department and CIA officials told the truth when they testified in front of congressional committees concerning U.S. involvement in the overthrow of the Allende regime in Chile. There is even some talk of perjury charges being brought against high U.S. government officials.

This could play havoc with congressional hearings, particularly where our foreign policy is concerned. If they can't lie, many State Department and CIA types say they may refuse to appear on Capitol Hill.

This is what could happen:

"Secretary Sangfroid, do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help you God?"

"I didn't understand the question."

"We are going to ask certain questions regarding our foreign policy and we want to know if you intend to respond with honest answers."

"Hmmnn, I want to consult with counsel . . . Now, what was the question again, senator?"

"Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God?"

"Is that a multiple-choice question?"

"Just answer yes or no, Mr. Secretary."

"Counsel advises me that since national security is involved I can't tell you whether I will tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth without consulting with Dr. Kissinger."

"There will be a 5-minute recess while you call Dr. Kissinger." Five minutes later:

"All right, Secretary Sangroid, I will pose the question again. Do you swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help you God?"

"Dr. Kissinger says I can't swear to that unless you go into executive session."

"We are in executive session, Mr. Secretary."

"Then could you clarify something for me? If you ask me a question, do you expect me to give a truthful answer to it, even if it compromises the Administration and the State Department and the CIA and gets somebody into trouble for making a stupid mistake?"

"That is correct."

"Dr. Kissinger was afraid of that. I'll have to consult with him again." Five minutes later:

"Mr. Secretary, we really do have to get on with these hearings, and in order to do so we have to swear you in as a witness under oath."

"Why can't I lie?"

"Because it is essential that Congress be kept informed as to what this country is doing abroad. The Constitution specifically gives the Senate the right to advise and consent on foreign policy. In order to do that we must have information from your department. You can see that, can't you?"

"But if you know what we're doing and you don't agree with it, you'll have to do something about it. How can we have a strong foreign policy if you keep asking the State Department to tell you the truth?"

"Mr. Secretary, I must warn you that if you refuse to tell us the truth we shall have to hold you in contempt of Congress."

"But if I took the oath seriously, Dr. Kissinger could get very angry with me. The way I see it, if I'm convicted for lying, I can always get a pardon from the President. But who would give a pardon to anyone who told the truth to Congress?"

Energy Crisis?

What we have, says R. Buckminster Fuller, is an ignorance crisis. By harnessing the wind, by using the power of ocean tides, dependence upon fossil fuels can be lessened. Even ended.

By Lee Linder

Philadelphia (AP) — R. Buckminster Fuller, the self-styled poet of technology, says the world could halt use of all fossil fuels and nuclear energy and rely on windmills, water and the tides for power by 1985.

"Using wind power to generate electricity from which you then, using water, electrolytically convert the water into hydrogen, so all the things we've been running on gasoline we will be running on hydrogen gas which is very much more efficient," he said in a recent interview at his University City Science Center office here.

But this man of controversy, who was talking about ecology four decades ago, doubts whether business will allow free use of air and water.

The 79-year-old Fuller — he likes the nickname "Bucky" and uses it has his cable address — is best known for his geodestic dome, or bubble building. "There are more than 100,000 in half the countries around the world," he says.

Fuller also has invented a three-wheeled rear-engine automobile, a disposable Dymaxion House which can be erected in a day, a bath gun that provides total cleaning with a quart of water and a floating breakwater he sees as the key to future power and cities built on water.

He's written 15 books and been awarded 38 doctorates although he was expelled from Harvard and never graduated from college. Fuller is "World Fellow in Residence" at the University of Pennsylvania and Bryn Mawr, Swarthmore and Haverford Colleges.

Here are some of the questions and answers:

Q. What's the energy crisis all about?

A. We don't have any energy crisis. We only have a crisis of ignorance. And we have a crisis of trying to do the wrong things. We spend time on how to make money than on how to make the world work.

Q. What effect will the energy crisis have on cities, on people?

A. They have to learn a lot of lessons, the hard way. The energy income — you should live on your income shouldn't you, not on your capital? — this is the basic argument. The fossil fuels have taken millions of years to develop, they are a savings account. They have taken millions of years to be deposited in our earth. We are using this savings account instead of trying to live on the energy income. Energy income is the energy we have saved on the planet. It came from some power founded as radiation, as a kind of photosynthesis into the vegetation, in the algae. It takes energy as heat and energy as pressure for a period of time that amounts to, at the rate you and I pay for it, a million dollars to make a gallon of petroleum. And we take it for nothing if we get a pipe down.

Q. Can a world do without gas and oil eventually?

A. And how. It is highly feasible.

Q. What will the people do?

A. We have energy income. If you ran the automobiles directly from the amount of energy, at the rate which we make petroleum, at which fossil fuels are made, coal or oil, you could only keep a few hundred trucks going. But that's because we do it that way. Now I want you to think about our planet which is a sphere. One half our earth is always in the sun. This brings about an enormous temperature differential, which brings about electro-magnetic potential, which brings about lightning and all those kind of powers.

Q. So eventually we'll be getting all our heat and energy to run machines totally from the sun?

A. We always have. Fossil fuels are from the sun. You put a log in the fireplace and watch it burn. In every minute you burn up a year. It took a year to impound that. You are just unwinding the years.

Q. We should be harnessing all this energy?

A. Of course. The very simple thing is that both government and big business are only interested in making money, and the big companies are only interested in what you can sell over a pipe or a wire. They are not interested in the human beings having direct access to energy. So we have no government helping with windmills, and all the windmills have disappeared. So I got very interested in windmills.

Q. Will windmills be the future of energy?

A. Not only windmills, but water power. All the tidal power. I have just finished a project with 30 of the very top students from America and other countries. We're able to show that it is highly feasible by 1985 to phase out all fossil fuel burning, phase out all nuclear energy to get on entirely on what we call income energy, particularly using wind power to generate electricity from which you then, using water, electrolytically convert the water into hydrogen. So all the things we've been running on gasoline we will be running on hydrogen gas, which is very much more efficient . . .

Q. Do you believe the gasoline shortage was contrived by the oil companies?

A. It was very highly contrived, nothing more powerfully contrived. And I think it was done only for one reason: That is environmentalists had become so effective, they had so many laws, they said if we get the energy crisis the legislators would break away from all that legislation, and they did.

Q. How do you see life in the 21st Century?

A. I hope it will last through the 20th century.

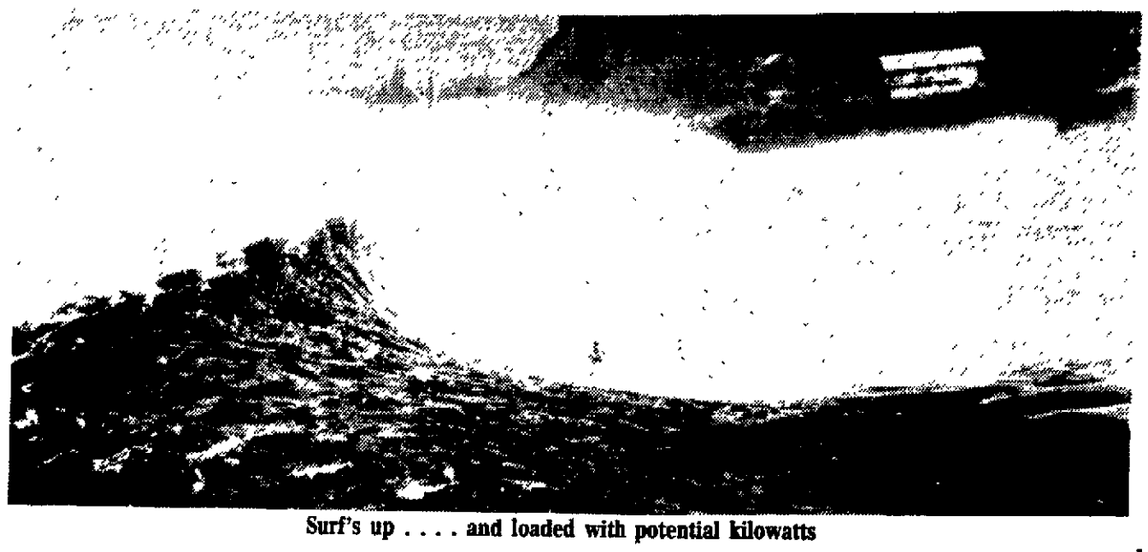

Q. You think there is a possibility it won't?

A. Of course. Man is absolutely disconnected from the land today. There's no way out. He doesn't know how to get on to it.

Q. Do you think people will begin to change the way they live because we are running out of oil and gas and coal?

A. They sure are. We will be using electrical devices, of course, we will be using technology. But the idea of doing things just to have the right to survive, that's all got to go.

Maine's Tidal Dam Project Revived

By John Kifner

Dickey, Me. — They are talking about building a dam larger than the Aswan Dam in Egypt here on the St. John River in the northernmost part of Maine, where the pavement ends and the roads become dirt logging trails leading into thousands of miles of forest in the Allagash wilderness.

They have been talking about it now for more than a decade. But last winter's energy crisis was lent a new momentum to a proposal once snickered at in Washington as a pork barrel project. In the public works bill passed this summer, Congress included $800,000 for the Army Corps of Engineers to plan an impact study of the project.

With a current official price tag of half a billion dollars — probably more by the time the dam is built, its opponents say — the project would back up the waters of the St. John and its tributaries for 53 miles, covering 88,600 acres of forest with an artificial lake.

For about an hour-and-a-half a day, the dam could produce hydroelectric power to feed into the New England energy network at peak demand.

The history of political controversy over the proposed dam has seen a curious shifting of political sides. Environmentalists are now allied with private power companies and timbering interests against the project, while consumer advocates and proponents of public power stand with local businessmen regard the project as a "shot in the arm" for the area's economy.

The project has its origins in a long-abandoned plan to harness the energy of the tides in the Passamaquoddy Bay off the Maine coast. The dams here were to fill in the power gaps. The plan calls for an earth-filled dam nearly two miles long — the 11th largest in the world — stretching between two mountains. Eleven miles downstream, a second, smaller dam would be built near an old schoolhouse that gives the project its full name: The Dickey-Lincoln School Dam.

Congress "authorized" the Corps of Engineers to proceed with the dam in 1965, but refused to appropriate any money for it, because, among other things, the votes of coal-state representatives and fiscal conservatives. In the ensuing years, New England electric companies lobbied heavily against the bill. But now, after last winter's rising electric bills, they find it politically unfeasible to fight new energy sources.

The most vocal opposition is from a recently organized, Boston-based coalition of 21 conservation groups, including the Sierra Club, the Wilderness Society and college outdoor organizations. They contend that the project would eliminate a prime white water canoeing river, destroy the habitat of deer, moose and bear and ruin trout fishing streams in one of the last remaining major wild areas in the east.

Rep. Silvio Conte, the liberal Massachusetts Republican who led the unsuccessful fight to kill the project, describes it as a "boondoggle" that would produce "only a small, tiny, infinitesimal fraction" of New England's power needs. He contends that the Corps of Engineers is not interested in the environment. "They just want to stay in business. This is a way to perpetuate themselves," he says.

But, Massachusetts Democratic Rep. Michael J. Harrington, a leading supporter of the proposed dam, sees it as a "foot in the door" for public hydroelectric power and a Tennessee Valley Authority-style "yardstick" to set against the costs asserted by private power companies.

Review More Films

Lincoln — Hooray! After only four weeks Holly Spence went to a movie. Then she wrote a glowing review of "Tamarind Seed" that all the nationally published critics said was awful. Well, anyone who says "Boys In The Band" is her favorite play can't have too much taste.

As Lincoln's one and only film critic, Miss Spence spends too much time in bars and restaurants. She reviewed "Mame" only after it has been running for a month and was closing. The brilliant Rex Reed says he reviews 12 to 15 movies a week.

Of the 12 first-run films in town, Miss Spence has seen maybe three. If she won't do her job, hire someone who will.

Dubious Honor

Lincoln — I now have the honor of helping the government fight the inflation trend. My retirement check was just too much over what I was supposed to get.

Now I know the officials called a conference and said that vet is getting to much to eat so we will take back his cost of living raise. Which the government did.

If I have to give up my cost of living raise, why can't a lot of other people do the same?

On Preventing Disaster

In his speech to the United Nations last week, President Ford announced a subtle change in the emphasis of American foreign policy. He put top priority on the need to meet the world economic crisis. That almost certainly means a lesser stress than President Nixon put on settlement in the Near East and on detente with Russia.

A good way to sense the difference is to consider the staggering impact of the threefold price increase enacted by the cartel of oil-producing countries over the past 18 months. Something like half the rise in American wholesale prices over the past year springs directly from that increase. The inflation raging in most of the other countries of the world is even more closely tied to the oil price rise.

So is the world food crisis. Fertilizer, a petroleum product, has risen in price step by step with oil. The countries which require fertilizer are those least able to pay because they have to spend their precious dollar assets on oil itself. So India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and several other nations known as the MSAs, or countries the most severely affected by the oil price rise, are threatened with famine.

Perhaps even more serious than the food problem is the impact of the oil price increase on the international balance of payments. The United States is running a heavy deficit largely because of the increased payments for oil. So are all the other industrialized countries.

For the United States the impact is not disastrous. The oil-producing countries unable to buy goods with their receipts invest the money in the most stable foreign economies. That means America mainly, and to a lesser extent Germany, Japan and Britain.

But nations such as Italy and France have to borrow to meet their debts, or else tighten up terribly on consumption. Borrowing is tough and now threatens a run on major banking facilities. Economic restrictions, by spreading from country to country, could produce the world depression so many people foresee.

President Ford rightly understands that avoiding a world depression has to be the centerpiece of his foreign policy. That is the plain meeting of the principal statement made in his speech to the United Nations: "Let us not delude ourselves. Failure to cooperate on oil, food and inflation could spell disaster for every nation represented in this room."

But every serious effort to meet the oil problem runs athwart policies put into effect by President Nixon. The most obvious measure would be to insist on a break in the oil price in exchange for this country's good efforts in promoting a settlement in the Near East.

But President Nixon didn't want to jeopardize his diplomatic moves by mixing in vulgar commercial interests. For fear of alienating the Arabs and thus spoiling his negotiation he did not apply any pressure on an oil price break, and his effort to wheedle down the price by being nice to the Saudis has obviously not worked.

A second tactic would be to organize the consuming countries in a kind of counter-cartel. President Nixon had taken some steps here, notably in promoting the Washington Energy Conference of oil-consuming countries.

But cooperation with such major oil consumers as Japan, France and even Britain has been sticky. A large part of the reason is that President Nixon had placed so much more emphasis on detente with Russia than on cooperation with this country's allies.

A third tactic would be to develop a strong program for energy self-sufficiency in this country. Only that would have involved sacrifice in the context of international crisis. President Nixon declared the crisis was over as soon as the first progress was made toward an easing of tension between Israel and the Arab states. And in the absence of a crisis atmosphere, it has been impossible to take steps toward American self-sufficiency.

In short, President Nixon's emphasis on settlement with the Near East and detente with Russia implied living with higher oil prices. Mr. Ford's emphasis on international economic problems implies bringing down the price of oil — perhaps even at the cost of living with an unsettlement in the Near East and an incomplete detente with Russia.

GEORGE F. WILL

Witlessness Rule

Washington — A European critic once noted that "what American women suffer from is too much poor-quality attention." Certainly intelligent women must cringe at the kind of attention lavished on women in a depressing document titled "Guidelines for Equal Treatment of the Sexes in McGraw-Hill Book Company Publications."

The guidelines are designed to expunge "sexist assumptions" from McGraw-Hill publications, especially teaching materials. McGraw-Hill huffs and puffs through 11 pages of proscriptions, some of which are embarrassing (they refer to the phrase "catty gossip" as a "stereotype"); others are banal (do not refer to a wife as "the ball and chain"); others are pathetic (the word "man-made" should be replaced by something like "of human origin").

Female-gender word forms like "suffragette," or "aviatrix" must go. McGraw-Hill writers must pluralize to avoid gender pronouns: "secretaries . . . they" should be used instead of "the secretary . . . she." Occupational terms like "fireman" and "mailman" must be replaced by "firefighter" and "mail carrier."

All "unnecessary" references to a woman's marital status (e g., "Mrs. Meir and Moshe Dayan ate dinner") are forbidden. The word "lady" is denounced as a "role word" and is banned except when men are being referred to as "gentlemen."

The McGraw-Hill guideline writers say they just want to "reflect" reality. In fact, they want to change reality, and they think they can do this by tinkering with the language. They are going to pound flat the battlements of injustice and their hammer will be . . . a sanitized English language.

Obviously the web of language shapes as well as reflects reality. But McGraw-Hill's guideline writers insist, with more truculence than evidence, that the sort of commonplace words they complain about have played a significant role in reinforcing the unequal status of women, and that changing the offending words will change the world in significant ways.

Although I am of the male persuasion, even I understand that the unequal status of women is an irrational waste of talent in most societies. But it will not be rectified by people who waste time blaming and banning the kind of language that the McGraw-Hill guideline writers object to with such Stakhanovite witlessness.

The word "fireman" efficiently reflects reality: virtually all firefighters have been men. If women want to fight fires, banning the word "fireman" won't help, and its continued existence will be no hindrance. And I, for one, do not mind if my airline pilot is female, but I don't want to be taken 38,000 feet up by a pilot who feels insecure in the presence of the word "aviatrix."

Such niggling about words trivializes that which is not trivial — the cause of female equality. In fact, the niggling done by the McGraw-Hill guideline writers suggests that they are ideologues who are having trouble scrounging up grievances as substantial as their ideological sense of self-pity.

They do not understand that there are some ways of clamoring for "respect" that make it hard for mature people to respect the clamorers. Anyone who feels victimized by the word "aviatrix" is inevitably going to be treated, with reason, as a problem child who has no serious worries — or ideas..

McGraw-Hill's linguistic pogrom would purge all phrases that are capable of offending those women who say their dignity is threatened by this sentence from the McGraw-Hill list of forbidden phrases: "The sound of drilling disturbed the housewives of the neighborhood." (McGraw-Hill wants: "The sound . . . disturbed everyone within earshot.") And what will be left of the language when it has been sanitized so thoroughly that no irrational minority can blame its afflictions on innocuous phrases?

Where are you, Simone Weil, now that we need you to spike the popguns of the McGraw-Hill guideline writers? Ms. Weil serenely sure of her inestimable worth, expressed in two blase sentences the manifesto of the liberated woman: "Men owe us what we imagine they will give us. We must forgive them this debt."

Federalized Cyprus

United Nations, N.Y. — Outlines of a possible Cyprus settlement are beginning to appear on a very dark horizon. But the obstacles to final agreement remain huge.

Acting Cyprus President Glafkos Clerides and Vice-President Rauf Denktash from the Turkish-Cypriot community have begun what could be a fruitful negotiation. They have made more progress than has been publicly disclosed.

There is no other level on which a Cyprus negotiation could take place at this time. Greece and Turkey cannot be brought around a peace table. Turkey will not make a prior "gesture" — such as troop-withdrawal — on a scale which Greece would consider adequate; Ankara is resolved to spend its bargaining currency buying a settlement, not buying a negotiation.

So, in part at the urging of UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, whose representative takes part in some of the talks, Clerides and Denktash are exploring the possibilities.

There is no formally agreed objective, no "basis of negotiation." Tacitly, however, the two Cypriot leaders are assuming that the only practical result which can emerge is a federal Cyprus, with local autonomy for a Greek sector and a Turkish sector, and extensive population exchanges.

Clara and Alta Rodriguez reported in "fine condition."

Koop Believes in the 'Sovereignty of God'

Doctor Who Aided Siamese Twins Prayed for Guidance

By Arthur Snider
(c) Chicago Daily News

The first set of Siamese twins seen in 1956 by Dr C Everett Koop, 57, frightened him so much he dreamed the night before the operation of making the wrong incision and winding up with two babies, each with the leg of the other.

But no such terror gripped him last Wednesday when in an eight-hour operation he separated Clara and Alta Rodriguez of the Dominican Republic, the third such-joined twins in history to be successfully parted.

He attributes his self-possession to 18 more years of experience plus what he calls "my anchor — a complete belief in the sovereignty of God "

"Having that, knowing that someone else is running the show," he says, "gives me a tremendous amount of comfort."

Seeks Guidance

Before Wednesday's surgery; as before every one of the thousands of operations he has performed, the surgeon prays for guidance

Dr. C. Everett Koop

A few days earlier, he had been in Wheaton, a Chicago suburb, to attend the annual board meeting of the Medical Assistance Program (MAP), a missionary organization of which he is vice chairman.

The proceedings were interrupted as Koop asked for the prayers of the board members and staff in the Siamese operation.

Koop, one of the world's foremost pediatric surgeons, is also one of the foremost exponents of spiritualism in medicine

"If I had to go through life thinking that all the day-by-day decisions I make about patients were up to chance and my own infallibility, I would become very discouraged," he states

Life and Death

As surgeon-in-chief of the University of Pennsylvania Children's Hospital, a court of last resort for youngsters with cancer, birth defects and injuries, he is faced daily with life and death decisions.

He believes the least bearable loss for a family is a child who dies of an incurable illness. Death from an accident or gross deformity is anguishing but to watch a child die slowly is torture.

This has led him to devote much time and thought to dealing with parents who suffer

He has made it a rule to be at the bedside when the end is near so that the parents need not feel the child has been abandoned. This sometimes means returning to the hospital night after night.

Worse Than Death

"I have learned that the worst moments for parents is when they understand that the child's condition is grave," he says. "It is certainly worse than death itself for by that time they will have become reconciled to its inevitability."

When the outcome appears inevitable, Koop takes it upon himself to inform the parents rather than leave it to a resident or an assistant.

The information is given in a private room, his office, a quiet lounge, but never in a corridor or lobby or any place where a family cannot let their emotions be demonstfated without embarrassment. Usually he will hold the hands of both parents as they sit facing him.

Peak of Profession

Dr. Koop's longtime friend, Ray Knighton, president of MAP, says: "One mostly hears of doctors who are not ethical but seldom about a man like this who has reached the peak of his profession, is a biblical scholar who teaches classes, an elder in his church, an orator who is in demand as a lay preacher and a gifted writer who could make a living with his pen.

"By age 45 he had achieved every award possible and now he wants to devote the rest of his life to giving himself to people." Few know he is supporting individuals all over the world. He must be giving three-fourths of his income to charity."

Koop joined MAP about the time it was founded "by accident" about 20 years ago by Knighton in Chicago.

An eastern pharmaceutical company was seeking to give away excess drugs to a charity and someone suggested calling Knighton, who was an executive in the Christian Medical Assn. "And knows every missionary in the world."

Into Hallway

Dozens of cartons reached Knighton's office. He moved desks and chairs into the hallway to make room and began contacting medical friends

The gift led Knighton to wondering whether other pharmaceutical companies had drugs to give away and the Medical Assistance Program was born.

In 20 years more than $100 million in medicines and supplies have been shipped to mission hospitals and clinics in 82 developing countries.

Doctors frequently volunteer their vacation time to go along. Koop has made so many of these trips he has come to be called "the modern Schweitzer."

But he quickly files a disclaimer. "The only resemblance is that I also have a beard," he says.

Grateful Mother Is 'Overwhelmed'

Philadelphia (UPI) — Mrs Farida Rodriguez, 32, fought back tears as she thanked the surgeons who last week successfully separated her 13-month-old Siamese twins in an operation at Childrens Hospital.

Mrs. Rodriguez, of San Jose de Ocoa, Dominican Republic, with the aid of an interpreter appeared before newsmen to express her gratitude to the 23 doctors and nurses who performed the painstaking 10-hour operation which separated Clara and Alta.

Embracing Dr. C. Everett Koop, who headed the surgical team, Mrs. Rodriguez said she is "overwhelmed by the compassion everyone has shown." A Philadelphia man has donated money so she can fly home to tend to her five other children and then return in a month to take her daughters home.

"It makes me want to cry when I'm able to do something for someone who is grateful," said Dr. Koop. "Very few people thank you for what you do. I wish I could speak Spanish so we could share many things."

The doctors and the hospital have said they will not charge the Rodriguez family for the medical costs, which Dr. Koop said he "couldn't begin to estimate." The operation was only the fourth successful one of its type known to medical authorities.

The twins, who were joined at the middle and lower trunk, were being kept in the same crib to minimize possible psychological problems that could result from not being together constantly. Dr. Koop said if all goes as well as expected the children may return home in four to six weeks.

"I would never say they're out of danger," the surgeon said, "but I do believe they are."

When the twins entered surgery Wednesday, they had four kidneys linked to each other's bladders and shared an intestinal tract. Their blood supplies also criss-crossed into one another. Now each has complete digestive, urinary and reproductive systems.

Ford Foundation May Slash Grants 50%

(c) By New York Times

New York — The Ford Foundation, squeezed like most private philanthropies by falling stock and bond markets and mounting inflation, is considering a reduction in its annual grants of as much as 50%

McGeorge Bundy, the foundation's president, said a cut of 50% in Ford's $220-million-a-year program budget was one of several alternatives he presented to foundation trustees for review.

Bundy said in an interview the other options included smaller reductions or dissolving the foundation by distributing its assets, which have fallen from $3 billion to $2 billion in market value over the last year. The Ford Foundation is by far the wealthiest American foundation.

Ford's trustees rejected the idea of dissolution in 1967, when the foundation began reducing its grants from a level of more than $500 million annually. Bundy declined to comment on the likelihood of the trustees voting the foundation out of business but few trustees are believed to favor dissolution.

"We need to take a hard look at our situation," the Ford executive said. "The question is how much action to take now. If we continue to spend at our present rate and things don't get better fast, we're in trouble".

Bundy said it was uncertain which program areas might be hardest hit by a reduction in Ford's support.

Dr Alexander Heard, chairman of the foundation's board of trustees, said the financial problems facing the foundation were simular to the problems confronting privately endowed universities, hospitals and other institutions.

A major reduction in funding by Ford — particularly at a time when many other foundations are contemplating or have already initiated cutbacks — could have a significant psychological, as well as financial, impact on philanthropy. It could also increase pressures for additional public funds for innovation in education, the environment, health, the arts and many other areas.

'Burn the Books' Protest Rocks Charleston

Charleston, W. Va. (UPI) — "Edith is the 'saved' broad who can't marry out of her religion . . . or do anything else out of her religion for that matter, especially what I wanted her to do.

"So dig, for the last couple weeks, I been quoting the good book and all that stuff to her, telling her I am now saved myself, you dig."

When Charleston school bells rang this month, such passages from a new series of textbooks set off a controversy that spread from this capitol city to the nearby coal camps and farmlands of Appalachia.

The furor generated closed schools and mines and inspired shootings, beatings and other violence.

Hundreds of outraged parents poured into the streets, chanting "burn the books."

The school superintendent moved his family into hiding, fearful of the anonymous death threats he received. Police forces were strained beyond their capacity, dashing from one hot spot to another to quell disturbances.

"It's mob rule," one official said at the height of the protest.

Kanawha County School Board Member Alice Moore, a minister's wife, was the first to say the books, for all grades from kindergarten through senior high school in language arts classes, were unfit for classrooms. They quickly became the reading material most in demand Many parents became incensed by what they found.

A poem in one text reads:

"Probably you were a bastard

"Dreaming of running men down in a Cadillac,

"And tearing blouses off women . . ."

One book compares Daniel and the Lion's Den from the Bible with a fable. Another likens the Genesis account of creation to myth. Another tale is concerned with a young boy's thoughts on suicide.

Parents feel other passages instill contempt for American leaders and encourage the use of marijuana.

Fundamentalist preachers led the protest On the first day of school, nearly one-fourth of the students stayed home.

Armed with picket signs, parents roamed the county in search of support. Thousands of miners, traditionally reluctant to step across picket lines, refused to work.

After two people were shot, one seriously, Underwood and Rev. Marvin Horan, one of the protest's leaders, finally reached an agreement for a 30-day moratorium on the books.

During the third week of the controversy, nearly 1,000 parents, waving American flags, demonstrated on the capitol lawn and shouted down the moratorium. They demanded books be stricken on a permanent basis, without benefit of a review.

Two parents decided to set wheels in motion for a legal settlement and filed suit in U.S. District Court.

Gary D. Williams Sr. and his wife, who have two children in school, said they filed the suit because the books abused the "constitutional rights of freedom of religion."

"We feel that the textbooks will teach our children anti-Christian doctrine contrary to our belief and our rights as parents," he said.

Airports Use Technology, But Jams Still Problem

By Howard Benedict
Associated Press

Airline passengers can zip from New York to Chicago in two hours and coast to coast in five.

But, as any seasoned traveler knows, getting to and from and through most major airports can be an annoying, choking sensation.

Approach roads are jammed. Taxi rides frequently are long and expensive. Parking lots are full. Ticket lines can be lengthy. Long walks to a departure gate or between terminals are common. It sometimes seems an eternity before baggage arrives.

The swift and reliable jet airliners, especially the wide-bodied jumbo jets, are attracting millions of new passengers each year. That adds to the airport saturation problem many cities are trying to solve with new, modern airports or expanded facilities.

Scheduled U.S. airlines carried 202 million passengers in 1973. The Air Transport Assn. forecasts more than 300 million passengers in 1980 and more than 700 million by the year 2000.

Automated "people movers," resembling miniature transit systems, now carry passengers around a few of the new airports, but the people movers haven't always worked properly. In the drive to modernize and expand airport capacity, computers have been installed in some places to handle baggage, but with mixed results.

Five cities — Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, Kansas City, Tampa and Washington — have built new, modern airports in recent years, incorporating the latest technology. Other cities have tried, but have been blocked by environmentalists, by cutbacks in airline landing fees, by noise problems, and by financing troubles. Some cities have settled on the interim step of enlarging existing facilities, postponing the construction of new airports until the 1980s or 1990s.

Through a surcharge of 43 cents on each airline ticket, airlines have reimbursed the airports for the cost of security to prevent hijackings and bombings. But the Civil Aeronautics Board is reexamining the surcharges because some small airports contend the reimbursement doesn't cover their costs.

Newest in Texas

The newest, largest and spiffiest U.S. airport is the ultramodern facility that opened last January halfway between the rival Texas cities of Dallas and Fort Worth. Larger than the island of Manhattan, the 17,000-acre, $800 million complex features the latest in computer-controlled people movers and baggage handlers.

Designed to accommodate eight million or more passengers in its first year, it eventually can be expanded to take care of 50 million annually.

The computers, unfortunately, have not always worked, especially in the early months. The result was chewed up baggage, missed planes, frayed nerves.

An elderly woman takes a firm grip on her passing suitcase as it trundles along a moving belt at New York's LaGuardia airport. Baggage handling is only one of many problems facing airport planners.

Major passenger complaints were aimed at Airtrans, a 13-mile automated system of electrically-powered trams intended to transport passengers between terminals and remote parking lots. Often the trams skipped stations, doors failed to open or they stopped between stations.

Two airlines at Dallas-Fort Worth operate an automatic baggage system called "Docutel," a 4,000-foot complex of rails and cars resembling a miniature roller coaster. The computers that drive the system frequently guided bags to wrong bins or off the edge of the beltway or sent carrier cars crashing into suitcases with devastating results.

Ernest Dean, airport executive director, says experts gradually are working the bugs out of Airtrans and Docutel and "they are now operating at about 95% efficiency and we're getting better daily. But we still have a few problems that occasionally inconvenience travelers."

Another sticking point is the distance to the airport, 15 miles from Dallas or Fort Worth, a $14 cab ride.

19 Miles to KC

Distance from downtown, 19 miles, is a sore point, too, at the new Kansas City International, which opened two years ago as the world's first airport featuring a "drive to your gate" processing system. Passengers and their baggage arriving at any of three circular terminals are never more than 200 feet from their aircraft. "The world's shortest walk: to fly," proclaim airport brochures. A fleet of mini-buses efficiently whisks people between terminals and parking lots.

"We have no people movers or other automation here like Dallas-Fort Worth," said Howard Willoughby, Kansas City International's deputy director. "When we designed the airport we looked at various systems. The costs were horrendous, nothing really worked and nothing impressed us. So we designed the 'drive to your gate' concept to avoid such things as people movers."

The concept has been so successful, he said, that other airports in the U.S., Europe and South America are studying it.

The $250 million facility is built on 5,000 acres, and the airport is seeking to double its land area to handle expansion through the 1990s. Traffic is expected to be a little over 4 million passengers this year, well below capacity.

After the Kansas City airport opened, there was a drop in traffic from the 4 million people in the first year of operation. But this has been reversed, the Airport Operators Council International says.

Houston's new international airport, opened in 1969, is nearing its first stage capacity of six million passengers annually and is ready for expansion. There are two operating terminals and a third is being considered.

The airport had many early problems with an automated underground electric train system which carried passengers between terminals. Two years ago it installed a second generation system for increased reliability and comfort.

Tampa's new $100 million international airport employs four computer-driven people-mover shuttles to take passengers from the central terminal to four satellite boarding areas. Maximum walking distance from ground transportation to a boarding gate is 700 feet.

Since the airport opened three years ago, the shuttles have ferried 40 million people, with only two persons injured in a freak accident caused by human error.

Other cities have not been successful in coping with environmentalists. Protests over noise, pollution or land desecration have blocked attempts by Minneapolis, New York, Los Angeles and Miami to build new airports. And they have stalled a $333 million expansion plan for San Francisco International.

Miami, for example, wanted to build a new jetport in the Everglades, and Los Angeles at Palmdale, in the Mojave Desert 60 miles north of the city.

Minneapolis, New York's LaGuardia and Kennedy, Los Angeles and Miami have enlarged or are expanding facilities. Also being expanded are airports in New Orleans, Chicago, Seattle, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Orlando, Cincinnati, Newark and Boston.

Nearly all these cities say they will need new airports to handle the crush of traffic anticipated in the 1980s and 1990s.

Environmentalists are not the only block to airport construction or expansion. Sometimes it is financing.

Airlines normally produce as much as 50% of a large airport's revenue, mostly through landing fees. An economic downturn and the highest cost of fuel resulting from the recent energy crisis have cut into airline profits and have forced major cutbacks in spending by airport users.

In some communities, new issues of general obligation bonds for the funding of airport projects are being put aside to permit financing of politically more popular measures such as school construction or urban development.

Chief Justice Warren Burger waves with his injured hand as he left Arlington Hospital early Saturday morning.

Injured in Bicycle Accident

Burger to Undergo Testing

Washington (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger will be hospitalized three or four more days for further tests and recuperation from a cracked rib and other injureis he suffered in a bicycle accident, a spokesman said Saturday.

Supreme Court spokesman Barrett McGurn said Burger, 67, was given neurological and blood tests Saturday and the results were "favorable."

X-rays will be made today of Burger's left shoulder and left side, and further tests of an unspecified nature will be made Monday, McGurn said.

Burger was admitted to Arlington Hospital in suburban Virginia late Friday evening after falling from his bike into a curb when he swerved to avoid a car.

"It looks from bruises on his left side that he must have been brushed by the passing car," McGurn said. "He took quite a few bruises."

He said that as of Saturday evening Burger was resting reasonably comfortably, considering that his left arm was in a sling, his right arm was in a cast and he required stitches for a cut over his eye.

Burger's injuries were described as a broken rib, dislocated finger and facial abrasions. He was initially released early Saturday after treatment but later was readmitted as a precautionary measure, McGurn said.

The bike was a birthday present from Burger's family last Tuesday.

Gromyko, Tanaka, Vignes

Ford Meets Foreign Ministers

Washington (UPI) — President Ford and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held another round of detente discussions Saturday but achieved "no breakthroughs, no agreements," a White House spokesman said.

Ford devoted the full day to high-level foreign policy talks, meeting also with Argentina's Foreign Minister Alberto Vignes in the morning and with Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, who flew in from Brazil for a brief White House stopover on his way to Bermuda, in late afternoon.

After a one-hour meeting between Ford and Tanaka, the White House issued a statement that said "The atmosphere of the meeting was very warm and friendly and permitted the President and prime minister to establish a personal relationship."

It said, "The meeting itself symbolized the importance both place upon continuing the excellent cooperative relations between the U.S. and Japan."

The statement said the leaders had a broad general discussion covering U.S.-Japan relations, the situation in Asia and other international issues.

Ford invited Gromyko back to the White House in company with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger "to complete the far-ranging discussions begun yesterday," deputy White House press secretary John Hushen said.

Those talks covered most of the major issues involved in U.S.-Soviet efforts to promote detente, including recently-resumed negotiations for a new strategic arms limitation (SALT) treaty and attempts to swap U.S. trade concessions for expanded emigration rights for Soviet Jews.

"No new subjects were brought up and the discussion was not limited to any specific subject," Hushen said.

"There were no breakthroughs, no agreements," in the talks, which lasted just over half an hour, he added.

Ford spent nearly an hour with Vignes discussing the decision of the Organization of American States (OAS) to review its decade-old diplomatic and economic embargo against Cuba.

Vignes told newsmen the talks were "frank and cordial". While Argentina favors ending the sanctions against Cuba, the U.S. has not commited itself one way or the other and Vignes declined to predict what will be decided at the OAS foreign ministers' conference on the issue Nov. 8 in Ecuador.

Houston Rail Blast Injures Almost 100

HOUSTON (AP) — An explosion rocked the Southern Pacific Railroad yard Saturday sending almost 100 persons to hospitals and damaging buildings up to a mile away.

Southern Pacific officials said the blast occurred while two cars loaded with butadiene, a gas used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber, were being coupled.

"Someone saw a vaporizing gas and then there was an explosion," Southern Pacific spokesman Tony Aleman said.

Fire officials said the resulting fires were under control by 8 p.m.

Fire Department spokesman Paul Carr said the explosion did not affect several cars loaded with military missiles and placed in another part of the yard.

Most Favor Easier Money, Lower Interest Rate economics, labor, housing and construction, agriculture and food, business and manufacturing, natural resources, health and welfare, banking and finance, and transportation.

The opening round came Sept. 5 in the East Room of the White House, with economists unable even to agree among themselves as to whether the country was in a recession, much less headed for a depression as some suggested.

The closest thing to a consensus and recommendation to merge from the meeting was that the federl government should ease its tight money policy.

A freer supply of money, they argued, would bring down record high interest rates, relieve the crippled construction industry and give succor to the poor and unemployed.

But Greenspan and Simon quickly opposed the idea. The next day Ford was reported to have decided against any quick public move to pressure the Federal Reserve Board into relaxing the money bind.

Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns announced Friday there would be no further tightening of the money supply but added that there probably will be no major decline in interest rates either.

Belt Tightening

Ford has expressed the traditional view that belt tightening is mandatory in the face of inflation. But he was rebuffed by Congress when he sought to delay federal pay raises.

Labor strongly disagreed with Ford on this point at its pre-summit conference Sept. 11. A parade of labor chiefs said this is not a classic inflation of excessive demand versus scarcity of goods and that the old time remedies might even make it worse.

"We've been going downhill for 5½ years under the present economic policies we have right at this minute," AFL-CIO president George Meany said. "We believe that budget cuts, high interest rates and tight money supply are not going to work in today's inflation."

When the business community met in Pittsburgh last Monday, its leaders called for increased tax incentives to spur capital investment. But labor said concentration of economic power in big corporations already was a major cause of the problem.

Business also called for easing environmental and safety requirements as a means of facilitating expansion, which they said would also create jobs. Ecologists testified to the contrary in another meeting.

During the pre-summit meetings, the most visible point of general agreement has been in favor of an easier money policy and lower interest rates. But this appeared to be rebuffed by both the White House and the Federal Reserve Board.

Just about everybody, for varying reasons, opposed re-imposition of wage and price controls, but neither did they offer any new or better alternatives.

Labor and poor people's groups are pushing for more public service jobs. Ford has responded with plans to free previously appropriated funds to create 170,000 public service jobs by winter, but House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Oklah., says it ought to be at least 500,000.

Budgetary restraint also has been a common theme. But as Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., put it: "Everybody wants to tighten someone else's belt."

Panel Asks Ford Help to Hold Down Wage, Price Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate-House Economic Committee called on President Ford Saturday to play a vigorous role in inducing business and labor to hold down wage and price increases.

He should do this, the panel said in a special report, by making the fullest use of the Council on Wage and Price Stability which Congress created at his request.

The council can recommend guidelines to govern both prices and wages, and the President can use the power of his office to try to see that these are observed, the committee said.

The committee did not propose reimposition of wage and price controls, although one of its veteran members, Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N.J., did favor this.

He said he fears that the only way to stop inflation is across-the-board controls applied to all segments of the economy.

Other recommendations in the report were:

—A $5 billion cut in federal spending to $300 billion for the present years.

—A moderate easing of the tight money policy.

—An expanded program of public service jobs.

—Income tax cuts for low-income families with the loss of revenue offset by closing of tax loopholes.

—Creation of a commission to make recommendations on removal of barriers to competition.

The committee, in releasing its report, pointed out that it had met the six-week deadline suggested by Ford in his address to Congress Aug. 12.

Sen. William Proxmire, vice-chairman of the committee, said its 12 Democratic and 8 Republican members were unanimous in support of the recommendations. Various members had additional proposals, however.

The members conceded that the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability had no powers to enforce guidelines.

But Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., declared, "The President can do much in this field if he will focus attention on these price increases . . .

"Maybe Mr. Ford can put the government back to work. But he's going to have to stay with it seven days a week if jawboning and goidelines are going to work."

Proxmire asserted, "This is not a demand inflation because purchasing power has fallen off.

"There are many factors but in some industries which have power to force administered price increases we have had a real rip-off of consumers.

"In such industries as steel, chemicals and petroleum we have had increases ranging from 40 to 80 per cent in the past year, with no justification on the basis of costs."

The committee said the tight money policy used by the Federal Reserve System to fight inflation has had too adverse an effect on housing and on interest rates generally.

A shift toward a less restrictive monetary policy now is needed and a system for channeling credit is required, the report said.

In the agriculture field, the committee recommended an export licensing system for items in critically short supply and increased efforts to eliminate all bottlenecks holding down farm production.

The panel strongly opposed lifting price ceilings on output from domestic oil wells which were producing before the oil shortages of last fall.

The report urged that as many as 650,000 public service jobs be made available if unemployment reaches 6 per cent. It also called for improvements in unemployment compensation benefits and adjustments in food stamps to keep up with price rises.

Proxmire said one of the most important long-range recommendations was for the setting up a commision to deal with competition.

The commission, he said, would consider many governmental impediments to economic efficiency.

These could include federal subsidies, production quotas and marketing orders, price supports, excess stockpiles, prevailing wage determinations, excess regulation in the transportation and communication fields, import quotas and voluntary agreements to curtail imports.

Students Can't Stomach His Firing

Chef Lost Money But Made Friends

CHICAGO (AP) — The firing of a chef who lost money in the face of inflation by insisting that gourmet dishes be served in the school cafeteria has caused a furor at Kennedy-King College, which opened two years ago in the most poverty-stricken area of Chicago.

There is a movement to boycott the cafeteria, known as the Gourmet Room, after the recent dismissal of Master Chef Robert Woods. Woods maintained he served the meals as an aid to food education, and concerned students are distributing pamphlets protesting the change at the cafeteria.

They say they miss Woods' cleanliness as well as his short-ribs, choice roast beef, duck, pepper steak, egg foo yung, seafood casseroles, shrimp dishes and other delicacies that made Woods famous when he ran the kitchen at the University of Chicago Quadrangle Club for 12 years.

"He lost us $87,000 in two years," said Chancellor Oscar Shabat, who replaced Woods with a private food concessionaire.

The college has an enrollment of 9,000 students, 99 per cent of them black.

President Maceo T. Bowie said that Woods, a one-time Army mess sergeant, had designed a food management program to educate students in good eating habits as well as train them to enter the food industry.

Master Chef Robert Woods

"Now we have to restructure it, and I am a little disappointed," said Bowie. "Good food is part of the education program. Students who would grab a hamburger and a bag of potato chips would go through the dinner line and get well-balanced meals."

Woods, 44, whose annual salary was $20,000, said, "I got caught in the middle of soaring food costs."

"I insist on preparing gourmet food and selling it at prices students can afford," he said. "We were serving roast beef dinners, with potatoes and a vegetable, for $1.60 to $1.70, and there was no profit there, I'll admit. We were averaging about 2,000 noontime meals."

A cafeteria worker said the average this week was a little more than 1,000.

"In order to balance the deficit, I had booked 60 outside organizations, mainly church groups, for the rest of this year for banquets in the cafeteria which I would cater. I figured I would gross about $33,000 from them." said Woods.

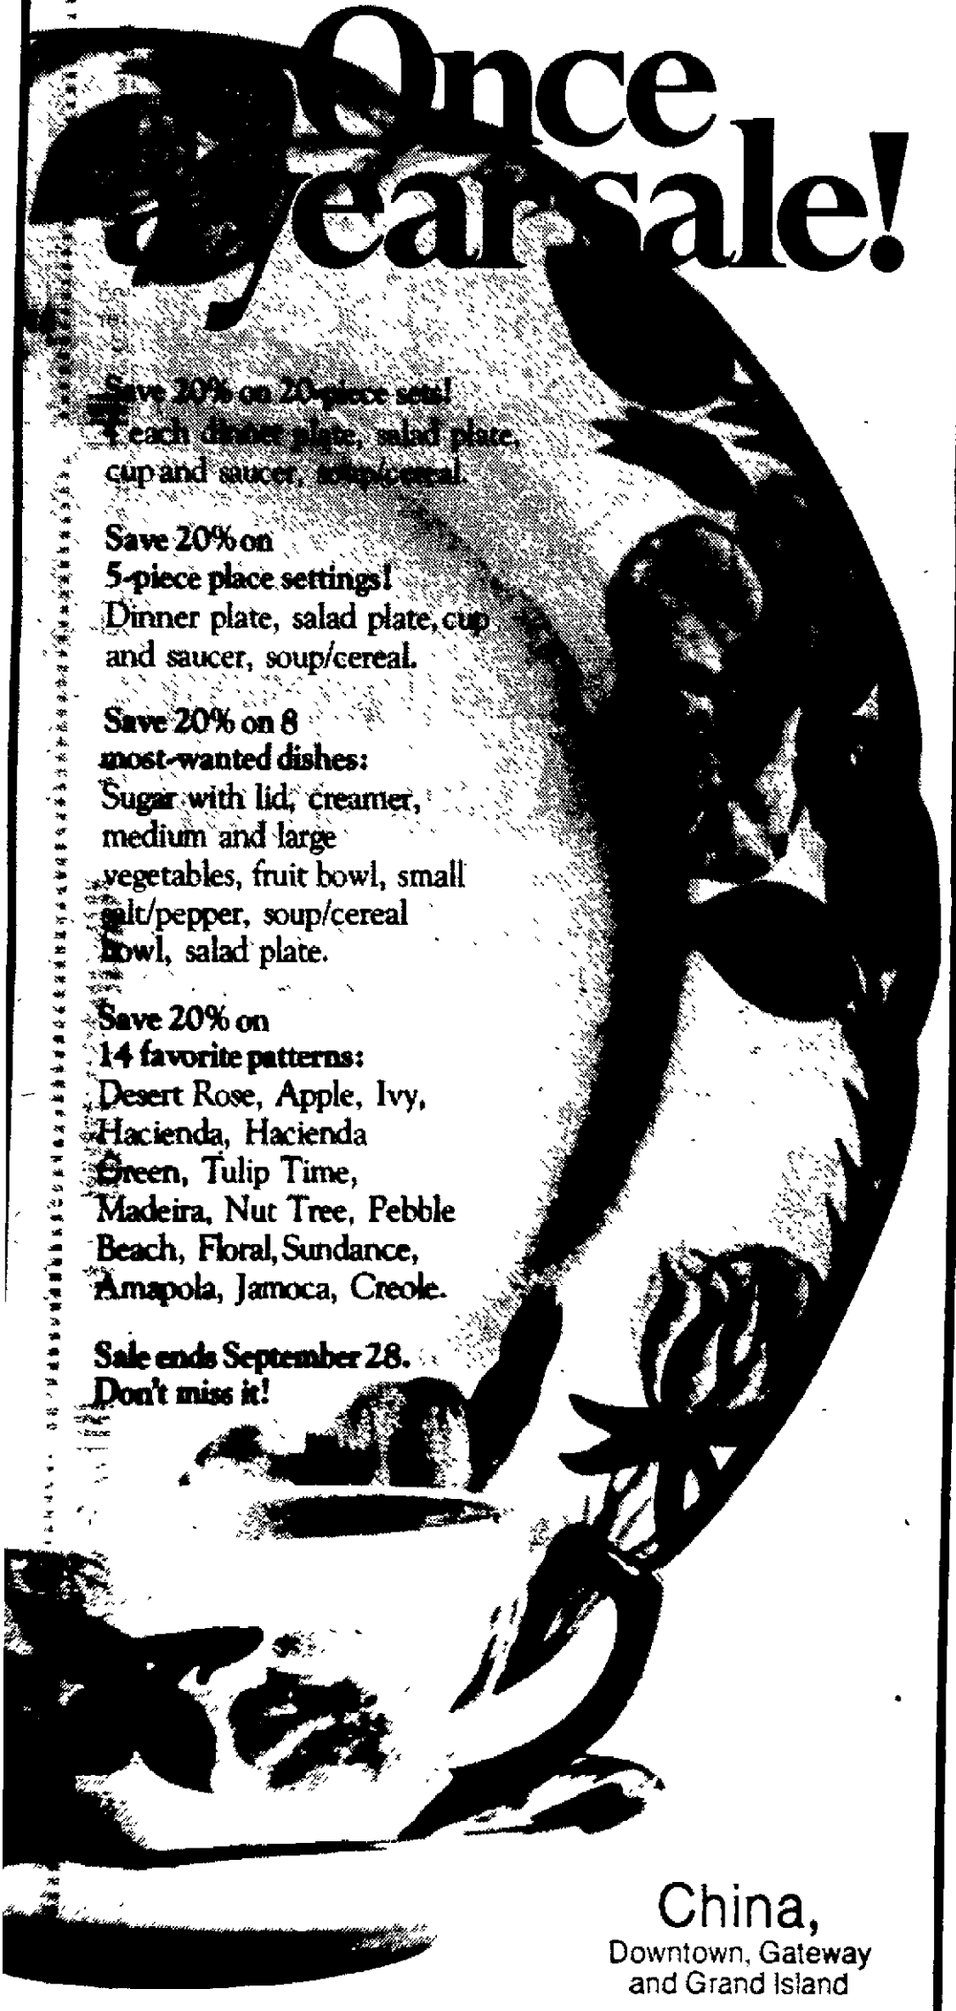

Bowie said a similar catering program by Woods brought in $28,000 in the first six months of this year and that cut the total losses to the $87,000 figure.

"Woods is an exceptionally fine chef and groups from all over the area would come here to eat his food," said Bowie. "I'm sorry he isn't being given a chance. And I am embarrassed we have to cancel out the catering he had set up."

Curtis Thompson, 23, a part time student studying computer programming, said he is boycotting the cafeteria because "everything has gone to pot since Woods left . . . Not only are students staying out of the cafeteria but also the faculty.

"It use to be a place where we enjoyed eating," said Thompson, who also is on the college's security force. "The quality of the food has gone to pot and there aren't nice touches any more like glasses for water. They are using paper cups. Woods had everything together. We want him back."

Gallup Poll

Most Oppose Absolute Amnesty

Princeton, N.J. — President Ford's offer of conditional amnesty for Vietnam war draft evaders and deserters parallels the views of the greatest number of persons interviewed in a recent nationwide survey.

About six in ten (59%) of persons interviewed express opposition to unconditional amnesty, while 34% vote in favor of such a course of action and 7% do not express an opinion.

Although the majority oppose unconditional amnesty, only about one person in eight among this group favors a punitive course of action, such as the imposition of a fine or a jail sentence. Most think draft evaders and deserters should be required to serve a period of time in either nonmilitary or military service.

Ford on Sept. 16 offered conditional amnesty to thousands of Vietnam war draft evaders and deserters who agree to work for up to two years in public service jobs. He also established a nine-member presidential clemency board which will review the cases of those already convicted or punished for desertion or draft evasion.

To determine attitudes toward amnesty, all persons were asked the following question: "Do you think young men who have left the United States to avoid the draft should or should not be allowed to return to this country without some form of punishment?" The findings and trends since 1972:

	Favor	Oppose	No Opin.
Latest	34%	59%	7%
April 1974	34%	58%	8%
1973	29%	60%	4%
1972	36%	60%	4%

Persons who said Vietnam draft evaders and deserters should not be allowed to return without some form of punishment — that is, who oppose unconditional amnesty — were then asked: "Which of these would you favor?"

Require them to serve a period of time in military or nonmilitary service	46%
Make them pay a fine	2%
Send them to jail	5%
No opinion	6%
Total opposed to unconditional amnesty	59%

The results reported today are based on interviews with 1,583 adults, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Sept. 6-9.

Colorful Dawn Signals Bad Day For Wild Horses

By Andrew H. Malcolm
(c) New York Times

Swamp Creek Field, Ore. — The dawn came about 6 a.m., first pink then blazing yellow bands of light that slowly dimmed the stars. Then came the pale blue cloudless sky that stretches for hundreds of miles over this rugged southeastern section of Oregon.

For 94 wild horses ending their cool night's slumber, there was no indication that this day would be any different from the thousands of other days they have freely roamed this land.

But winding their way down from town many miles away was a long caravan of men in machines. They had ropes. And by the time the blue sky gave way again to the stars, seven wild horses were missing from the band.

The controversial roundup — complete with lassos and yelling, albeit radio-equipped, wranglers — had begun.

The roundup is necessary, officials of the Federal Bureau of Land Management said, because the wild horse population is too big to be supported — along with cattle, sheep and other wildlife — by the bood on the available land, especially with livestock producers turning away from expensive feed grains to cheaper grass feeding.

Only Occupants

For centuries these horses, distant descendants of the Spanish mustangs, had the West to themselves. The wild horse has no natural enemy — except man — so his numbers grew to 2 million by 1900.

Settlers captured some to ride. Then more recently, cowhands caught the wild animals to sell for 12 cents a pound to be ground into pet food. With the advent of airplanes, helicopters and motorcycles that became easier. But it led to gory abuses. And by 1970 only 16,000 wild horses remained.

The next year Congress passed the Wild Horse and Burro Act, prohibiting roundups by machine and the commercial sale of these animals.

Two years later in January 1973 near Howe, Idaho, men in helicopters and on snowmobiles ran a herd of wild horses toward a cliff. Twelve dived over and died. Others were caught in rocks. Their throats were slit or their legs cut off with chain saws. Thirty-four were sent to a Nebraska slaughterhourse where a court order saved them. Half died of neglect anyway. There were no prosecutions.

Since 1971, some federal officials claim, the nation's western wild horse population has mushroomed to 42,666, including once-tame horses set free by owners. And the bands are growing 20% a year, they say.

Conservationalist dispute both figures strongly. But under the 1971 law "excess" animals may be rounded up and distributed on a caretaker basis to willing citizens, although there is no enforcement machinery to prevent a sale or abuse.

More Roundups

Under the new law, the Bureau of Land Management will conduct many more roundups throughout the West in the weeks and months ahead. And there are new proposals to again allow the use of vehicles and planes to gather the herds.

There are 2,100 wild horses wandering Oregon's vast rolling range country. From a helicopter the area is a desert — sandy soils, dried brown grasses, few trees of consequence.

But on the ground it is teeming with life — flies, ticks, ants, grasshoppers and rattlesnakes warming themselves on rock outcroppings. It is also an area where motel signs proclaim: "Conveniently remote." Which is one reason this band of horses chose as home Swamp Creek Field, part of a 10,000-acre range here 60 miles from the nearest town.

The federal government owns 3.5 million acres in Harney County, much of it leased by the bureau to 343 ranchers. They say the land is overgrazed.

So recently Christian Vosler, the bureau's district manager, had his men build a corral between the field and the horses' waterhole. "We've got to get the horse population under control," he said.

Before dawn that day, the caravan set out from burns. Columns of thick dust rose into the sky behind the wheels, the first indication to the horses that something was afoot.

The animals could be seen running the ridges. As usual, one mare led three or four others with their colts. The stallion brought up the rear, keeping his "wives" in place.

Spectators Allowed

Near the corral Vosler herded a band of grumbling television cameramen, some reporters and a Humane Society representative into a special blind and issued instructions no movement or conversations. "It doesn't take much to spook them," he said.

Soon in the distance came faint whoops and hollers. Dust in the sky. A slight thundering sound. Then over the hill they came. Perhaps two dozen wild horses galloiping through the rising heat waves, their shaggy manes and tails standing out in the wind.

Some carried the look of too much inbreeding — an oversized head or feet and a slightly dwarfed body. But with each step each horse was reaching to cover the maximum ground.

Released near them were two "Judas horses," tame animals trained to run to the corral, theoretically leading the wild herd with them. Behind and beside the band rode cowhands, yelling and waving to keep the horses "steered" toward the trap.

All went well for the men until near the gate the wild horses summoned a burst of extra energy. They carried no riders' weight, wore no slippery iron shoes and knew the terrain like it was their own backyard.

So, up the opposite hillside they ran, free and clear still.

Twice more that happened with other fresh bands. The tame saddle horses were tiring. the score at lunchtime stood: Wild horses 3, federal government 0.

You'd Be Scairt, Too

Two more attempts failed. "These horses aren't so strange," said Sandy Sanderson, one of the wranglers. "It's like having a dozen 19-foot, one-eyed monsters trying to get you and me into a box. You'd be scairt, too, wouldn't you?"

Then, just before 4 p.m. four wild horses seeking to evade two cowboys ran straight in the gate. Another was roped. Two more were driven in.

Soon the rest of the bands will also be captured and taken to the Harney County fairgrounds. There, the 20 best of the band of 94 horses — 10 mares, six stallions and four colts — will be separated and returned to the range.

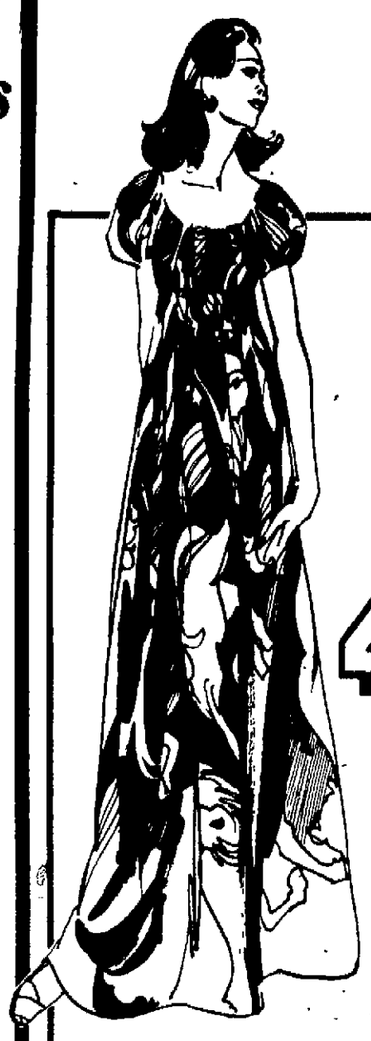

The remaining 74 will be given away. Each individual must promise to care for the animal, but since some of the 60 applications already received come from as far away as Maine and New Jersey and since the law provides for no inspectors, officials admit enforcement will be nonexistent.

If insufficient qualified applicants are found, the remaining wild horses will be taken back out on the range. There, a man muttering soothing sounds will walk up beside the horse. He will shoot it just behind the ear. And the carcass will be left to rot.

Doggone Delicious

Please help me locate a recipe for corn dogs like the ones sold at food stands at the Nebraska State Fair.

—Renay Washtak, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Esther Wyant, Lancaster County home extension agent, claims this recipe for Pronto Pups is doggone good:

Ingredients are 10 to 12 frankfurters, ¾ cup sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, ½ cup yellow corn meal, one teaspoon baking powder and one egg, slightly beaten.

Combine the corn meal, flour, baking powder and salt. Add milk and egg. Stir until smooth. Heat shortening in a deep fat fryer to 425 degrees. Dip the frankfurters into the batter and fry for five minutes or until golden brown.

Biblical History

I have a small edition of the history of the Bible published in 1850. Where can I sell it?

—Thelma Morris, Nelson

ACTION LINE: Both Long's Book Store, 905 O St., and Nebraska Bookstore, 1135 R St., buy and sell antique books.

Write them with a complete description of the book — editor, author's name, publisher, city of printing, copyright date, general condition of the book — and they will determine if an offer can be made.

Do Gooding

Please find the address of the couple in Houston who found their house had been ransacked after coming home from the funeral of their young son. We'd like to send a contribution.

—C. Burkland, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The address for Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cabness is 8903 Hendon, Houston, Texas 77036.

Larry Cabness had one comment when Action Line contacted him at his home: "We almost got completely cleaned out. If anyone has any do-gooding in their hearts and could help out, it would be just wonderful."

Refund Please

I need help in gaining a reimbursement for a magazine subscription I bought as a gift for my grandmother last December. It's almost Christmas 1974 and my grandmother still hasn't received her gift from last Christmas. Please help me get my $14 back from Publishers Service Co. of California.

—Rick L. Johns, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Linda Scretta, manager of Publishers Service Co. of California Inc., Sausalito, Calif., said your order and other correspondence got filed in the wrong drawer and, consequently, ignored.

She promised the $14 refund would be in your mailbox sometime this week.

Busing Dilemma

My children were refused a ride on a Lincoln bus Saturday because the driver said the 15¢ rides for students were available only during the weekdays. They didn't have the money to pay the full fare. We thought the cut rates were in effect whenever the buses were running. Who is right?

—Frenzied Mother, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Richard Frank, Lincoln Transportation System manager, said you have a right to be frenzied, mother. You were right.

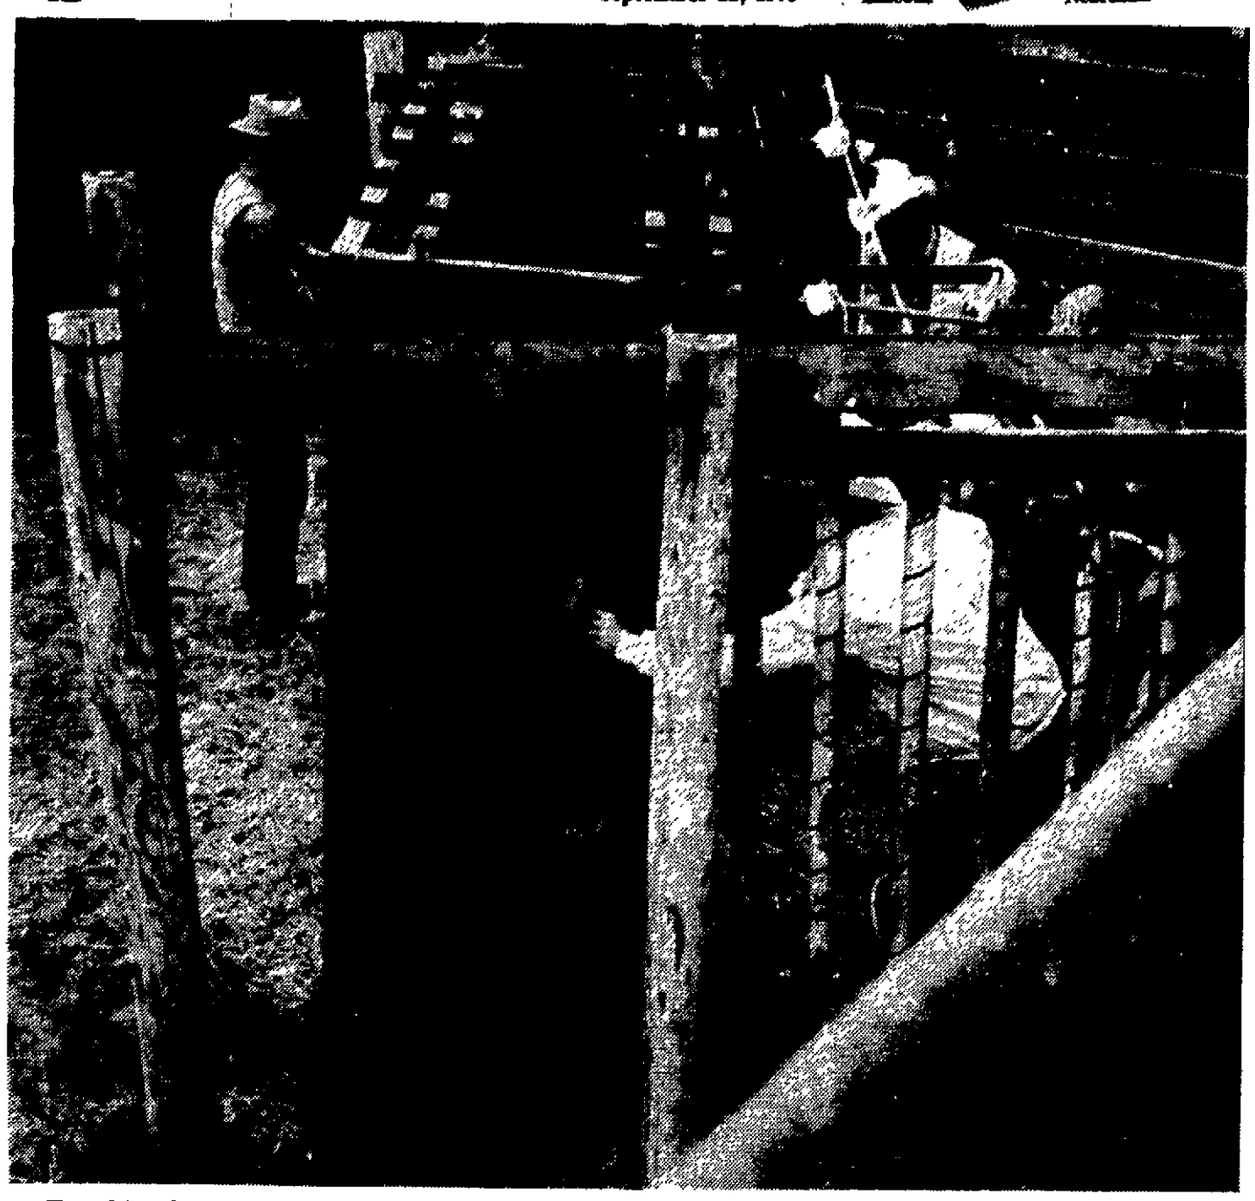

Junior and senior high students from any public or parochial school may ride the city's buses for half price. However, he said the student must show a special identification card plus pay by using a token. Both can be obtained at the school the student attends.

Frank said the cut-rate plan will be in effect throughout the school year and promised that a quick education session for bus drivers about the plan is in the works.

Good News, Dieters

Annual Refuge Sale Set Oct. 2

Do Buffalo Boys Buffalo Buffalos Or Buffalos Buffalo Buffalo Boys?

By Dominick Costello

Watching Dr. Charles Kasselder test buffalo and Longhorn cattle for brucellosis and tuberculosis can give a good idea why many veterinarians would rather run a cat and dog hospital than a large animal practice.

Kasselder, a federal employe, is testing the government's buffalo and Longhorn herds at Fort Niborara near Valentine. The tests are required to prepare some 56 buffalo and 33 Longhorns for the annual refuge sale set Oct. 2.

Kasselder and other federal officials also tested a number of animals destined to be donated to other state, federal and local wildlife projects and exhibits.

The health of the animals is important to ranchers in Nebraska and in any other states to which the animals may be going to.

Millions of Dollars

Efforts to rid the nation of the two diseases have cost the government and farmers millions of dollars. The possibility that the government-owned herds could harbor the disease must not be overlooked.

Records show the Niobrara herd has never been infected with the diseases but there have been some suspects about 10 years ago, due apparently to vaccination.

This made a complete testing program mandatory and some kind of method of handling large numbers of ill-tempered buffalo had to be devised.

Facilities at the old fort are well designed to handle buffalo. Super strength fences, made of telephone poles and planks higher than a man can reach, and a cattle squeeze chute that appears to have been constructed by Paul Bunyon for use in treating his big blue ox Babe are included.

Extra and Extra

The chute is extra large and extra sturdy and is patented by a company in Montana that builds them for buffalo fanciers.

Even so, the chute had to be repaired three times during the morning's work on the big beats.

Buffalo at full growth can weigh over a ton. Some big bulls of cattle breeds reach the same weight but the buffalo has most of his size in his head and shoulders and a 15-year-old bull buffalo is as nimble as a Hereford calf and twice as quick.

Anyone considering raising buffalo for meat ought to watch the experienced buffalo boys (what do you call a cowboy who works buffalo?) collect the huge animals for branding, ear tagging, blood testing and the general chores involved in raising cattle for meat.

At the Same Time

Bob Ellis, foreman at the fort, offered a bit of sage advice to all hands involved in the testing procedure. "Each of you fellows better pick out a place to climb that fence to the catwalk before we start. Make sure two of you don't pick the same spot to climb because if one of these things gets loose we will all be going up at the same time," he said.

Forrest Brooks, one of the buffalo boys, assured this nervous reporter that I would have no trouble getting up the fence if a buffalo broke free of the chute. "You will surprise yourself," he promised.

Mounted horsemen and men in pickups rounded up Longhorns first and buffalo later. The two herds are kept separate because the buffalo have a nasty tendency to gore cattle and each other with a minimum of provocation.

The cattle were spotted, black, white and various shades of red, white and

Poll Leads to Thone, McCollister, Ziebarth

Poll of Nebraska Opinion

• SRI Community Response, Inc. 1974

Male support for Democrat Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox has given him a slight lead over his Republican House foe, Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell, in a poll conducted for The Sunday Journal and Star in the usually Republican Third Congressional District.

Incumbent Republican Reps. Charles Thone and John McCollister are shown holding substantial leads over their Democratic opponents in the SRI Community Response, Inc., telephone poll of 960 voters in all three congressional districts. The poll was conducted by the Lincoln firm between Sept. 9 and Sept. 19.

Ziebarth's six-point lead in the poll makes the Third District race nearly a tossup at the present time. With women and political independents evenly split, Ziebarth has combined strong Democratic support with backing from one of every four Republicans to capture the narrow edge.

The poll was conducted after the contest became a battle of the sexes following Ziebarth's comment inferring there is little place in politics for women. Ziebarth has made a public apology for that statement.

Third District men apparently approve of Ziebarth over Mrs. Smith by 15 percentage points — 49% to 35%. However, another 15% of the men and 14% of the 196 persons surveyed are undecided.

In the First Congressional District, Democratic candidate Hess Dyas has made little headway since April, according to the September poll, in his well-financed, well-publicized walking campaign against incumbent Thone.

Since an early April survey, Dyas has gained only three percentage points in his support. A slight drop in Thone's backing and an increase in the undecided category have allowed Dyas to move from 39 percentage points behind in April to 32 points back in September.

Dyas' campaign committee has made public the results of a poll it commissioned last week. The results differ substantially from those in the poll conducted for the newspaper. The Dyas poll of 435 First District residents allegedly showed Dyas gaining rapidly on Thone, with Thone's support standing under 50% and the incumbent leading Dyas by 18 percentage points.

In the newspaper poll, only Democrats as a group gave their support to the former state Democratic chairman, and then with less than 50% backing. Republicans, on the other hand, firmly backed Thone.

Dyas' tactic of walking the district has apparently helped his candidacy somewhat in the northern part of the district, where Dyas has completed much of his walk, the Democratic challenger has cut Thone's support to barely 50%.

While McCollister holds a substantial lead over his Democratic challenger, Douglas County Commissioner Daniel Lynch, it appears Lynch may be within striking distance of the incumbent.

McCollister's support is shown by the poll to hover at the 50% level in the Omaha-dominated Second District. Lynch has strong blue collar and youth support in his campaign. Among male voters, Lynch is running virtually even with McCollister, but women have given their support predominantly to McCollister.

It appears that Lynch will have to win over substantial numbers of independent voters, who are now giving most of their support to McCollister, to narrow the 15-percentage-point lead McCollister holds.

Following are the questions asked respondents and a breakdown of their responses. There were 437 respondents in the First District, 327 in the Second and 196 in the Third. At a 95% confidence level, the potential margin of statistical error is plus or minus 4.6 percentage points for total results in the First District, 5.4 in the Second and 6.9 in the Third.

Station Near Brownville Is Tested

'No Lines Cracked' at Nuclear Unit

The Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville has completed a test ordered by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) for possible cracks in cooling system pipes, according to Leo Lessor, station superintendent.

The order was received from the AEC Thursday, Lessor said, and since the station was being taken off-line for an unrelated test, no loss of electrical output resulted.

"We shut down Thursday night for a test from a 75% output level," he said. "While we were down, we got an inspection team in, and an ultrasonic test showed no cracks in the lines."

The AEC ordered 21 of the 50 atomic reactors producing commercial electric power in the U.S. to close down within 60 days to determine if cracks are developing in cooling system pipes.

The order apparently resulted because of failures found in quarter-inch thick stainless steel walls of pipes in two plants in Illinois and one in Connecticut.

Lessor said in an interview Saturday afternoon that the three plants were among the older nuclear plants in the nation. He estimated they are three to four years old. Cooper has been in operation less than a year.

The cracks were "probably caused by fatigue in joint welds," according to Lessor, who said he talked to the affected plant superintendents.

The ultrasonic test showed no cracks in the 24 welds checked in the boiling water reactor at the Cooper station, Lessor said.

The New York Times reported Saturday that Carl J. Hocevar, author of one of the AEC's basic nuclear power plan safety analysis methods, was resigning.

According to the Times, Hocevar wrote in his letter of resignation that "in spite of the soothing reassurances the AEC gives to the uninformed, misled public, unresolved quesions about nuclear power safety are so grave that the U.S. should consider a complete halt to nuclear power plant construction."

Hocevar is one of several safety research experts who have resigned recently from the commission's Idaho Safety Reserach Center, the Times article stated.

The safety researcher said he plans to work with nuclear reactor critics, the Times reported, to inform the public that the commission is using "wholly unacceptable methods to judge the dangers of reactors."

Cooper Supt. Lessor said Saturday that nothing has happened to change his mind about the safety of nuclear power.

He said no unexpected problems have developed at the Cooper plant in the year it has been in operation, saying: "We don't have any problems." The plant should be back in operation by Monday, Lessor said.

Following is a list of facilities affected by the shutdown order:

Duane Arnold, Iowa Electric Light and Power.

Big Rock Point, Consumers Power of Michigan.

Browns Ferry No. 1 and 2, Tennessee Valley Authority, Alabama.

Cooper Station, Nebraska Public Power District.

Poll: Douglas-Morrison Race Tossup; Undecided Voters Hold Victory Key

• SRI Community Response, Inc. 1974

Undecided Nebraska voters hold the key to who will become the state's next attorney general, according to a poll conducted by a Lincoln firm this month for The Sunday Journal and Star.

Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas took a slight lead over former Gov. Frank Morrison — 46% to 40% — in the latest sampling of voter preference. The pollster warned, however, that the race is still well within the tossup range.

A similar poll conducted about five months ago for The Sunday Journal and Star showed that Douglas and Morrison, who went on to win their respective political primary races, were dead even.

Douglas, the Republican candidate, inched toward support from half of those surveyed in the latest poll, but Democrat Morrison still received the nod from four of every 10 poll respondents.

The survey was taken by telephone between Sept. 9 and Sept. 19 by SRI Community Response, Inc. The statewide sample was composed of 960 Nebraskans.

Results show almost 15% of the registered voters questioned still in the undecided camp — more than enough to swing the election to either candidate by Nov. 5.

The comparable preprimary poll brought an undecided response of slightly more than that 15% level, indicating Nebraskans are still watching the race after thousands of handshakes and a few political letters from the best-known sports personality in the state.

Bob Devaney, athletic director and former head football coach at the University of Nebraska, is supporting Douglas. Devaney wrote some former UNL football players now in Omaha to enlist their aid.

Poll of Nebraska Opinion

Word of the political letters leaked out just before the latest poll, but there is little in the survey results to indicate whether either candidate was helped or hurt. If any impact was shown, the slight edge for Douglas might indicate Devaney's support appeals to Nebraskans.

Morrison, despite his 68 years, still enjoys support among students, the 18-24 age group and the predictable backing of Democrats. The Omahan, now Douglas County public defender, had similar majority backing among those categories in the preprimary poll.

Douglas, who is 46, has predictable majority support among Republicans, high-income Nebraskans earning more than $15,000 annually, white collar workers and Lincolnites. The latter group prefers the home-town candidate 6-in-10 strong.

The pollster, however, warns that statistical error in categories could cover a wider range than in the overall survey sample.

The statistical error possibility in that overall sample is plus or minus 3.2%, meaning the race definitely is well within the tossup designation as the campaign forges on toward its final weeks.

Douglas and Morrison are vying for the spot being vacated by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, a Republican, who is retiring.

Here is the question asked in the latest survey and the breakdown of responses:

Spanning Time, Space

Fine fall weather and a country bridge may bring back happy memories as space and time travel along together in scenic Nebraska.

New York Attorney Is Suing Nixon

'Shake Up the System,' Rothblatt Urges

By Jana Miller

New York attorney Henry B. Rothblatt likes to take on bureaucracy when it's "stupid, stubborn or wrong."

Maybe that's why he agreed in July of 1972 to defend the four Miami, Fla., men charged with the break-in of Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington's fashionable Watergate.

Or maybe that's why he still represents James W. McCord in civil proceedings stemming from the Watergate break-in.

Or, better yet, maybe that's why he, himself, is suing former President Nixon and the Committee for the Reelection of the President.

Rothblatt was in Lincoln this weekend to address a meeting of the Nebraska Chiropractic Physicians Assn. at the Hilton Hotel.

Described by those who know him as flamboyant and courageous, Rothblatt urged the chiropractors "to take an innovative and unorthodox approach toward changing the status quo . . . to shake up the system."

But first, the peppy New Yorker with a thin mustache and wearing a monogramed shirt told about the times he has shaken the system in his 30 years of criminal law practice.

The last time he shook the system was about six months ago when he filed suit against the toppled president and the reelection committee for $117,000 in upaid legal fees owed to Rothblatt for defending the four Miami men and McCord.

In the unsettled suit, Rothblatt also charged former President Nixon and the committee with "malicious interference of a contract" stemming from the four Miami mens' decision to plead guilty and Rothblatt's dismissal from the case.

Rothblatt "wanted the case tried and wanted the details fully aired" and he didn't want any part of the guilty pleas.

In an interview, Rothblatt admitted that he knew he was involved in "a pretty historic case" after his first meeting with the four Miami men in a Washington, D.C., jail.

"Then, I knew this case would have to really rock a few events," Rothblatt reminisced. "But I didn't think it would bring a President down."

Now, he views the resulting events from two perspectives.

As McCord's defense attorney and the former attorney for the Miami men, Rothblatt said he is pleased with President Ford's full, free and absolute pardon of former President Nixon.

The Nixon pardon, he says, clears the way for the eventual pardons of his client McCord, as well as the four Miami men and all others convicted in Watergate related matters.

"The low men on the totem poll "can't be punished if the "top man" is pardoned, the attorney explained.

"There's no doubt in my mind," Rothblatt said, "that those who have been convicted thus far will be pardoned too."

Henry Rothblatt

But speaking as a citizen, Rothblatt said Ford's pardon of Nixon was "a politically bad move that clearly demonstrates the lack of equal justice under law in America."

In Rothblatt's words, "Gordon Liddy is in jail. John Dean is in jail. Chuck Colson is in jail. The President has been cleared. That's unfair."

Rotthblatt's current client, McCord, was a security coordinator for the Nixon campaign. He is free on appeal after being sentenced to one to five years for burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy in the Watergate break-in.

The four Miami men with anti-Castro leanings, Bernard L. Barker, Virgilio Gonzalez, Eugenio Martinez and Frank Sturgis, are either free on appeal or have been paroled.

On a broader subject, Rothblatt said the American judicial system is handicapped by "incompetent judges" who have been elected or appointed not on the basis of their professional ability but because of their good political connections.

He accused judges of failing to understand human behavior and human weaknesses.

And he broadened the charges of incompetency to include others involved in the judicial system including probation and correction officers.

"The system is so entrenched with incompetency," Rothblatt said, "that it would take a revolution to clean it out."

In part, he said, the incompetency is the fault of the legal profession which "is married to precedent" and refuses to deviate from the accumulated past.

But such incompetency, he said, also enables lawyers like himself to challenge the system to "take on bureaucracy."

Turning more specifically to the Watergate issue, Rothblatt said political lawyers like the Ehrlichmans, the Haldemans, the Deans and the Segrettis discredited the legal profession.

"They sacrificed their principles and souls for political expediency," Rothblatt said.

But trial lawyers, he added, stood out, understood their responsibilities and refused to "prostitute their principles."

Before Rothblatt's involvement in Watergate matters, he shook up the system somewhat in 1969 when he defended eight Green Berets charged with murdering a double agent in Vietnam.

He also won an acquittal for Col. Oran Henderson, the brigade commander of Lt William Calley, in one of the last My Lai trials.

In addition, he has authored numerous books on criminal court procedures with noted attorney F. Lee Bailey.

As Lincoln attorney John Stevens Berry, once affiliated with Rothblatt's New York firm, put it. "Rothblatt is courageous and generous. He taught me an awful lot about the nobility of the profession of practicing law."

LES-LGH Attorney Hiring Only Side Issue?

2 Boards' Semiautonomy Said Disturbing Council

The question of the exact status of the attorney hired by the Lincoln Electric System (LES) and Lincoln General Hospital (LGH) boards apparently is only the surface topic of a deeper question.

City Council members confirmed in interviews that the real question underlying the discussion of the attorney is the semiautonomous nature of the two boards, and more specifically the LES Administrative Board.

Councilman Max Denney, who raised the attorney issue, said his principal concern is whether the appointed boards are as "responsive" as they should be to total city needs.

What bothers him, said Denney, is for appointed board members to make decisions and then have the citizens hold the elected Council members responsible.

"Somebody (on the LES board) said they didn't give a hoot about the political considerations of decisions made by the LES board," said Denney.

"But I think every decision made affecting citizens has political implications. And since Council members are politicians, they care."

Asked what specific action of the LES board prompted his concern, Denney said he could not cite any action.

"It is just my basic philosophy of government that the ones directly responsible to the people ought to have the direct say of how government is run," he said.

Councilwomen Helen Boosalis and Sue Bailey also said they question whether semiautonomous boards for LES and Lincoln General are the best form of government.

However, none of the three said they had any specific complaints about the conduct or decisions of either board, nor any complaints about Norman Krivosha, who serves as attorney for both boards.

The question of a semiautonomous board to run LES was debated at great length four years ago when the issue was put to the voters.

In May 1970, a proposal to create an 11-member, completely autonomous board that included two Council members was put on the ballot and lost by a narrow margin.

In November 1970, a proposal to create a nine-member, semiautonomous board without Council members was put on the ballot and was approved by a 5-3 margin.

The only clear opposition to either proposal came from the Lincoln League of Women Voters, which contended such boards violate the concept of the strong mayor form of government in Lincoln.

Proponents of autonomous and semiautonomous boards contended they are needed to relieve certain governmental functions from the political pressures of City Hall.

And in the case of LES, it was contended that a part-time City Council lacked the time and expertise to oversee the daily operations of an electric system.

Denney said he would like to see an ordinance requiring two Council members set on the LES board, just as two Council members are now on the Lincoln General board.

"I feel that would allow more Council input and we (Council members) would be in a position to know more if Council members were on the board," said Denney.

Mrs. Bailey said she is a strong believer that Council members benefit by attending meetings of various city boards. But, she said, she's not convinced that Council members need to be voting members of such boards.

"I do not think it would be a corrective measure to put Council members on the LES board," said Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. Boosalis pointed out that she favored the May 1970 proposal for two Council members to be members of the LES board. But subsequently, she said, she supported the proposal approved by voters, which eliminated Council members on the LES board. And she still adheres to that position, she said, although she would not oppose a move now to add Council members to the LES board.

Both Mrs. Boosalis and Mrs. Bailey said they felt no qualms about raising the issue of the semiautonomous nature of the LES board at this time for the specific reason that there are no problems at this time.

Mrs. Boosalis said she feels the LES board's concerns should include not only the city's electric users, but also the concerns of the city as a whole.

Her principal concern, she said, is that even semiautonomous boards may, in time, become essentially autonomous boards by practice, if not by law.

Under city ordinance, the City Council retains control of both LES electric rates and budgets. The Council also can veto any action by the LES board or, if it chooses, abolish the board entirely.

Denney said he does not think rate and budget control over LES is adequate control of LES decisions and actions.

G. V. Nelson Is Installed By Kiwanians

G. Vincent Nelson

G. Vincent Nelson of Lincoln was installed Saturday night as governor of the Nebraska-Iowa district of Kiwanis.

Nelson will lead the 164 clubs and more than 7,000 members in his district for a year.

He was installed by Wes Bartlett, Algona, Ia., past president of Kiwanis International. Nelson is a member of the downtown Lincoln Kiwanis club.

Marcia Gilbert, Jeff Vogler Well Known

Guide Rock Folks Perplexed by Deaths

By Dean Terrill
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Guide Rock — "It's got to be proved to me before I'll ever be convinced that Jeff had anything to do with Marcia's death."

Tight-lipped and bitter, 18-year-old Ronald Duffy seemed to be reflecting the sentiment of this entire Webster County community.

Friday, Lincoln police and the State Patrol were reviewing information to determine whether there is any relationship between the death of Marcia Gilbert and the death of Jeff Vogler.

Like other Guide Rock youths his age, young Duffy was a close acquaintance of both Marcia and Jeff. He was having difficulty Saturday grasping that both are dead.

"In a town this size, you grow kind of close to everybody you've gone to school with," he mused. "Those two were friends like the rest of us, but that's all."

Friends, the general citizenry and authorities alike here are perplexed about whether the deaths of the two popular young people are related. The body of Miss Gilbert, her skull fractured by an unknon weapon, was discovered 10 miles southwest of here Friday afternoon. Less than 24 hours earlier, UNL student Vogler was found shot to death at his Lincoln residence, a rifle between his knees.

"At this point, we have nothing to connect the two deaths, but of course the investigation continues," said Webster County Atty. Jerry McDole. "The next step is to try to find the weapon which killed the girl."

According to McDole, Vogler told investigators earlier in the week that Miss Gilbert had driven him to his parents' home early last Sunday following a farmhouse party. McDole said a third individual may have been present, but this is uncertain.

The party itself has been the subject of much discussion in this town of 440 ever since Miss Gilbert failed to return home Sunday morning. Staged at a small frame house four miles south of Guide Rock, it reportedly was attended by at least 30 youths from several communities.

Gilbert, Vogler Services Set At Guide Rock

Guide Rock (AP) — Funeral services will be held here Sunday and Monday for two Guide Rock teen-agers who graduated from high school just a year apart.

Services for Jeff Vogler, 17, son of Robert Vogler, prominent Guide Rock banker, will be held Sunday. Marcia Gilbert, also 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gilbert, will be buried Monday.

Miss Gilbert had been missing since early last Sunday morning, when she told her parents she was going to drive two persons home following a party.

Miss Gilbert's fully clothed body was found Friday afternoon in a ditch along a Webster County road about eight miles southeast of Red Cloud.

A coroner's inquest ruled Saturday that the apparent cause of her death was a skull fracture and that the wound was inflicted by "a large, heavy, unidentified object," according to Webster County Atty. Jerry McDole.

McDole said the inquest ruled that death occurred after 3:30 a.m. Sept. 15.

"It would appear from the evidence that death was caused by a person or persons unknown and that the evidence would rule out an accident or suicide," McDole added.

McDole said a full autopsy report will not be forthcoming for several days, possibly a week.

Vogler died Thursday in his Lincoln apartment, apparently a self-inflicted gunshot wound. However, investigators have not yet determined whether Vogler's death was accidental or self-inflicted.

Wiggins said the object used in Miss Gilbert's death has not been recovered and that there are no suspects in the case.

On the old Lazy V Ranch, owned by Vogler's bank president father, Robert Vogler, the house is occupied by a teen-age employe. According to some residents who asked not to be identified, it was a gathering place for teen-agers even before its present tenant moved in several months ago.

There is much conjecture among townspeople that at least some parties there included drinking, although McDole would not confirm this. He did say that "there is no evidence that drugs have been involved."

One youth who acknowledged attending last Saturday's party said it was "just a birthday party for someone and nothing unusual happened." He said such "special occasion" parties are held at different places on an irregular schedule, varying from once a month to "perhaps every three months."

McDole confirmed that a male friend of Miss Gilbert was questioned about her disappearance before her body was discovered. He said it is believed that person did not attend the party.

One of the few Guide Rock residents willing to speak for attribution, veteran barber Ray Etherton, said he is acquainted with "all the young people around," including the two victims of the tragedy.

It is inconceivable, he added, that any of them could be involved "in anything more serious than opening a keg of beer.

"Maybe some kids were having a party all right, but they are all from nice families and they're all good and smart," said the barber, 73. "And when you lose two of 'em like we just did — well, it leaves the whole community with a terrible empty feeling."

Way to Handle Buffalo Is Carefully

brown. They looked vaguely like someone's mixed breed milk cow herd except for the huge horns.

There was some difficulty in getting the huge horns through the chute but there were no real difficulties in testing them, checking ear tags and getting a sample of blood.

The buffalo were an entirely different matter. They moved much faster than the cattle and seem to move as a single fluid unit of motion of immense power. Their herd instinct is evidently tremendously strong.

Once the men had the buffalo safely inside the gigantic corral system they dismounted and began to separate the buffalo, using gates that can be operated from catwalks above the corral.

Darned Female

The safety of that arrangement was in doubt when one huge female tried to join the workmen on the catwalk.

Each animal was separated from his or her buddies and allowed to enter a long alleyway that leads to the cattle chute. A huge steel gate made of welded pipe, wrapped with tape to protect the buffalo, prevents escape from the chute.

Most of the buffalo crashed headlong into the gate. This halted them momentarily, allowing the five-man chute crew to operate the levers and ropes that secured the animal so it could be checked, have its brand read, blood sample taken and a shiny new ear tag inserted.

Getting the ear tag in is a fairly hazardous affair. The buffalo has small ears when compared to a cow's. They are apallingly close to their huge horns and in the chute usually between the horn and the steel chute, providing an opportunity for crushed hands.

'Very Carefully'

Kasselder said the secret to successful treatment and testing of any animal is to secure it. "Both the animal and the people working on it are safer then," he observed

Ellis described the way the buffalo were handled prior to the construction of the corrals and chute in two words.

"Very carefully."

Time to Nominate Honor Farm Family

The 29th annual Nebraska Honor Farm Family Awards Program begins today with an invitation for nominations of farm and ranch families who typify the best in Nebraska agriculture.

Each year the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star, in cooperation with the University of Nebraska, selects a farm or ranch family to be Nebraska's Honor Farm Family.

This annual program has received statewide and national recognition in focusing public attention in agriculture in Nebraska. Honor Farm Families have come from all areas of the state, representing various types and sizes of farm operations.

Nomination Blank

For the convenience of readers who wish to nominate a Nebraska farm or ranch family for the 1974 award, a nomination blank and complete rules are printed on Page 4C of today's Sunday Journal and Star.

The nominations can be made by anyone, including family members, relatives, neighbors, friends and business acquaintances.

Each year many nominations are made by city residents, anxious to recognize the contributions made by rural families to community activities.

Nominations will close Oct. 18. Nominations for the 1974 Nebraska Honor Farm Family Award are made to the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star, Nebraska Honor Farm Family Award, Box 81689, Lincoln, Neb. 68501.

Judges selecting previous Honor Farm Families have been interested in the family's success in the business of farming or ranching, the ability of the family to make their rural home a good place to live, and the family's contribution to the community and participation in rural and urban relations.

Three or More

Any bona fide Nebraska rural family of three or more members is eligible.

Throughout the Honor Farm Family Awards Program the winning families have been characterized by their leadership in church, school and community activities.

Upon final selection the 1974 winning family will be notified by telephone and letter and will receive a $500 cash award and an engraved plaque from the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star.

Pioneer Village Founder Given Sheldon Award

While most Nebraskans stayed glued to the tube for the latest in Big Red news Saturday, about 150 persons attending the State Historical Society annual meeting cheered for a different victory.

In the spotlight was Harold Warp, 71, founder of Pioneer Village in Minden. He came to the meeting in Lincoln to accept the second Addison E. Sheldon Memorial Award.

The award, presented to a group or individual for outstanding achievement in the preservation or interpretation of Nebraska history, was received by the Brownville Historical Society last year.

Warp, born and reared in Nebraska, began collecting historical buildings and artifacts in the late 1940s and in 1953, opened Pioneer Village in Minden.

Harold Warp

The collector said nearly 150,000 visit the popular tourist stop yearly.

"This brings a lot of revenue into Nebraska," he said.

Warp, who has given 200 of 2,000 shares in the Village to the Nebraska State Historical Society Foundation, said he can't place a worth on the Village.

"Once a piece is placed in the Village, it has no worth. It can't be sold," he said. "It should stay here in Nebraska for people to see forever."

Warp said plans are to keep adding more to the museum. "But no contributions are accepted," he said. "That would be an awful mess if we accepted contributions."

In other Historical Society activities, Oliver Knight, University of Texas, was named recipient of the James L. Sellers Memorial Award.

O'Neill Says Nixon Pardon Boosted Democrats' Races

Omaha (UPI) — House Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., said Saturday President Ford's pardon of former President Nixon gained the Democratic party 20 House seats in the November election.

O'Neill, in Omaha to boost the candidacy of Daniel C. Lynch, Second District Democratic congressional candidate, said the Democrats' polls in April showed they would gain 50 seats. That figure fell to 20 after Nixon's resignation, he said, but jumped back to 40 after the pardon was announced.

O'Neill said the Democrats had closely polled 45 districts in which the margin of victory by the 1972 winner was 4% less.

He said 16 districts were represented by Democrats and that all 16 were secure. Of the 29 districts represented by Republicans, he said, the Democrats stand to gain 27.

O'Neill, a veteran of 22 years in the House, said the honeymoon between Ford and the public was "going to end anyway," irregardless of the Nixon pardon.

"Inflation is gaining, the economy is bad the people who were around Nixon are now around Ford," O'Neill said." It's time for Ford to get a new broom and sweep out."

Among those he said should be swept out were Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and other cabinet members.

O'Neill said the 93rd Congress has risen in public esteem since polls taken last spring, adding "Historians will rate the 93rd as better than average and just below excellent."

He said if the Watergate scandal had not occurred, Congress and Nixon would be embroiled in a battle over erosion of congressional powers under the former president.

"The nation was drifting away from its tripod of power," he said. "There is no question that the power of Congress had diminished."

O'Neill said impeachment of Nixon is a dead issue, although "there is great concern over possession of the Presidential tapes." He predicted Congress will move to assure the tapes will be "restored to the public."

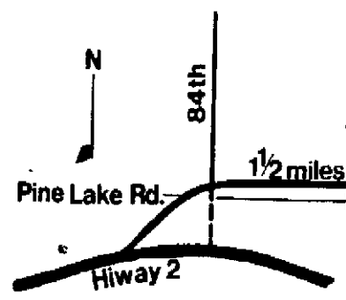

O'Neill was flanked by Gov. J. J. Exon and former Gov. Frank Morrison at a news conference. He was to appear at a luncheon and then go to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for another campaign appearance.

Retired Teachers To Meet in Kearney

Dr. J. Cloyd Miller, president-elect of the National Retired Teachers Assn. (NRTA) will speak at the Nebraska state RTA convention in Kearney Friday.

Dr. Miller, Albuquerque, N.M., was president of Western New Mexico University prior to his retirement in 1962. He spent 35 years as a teacher, principal and superintendent of schools in the New Mexico school system.

Participating in the convention will be Alma Ashley, Lincoln, president, Nebraska state RTA; Florence Spearman, Lincoln, vice president, state RTA; Dorothy Beatty, Grand Island, state director, RTA; Mildred Moore, Grand Island, NRTA associate vice president, Area VI; Kenneth Steinmiller, Lincoln, director, Nebraska Retirement Systems, and Dr. Earlyon Lamberty, Lincoln, liaison with Nebraska State Education Assn.

NRTA with its sister orgnization, the American Association of Retired Persons, is the nation's largest organization dedicated to improving the opportunities of retired persons.

It encourages older persons to remain active in community and public affairs, provides them with legislative representation at all levels of government, and sponsors services to help them stretch fixed retirement incomes.

Linda Deasey Commissioned By 'Grandpa'

Omaha — Brig. Gen. Robert B. Allen (U.S. Army, Ret.) traveled 1,500 miles to see his granddaughter, Linda Diane Deasey, commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army. He received a special treat when he arrived in Omaha, because he was given the opportunity to commission his granddaughter.

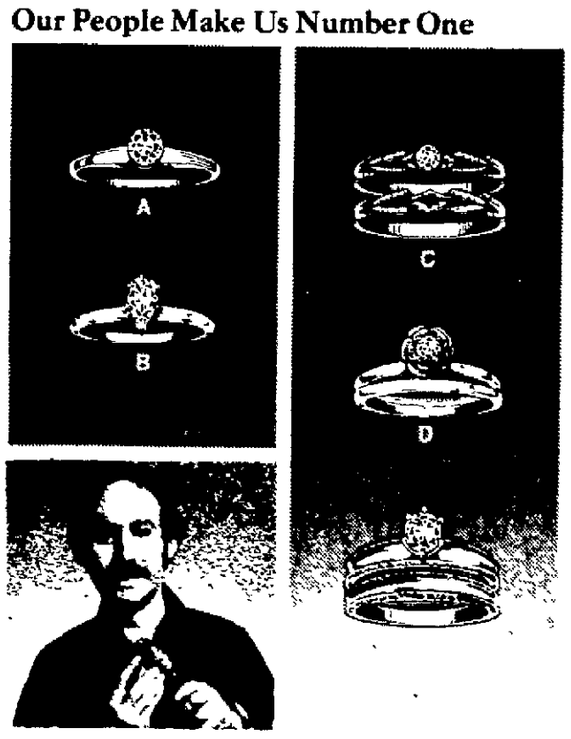

Lt. Deasey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Deasey, Omaha. Deasey is chief controller in the Transportation Division of the Union Pacific Railroad. Gen. Allen lives in Conewango Valley, N.Y.

Lt. Deasey is a 1974 graduate of the University of Nebraska in Lincoln where she majored in psychology.

Hello! Hello! Aren't You There?

Kansas Phone Firm, Operators, to Be Missed

FORD, Kan. (AP) — If the 160 owners of the Ford Mutual Telephone Co. took a notion to crank up their magnetoes and call their operator Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Chrystal Freeman wasn't necessarily there as she almost always has been for more than 21 years.

"Maybe my little dog and I will just go for a ride," Mrs. Freeman said.

"Wait a minute. Now I'm back."

It was a busy morning and most of the calls coming through the ancient switchboard were for Mrs. Freeman. Callers wanted to tell her how much they would miss her when Ford Mutual went out of business at noon.

"I'm a little mixed up, knowing I'll miss it but relieved, too," said the 63-year-old widow.

"Wait a minute. Now I'm back."

Mrs. Freeman probably will be around Sunday to take some calls on the still workable switchboard, but not necessarily; and probably on Monday workmen from the United Telephone Association will be dismantling it.

United's new $150,000 system, with the latest in dial telephones and underground cables officially went into service with 185 customers in Ford Mutual's territory. Only two more old systems like it still operate in Kansas.

Since she became manager and chief operator of Ford Mutual on April 1, 1953, Chrystal Freeman has been no farther from the town of 220 than the 17 miles northwest to Dodge City or 10 miles southeast to Bucklin in southwest Kansas. Most were quick trips while her part-time relief operators were filling in.

"Three of my granddaughters got married a year ago this summer and I had to miss all those weddings," she said.

"Wait a minute. Now I'm back."

Officially, Ford Mutual has been open for business from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. daily; but Mrs. Freeman has answered the off-hours alarm buzzer thousands of times.

"My husband did some line work and helped on the switchboard until he died 4½ years ago, and since then I've had it alone except for the relief operators and Mickey, my white toy poodle who won't let me out of his sight," Mrs. Freeman said.

"Wait a minute. Now I'm back."

Mrs. Mamie Hartshorn, Mrs. Grace Leighty and Mrs. Hazel Rinehart hve worked two days a week on a rotation which gave Mrs. Freeman two hours of relief from the switchboard in the morning and three in the afternoon.

It and the office are in the front room of a small threeroom house which Ford Mutual has owned but now belongs to Mrs. Freeman.

"I'll go on living here", she said. "I'll make some changes when they get the equipment out. And it will take me some time to close up the books.

"Wait a minute. Now I'm back."

Mrs. Marguerite Patterson, whose father was one of the 75 members who founded Ford Mutual in 1906, stopped by one day this past week to exchange memories about the old days when as many as a dozen families might be on one rural telephone line.

"The telephone was our main source of entertainment," Mrs. Patterson said. "Harry Hartshorn used to ring a number; and, of course, we'd all listen in. He'd organize a quartet or wheel up his Victrola so we could hear his new records."

Mrs. Patterson said that Mrs. Freeman in more than 21 years had become familiar with every family on the system.

"She has helped us out in many a fix," said Mrs. Patterson. "Many a time she served as information center during blizzards and other emergencies. The new service will be nice. But it won't tell you that there is no use in trying to telephone your sister because she just drove down Main Street headed for Dodge."

Mrs. Freeman recalled Saturday that tears came to Mrs. Patterson's eyes.

"I talked to her and cheered her up," Mrs. Freeman said.

"Wait a minute. Now I'm back."

Members of Ford Mutual paid 75 cents a month for their service, a rate in effect since 1919. The big hitch was you were responsible for maintaining your own line. Some of them reached 10 miles from town, and in recent years it had become almost impossible for subscribers to do necessary maintenance.

It was impossible, also, to dial a call direct into Ford. A battery of Southwestern Bell and United Telephone operators who tried to get into Mrs. Freeman's switchboard from Kansas City on Saturday made a 15-minute job out of it.

"Good land, I don't see that I'm better off," said Mrs. Ada Plattner, who noted that her $4.50 monthly charge will be half of what she paid for a full year's service from Ford Mutual.

Melvin Tuxhorn, a United Telephone technician, was putting her new telephone in at the time.

"Sonny, you'll have to show me how to use that thing," said Mrs. Plattner, who is 84.

Tuxhorn was a lot more interested in her old wall telephone.

"I know where you can sell it for $200," he said.

"I just believe I'll keep it," she said.

Mrs. Esther Barngrover was another recent visitor to Mrs. Freeman's domain, and she remembers the days when her father was manager and she and her twin sister were growing up in the little house.

"We ate in here, we worked in here, we slept in here," Mrs. Barngrover said. "We liked the general ring — one long ring on all the lines — particularly when it was a fire. We were always glad when the chautauqua came to town, because then we'd give a genaral ring to spead the new and get free tickets for the show."

When noon came Saturday the new system still wasn't quite ready.

At 12:58, Marshall Goff, United Telephone's area manager at dodge city, suggested that Mrs. Freeman make the last call on the old switchboard.

She asked Dodge City to dial her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Gaul, a secretary for General Electric in Denver. No answer.

Mrs. Freeman's other children are Eugene Freeman, a truck driver at Wichita, Kan., and Mrs. Marion Kyle, a registered state nurse at Flagler, Colo.

At 1:20, you still needed operator assistance to reach Mrs. Freeman's new dial telephone from Kansas City.

Nebraska Resources

By Harold Simmons

There may be a very simple way for the Lincoln City Council to find out quickly how serious is the small group of businessmen pushing for continuation of a downtown steam heating system that would use garbage as fuel.

Council members can easily determine whether the businessmen are serious in wanting to (A) Continue their free ride by having electric users pay part of their heating bills, or (B) create, as their attorney indicated, a steam heating system for which customers pay the total bill.

The way for the Council to find out which route the downtown businessmen are really interested in is what public power industry people call the "take or pay" or "hell or high water" contract.

Signers of such contracts agree to pay a percentage of total construction and operating costs of a facility, regardless of whether the facility ever produces anything.

The Lincoln Electric System (LES) has just such a contract with the Nebraska Public Power District involving Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville.

LES is committed to pay 12.5% of the construction and operating costs of Cooper. If the plant produces electricity (and it is), LES gets 12.5% of the power. If the plant breaks down or for some other reason doesn't produce electricity, LES still pays 12.5% of construction and operating costs.

Signed Before Construction

Such contracts are signed before a facility is built. In the case of LES, the final construction cost of Cooper is more than twice what it was estimated to cost when LES signed the take-or-pay contract.

One individual suggested downtown businessmen be offered a 25- or 30-year take-or-pay contract for either a new central steam heating system or to refurbish the existing K St. power plant.

The reason for the suggestion was a comment by J. Taylor Greer, representing 10 downtown businesses, who submitted a letter to the City Council last week asking that a public hearing be held on the long-smoldering issue of LES plan to phase out the ancient downtown steam heating system in 1976.

Greer said purchasers of steam heat would expect to pay the construction and operating costs of a new steam plant or to modify the K St. plant. In either case, Greer suggested burning garbage as a supplementary fuel.

If the businessmen are dead serious about Greer's proposal and are not looking for continued taxpayer subsidy on their heating bills, said one individual, they should be willing to sign a take-or-pay contract, with total costs spread among the signers.

Proved and Feasible?

Greer also told Council members in his letter that building a new steam plant or modifying the K St. power plant to use garbage as a supplementary fuel is now "proved and feasible."

That is a fact in the sense that steam- and electricity-producing plants that burn garbage as a supplementary fuel are in operation in some cities.

But that "fact" flies in the face of engineering studies of Lincoln's situation — including one study financed by downtown businessmen — which said flatly that a self-supporting steam heating system for downtown Lincoln is economically unfeasible.

And those engineering studies were conducted before fuel prices started climbing and without figuring in the added costs of a system that utilizes garbage as fuel.

In short, the engineering studies said there are only two ways a central steam heating system could fly in Lincoln: (A) it must be subsidized by taxpayers or electric ratepayers by some method or (B) businessmen must be willing to pay the true cost of the steam heat service when it would be cheaper to convert to individual heating systems.

Chambers: DeCamp Is Silly and Muddling

Sen. Ernest Chambers, Omaha, has sent stinging letters to his colleagues in the Legislature on the conduct of Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh.

The letter stemmed from a walkout by DeCamp during a hearing of the Legislature's Government Committee, chaired by Chambers, in Omaha last Monday.

DeCamp, in walking out of the meeting, objected to Chambers' questioning of a Douglas County deputy sheriff.

Chambers, a petition candidate for governor, told his fellow senators in the letter DeCamp's "dramtic and highly amusing departure is suspect."

The Omaha senator said DeCamp is a "silly little man who is attempting to be a slick politician."

Chambers said DeCamp has the "knack of tumbling into an issue anywhere along the line, getting confused, hopelessly muddling everything and then elaborating on the issue as if he were Moses announcing the 10 Commandments."

Now in Seoul

Seoul, South Korea (AP) — Richard Sneider, the new American ambassador to South Korea, presented his credentials to President Chung Hee Park Wednesday in a ceremony at the presidential residence.

Nonbeneficiary Turns First Dirt on North Oak Dam

Valparaiso — Ivan Nord eagerly joined other citizens and officials Saturday in turning the first shovels of dirt to mark the start of construction on a flood-control structure in the North Oak Creek Subwatershed.

But Nord was in a somewhat different position from others at the groundbreaking ceremony, since the dirt he was digging was from his own farm.

The first of 12 floodwater-retarding structures and four grade-stabilization structures slated for the subwatershed will be built on Nord's farm, a mile southwest of Valparaiso on a tributary of North Oak Creek.

Scheduled for completion next spring is a dam about 800 feet long and 40 feet high. It will hold a reservoir with a normal pool size of about 15 surface acres.

Nord said building the structure will cover about 10 acres of cropland and four acres of pasture. And, he noted, the structure will not give him any flood-protection benefits.

The reason for his willing participation in the project, said Nord, is that it will benefit the community and also help soil conservation that will benefit future generations.

The dam on the Nord farm is one of two dams, plus grade-stabilization structures, being built as the first phase of construction, financed with $230,000 in Soil Conservation Service (SCS) funds and $20,000 from the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD).

Harold Sieck of Pleasant Dale, NRD chairman, pointed out that planning for the structures on North Oak Creek began 10 years ago.

It was triggered by severe flooding on the creek in 1963, which resulted in the drowning of three people south of Valparaiso and extensive damage throughout the subwatershed.

Bill Parker of Lincoln, state conservationist for the SCS, labeled the total plan for the subwatershed a "significant land use plan we can be proud of, one that took almost three years of hard work between the people of this area, the Lower Platte South NRD and the SCS."

In addition to the 12 flood-control structures and four grade-stabilization structures, said Parker, the plan adds conservation practices to 15,000 acres of cropland, 1,500 acres of pasture, 700 acres of rangeland and 250 acres of other land.

This total plan carries $1.9 million price tag, Parker noted.

In addition to that work, Parker said, the NRD plans to plant 90 acres of trees and shrubs for wildlife habitat.

When the total project is complete, he said, there will be 3,500 surface acres of permanent water. And there will be more than 350 acres of recreational area available.

First District Rep. Charles Thone of Lincoln said the subwatershed project demonstrates the type of work and expenditures needed in rural areas if America is to produce needed food.

But that seems to be a fact little understood by urban-oriented presidents, said Thone.

His land will soon be covered by water, but Ivan Nord of Valparaiso isn't objecting.

Arts Council Grants Total $193,270

Omaha (UPI) — The Nebraska Arts Council has awarded grants totaling $193,270 in state and federal funds for 67 fine arts programs in Nebraska for the coming year.

A spokesman for the state agency said Saturday that the grant money is a combination of federal and state funds with 11 grants made in support of organizations which will serve statewide audiences with their programs.

Twenty-two awards were made to arts organizations for programs which will be presented in Crawford, Grand Island, Scottsbluff, Hastings, McCook, Seward and several other communities across the state.

Sen. Curtis Campaigns In California

San Francisco, Calif. (AP) — Nebraska Sen. Carl Curtis campaigned here Saturday for Republican Bill Richardson who is seeking to oust Democrat Sen. Alan Cranston from his U.S. Senate seat.

Curtis said that "if all the bills sponsored by Cranson in 1973 had been enacted into law, federal government spending would have increased by $100 million in 1974."

Curtis told a Republican rally that a special study of Senate bills last year showed Cranston "the leader in pushing for federal spending in the Congress."

Curtis said he was appearing on behalf of Richardson because "We need more responsible representatives in the Senate who want to help fight inflation and bring federal spending under control."

Atkinson School Unit to Vote

Atkinson (AP) — Voters in the Atkinson School District will be going to the polls Oct. 7, to decide a $290,000 school bond issue.

Should the voters approve the issuance of the bonds, the money will be used to finance the construction of an addition to the West Holt High School.

School officials say the additional space is needed because of increased enrolments and a drastic upsurge in girls athletics and female interest in shop classes.

Regional Center Technicians Will Appeal Ruling

Plans are being make to appeal a State Personnel Board ruling denying seven female technicians at the Lincoln Regional Center an opportunity to work in the center's maximum security ward for men.

Don Elrod, an American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes organizer, said the ruling will be taken to court on grounds of sex discrimination.

Elrod said the incident involves the transfer of the female maximum security ward from Lincoln to the Hastings Regional Center. The Lincoln center planned to transfer the ward's seven female security technicians to assignments other than the male maximum secuirty ward.

The transfers would mean a pay cut of $14 to $18 per month.

In the past, Elrod said, women have worked in the male security wards when needed. The women related well to the patients and were not harmed, he said.

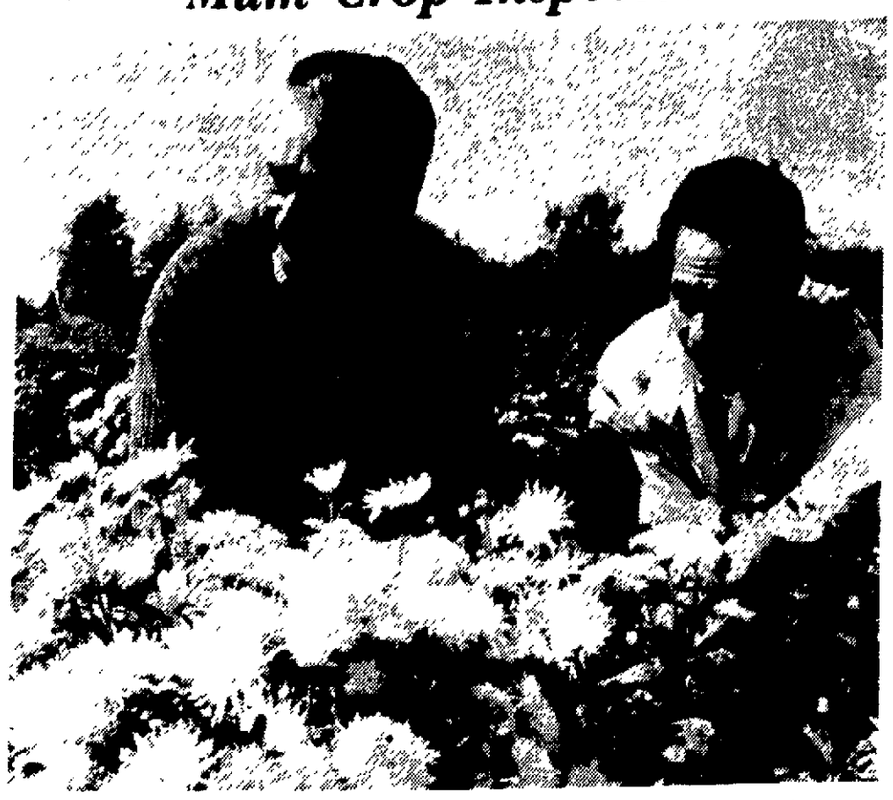

The State Personnel Board voted 3-1 to uphold the center administration's right to deny the women jobs in the male security ward.

Guns Taken

Lincoln police are investigating the burglary of two handguns valued at $600 from Archer Arms, 33rd and A Sts.

A police spokesman said the glass had been kicked out of the store's front door. The burglary occurred between 3:25 a.m. and 7:25 a.m. Saturday.

Escapee Sought

A 21-year-old Penal Complex inmate walked off his work release detail Saturday afternoon.

Kenneth E. Kemp was serving a one year sentence for grand larceny. Penitentiary officials said he had been on work release for one week.

Kemp was listed as an escapee at 4 p.m. Saturday, after failing to reutn to the complex.

Lincoln Police Dept. Capt. Lowell Sellmeyer said the 5' 8", 142-pound Kemp is not considered dangerous.

Washington Perspective

Sawhill Is Hoping That Agriculture Can Aid FEA

Washington — John Sawhill has no objections to farmers asking what his Federal Energy Administration can do for them but he also wants the farming community to ask what it can do for the FEA.

"America relies on its farmers, just as it always has, to be the bedrock of its economy," he told a recent gathering here of small-town officials from northwest Iowa. "We at FEA intend to do all that we can to see that agricultural production in this country remains as high as it has been traditionally."

But he wants something in return for this assurance that farmers will continue to have priority status should a new energy crisis develop — not necessarily on a quid pro quo basis but more on an "every little bit counts" condition.

Specifically, he thinks farmers should be willing to:

—Reduce tillage by planting crops through the residue of previous yields instead of traditional plowing and tilling.

—Continue buying diesel-powered tractors.

—When feasible, use aerial application of seed, fertilizer and pesticides, which, he says, will result in a "fuel expenditure of approximately a third of a gallon per acre," much less than row-by-row treatment.

The energy chief also suggests tuning engines, combining field operations, and running equipment at the highest gear and lowest throttle.

He doesn't forsee any real energy crunch this year but is operating on the theory that what is done now will save headaches later.

Sawhill doesn't have any plans to monitor farming operations to see how many are going along with his suggestions but he isn't all that trusting.

Regulations which became operational at the height of the fuel crisis will remain in effect "to ensure that there will be no worse than spot gas and diesel fuel shortages for the farmer in the future."

Certified Demand

It was discovered, he said, that "simply allocating 100% of current fuel requirements to farmers did not automatically assure that they would receive this fuel."

The allocation procedures now operational allow retailers to certify the amount of fuel their farm customers need and oblige refiners "to set aside sufficient fuel to meet certified demand."

Even though drouth reduced crop yields in many areas, thus easing the pressure for crop-drying propane this season, Sawhill intends to continue his "Project Speculator" program.

This program indentifies trading in propane "done solely to evade our regulations on propane pricing." And he warns that "where we find such trading we will deal with it severely. We are determined to keep propane profits down to the regulated level."

$2 Million in Refunds

FEA this far has identified overcharges of $25 million and has forced $2 million in refunds.

Sawhill's greatest worry, barring a reduction in current refinery yields of gas and diesel fuel and the reimposition of the Arab oil embargo, is the shortage of natural gas, used both as fuel and raw material in nitrogen fertilizer production (as will as for heating).

Although FEA has no general authority in this area, it has begun coordinating planning with the Federal Power Commission. As a result, the FPC "is now granting relief from natural gas curtailments to all emergency fertilizer industry petitions under their jurisdiction."

And while the FEA can take other steps to "alleviate the short-term problems," Sawhill pointedly maintains the only way to remove the crisis-sword hanging over agriculture is to increase actual natural gas supplies.

'Must Lift Controls'

"To do this," he underscores, "we must allow the industry the incentives it needs to increase production. We must lift price controls on new natural gas."

Disregarding potent inflationary consequences, he said; "higher prices for new natural gas will encourage exploration and development, and ultimately lead to more abundant domestic supplies.

". . . The choice is not between gas at a low or a high price — it is between abundant gas and no gas at all."

Venue Shift Goal; Trial For Perjury

North Platte (UPI) — An attorney for a North Platte man, charged with second degree murder and perjury, has filed a second change of venue motion seeking to have the Nov. 19 perjury trial moved out of the Lincoln County District Court.

Attorney William Padley filed the motion in behalf of Melvin Isley. District Judge Keith Windrum denied an initial change of venue motion Aug. 20.

Isley's charges were filed in the death of Fred C. Roberts Jr., North Platte, following a beating a North Platte lounge last March.

Windrum denied the initial motion because of a lack of evidence. In the new brief, Padley contends thorough news coverage has again made it impossible for Isley to receive a fair trial.

In addition, the motion cites alleged threats made against Isley, including a reported $1,000 "contract" offered for his death.

In an affadavit filed with the motion, Isley said he gave his original testimony to the coroner's jury, out of which the perjury charge was filed, because of his "fear" of the coroner's jury and the "reports of the charges that were to be brought" againhst him.

Education Log

By Jack Kennedy

So many cards were laid on the table during the last meeting of the governor's Coordinating Council for Postsecondary Education (1202 commission) it looked like a gamblers' convention.

Maybe it was. A group of articulate spokesmen for the Universidy of Nebraska, two year colleges, private colleges, profit-making schools, all willing to gamble that Nebraska can come up with some device to coordinate education.

With generally more reason than emotion, school officials and laymen told their woes. There must be more articulation among schools. Why not make it easier to transfer credits, for example, if a beauty college student decides to go to Kearney State College but has something of value to transfer?

If Metropolitan Community College in Omaha has only eight persons wanting electronics education, why not "contract out" to profit-making proprietary schools?

Watch Duplications

If Creighton University or Doane College are planning large construction campaigns, why not check with other schools, public and private, to see if duplication will result?

If higher education has problems, why not admit that public elementary and secondary schools may need reorganization also? (Marilyn Fowler, Lexington, State Board of Education president, likened the situation to one in which a horse pulling a buggy goes blindly down the superhighway past inefficient schools while the 1974 model cars speed by.)

Richard Millard, higher education authority for the Denver-based Education Commission of the States of which Nebraska is a member, suggested formation of task forces to study goals of coordination in Nebraska on a definite timetable. That is one of the council's own goals, he was told.

All segments of education must realize, Millard warned, "the total context of highter education in which you now exist, whether you like it or not" must be considered in any future plans.

Artificial Split

"My own bias tends to favor a coordinating approach rather than a single governing (board) approach," Millard said. He decried the mistrust and artificial split between academic and vocational education.

Another danger, the council agreed, is that the schools become so vocationally oriented that the value of liberal arts is forgotten in the rush to be "relevant" or career-based. Job placement in college or taking 120 hours at a time do not assure production of a truly educated man, the council said.

Philip Heckman, Doane College president, asked what will happen if planning shows some private colleges should close. Shuttering a school "needs planning to be done with dignity rather than carnage," Heckman said.

Private colleges also must consider that their service area is nationwide and they may fill unique roles public shools cannot, council members said.

College Death

"I do not think there is an automatic mandate to preserve all institutions simply because they exist," Millard said. Private colleges die when they lose their uniqueness or try to emulate Harvard, he added.

"It is utter nonsense" to judge all colleges by the number they find jobs for, the former philosophy professor said.

A postsecondary governing board should be neither "hatchet man" for the governor nor advocate for the schools, Millard said.

There is a tendency to place education decisions by default "in the lap of the legislature", Millard said. There is another danger that a coordinating body too close to state government could lose status for higher education, not gain it.

The federal government has mandated what Nebraska has debated for year — coordination of education. With all the cards on the table and mutual trust and understanding, some progress may be made.

Drouth, Frost Loss Assessment Slow

By Don Beman, UPI

Figuring Nebraska's drouth and frost crop losses is not an easy task nor a speedy one, according to the state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

"We're caught in a job that's impossible right now," said Ken Bowen of Lincoln in an interview.

However, Bowen said, "We are getting the information we need to help those counties in real need." Problems now, he said, center primarily on those counties which appear to be borderline cases.

In the works are applications from 40 counties seeking disaster aid in the form of low interest loans.

The applications originally stemmed from this summer's drouth. But on Sept. 3, something else happened — an early frost.

That meant, Bowen said, "We had to start back through the whole exercise again" to determine the additional losses, if any, so federal disaster aid could be obtained where needed and to the extent needed.

In other words, Bowen said, "We have to tie the whole crop year together," which means harvest time will be the time the aid machinery will go into high gear.

There are loss estimates, the director said, adding "and I feel the economic loss is there."

But Bowen said he wants to make sure the loss picture is a true one rather than just an estimate.

"The thing is, the farmer can't determine actual losses until harvest, and he may find a bigger loss than he estimated," the director said.

As an example of the situation, Bowen said when the frost hit initial damage estimates were light.

But he said as time went on, it appeared there was more damage done than was thought at first.

He said his staff as well as field personnel are still trying to assess frost damages, and the frost "may have caused more damage than the drouth."

But Bowen said to state that as a fact at this point would be premature.

"We want to be careful and thorough so that we stand in the best position we can to help the farmer," he said. "I guess you could call that a wait and see attitude — wait and see how the harvest goes."

Writers Guild Meets at Dana On October 5

Blair — The fall meeting of the Nebraska Writers Guild will be at Dana College Doctors Auditorium held on Oct. 5.

The program starts at 9:30 with Dr. Mary C. Rupp, O.S.M., College of St. Mary in Omaha, discussing "Persons in Writing." Other morning speakers include Dr. Orville H. Zabel, Creighton University, on "The Responsibility of the Writer" and Dr. Helene Magaret, emeritus professor of Marymount College, "The Open-Ended Poem."

The luncheon will be at 12:15 at the Dana Campus Center with Dana Prof. Norman Bansen speaking on "The Sense of Place in Writing."

The meeting closes with a question and opinion period.

Mrs. Shirley E. Jipp, 834 No. 28th Ave., Blair, is receiving reservations, to be made by Sept. 28.

Investment Firms Could Be Small Business Life Buoy

If you're owner of a small buisness who is finding it extremely difficult to raise the funds needed to grow in this era of brutally tight and expensive credit, a source of credit you may have overlooked is a Small Business Investment Company (SBIC).

In fact, an SBIC may be your ideal way out of the progressively destructive money bind — and thus, the following could be of crucial money-making value to you.

Q. What is an SBIC?

A. An SBIC is a federally licensed financing corporation, created under the Small Business Investment Company Act of 1958 and designed to provide long-term funds for small businesses — a category into which more than 90% of the businesses in the U.S. fall.

Although federally licensed, the SBIC is owned and managed privately. And as James M. Breiner, chairman of the First Connecticut Small Business Investment Company of Bridgeport, Conn., says in a privately circulated Prentice-Hall Management Letter, "the funds can be in the form of loans, investments, or a combination of both. The form of the business doesn't matter either — they can be individuals, corporations and partnerships, privately or publicly owned."

Q. What are the tests for eligibility?

A. Any company is eligible if its total assets are under $7,500,000; its net worth is under $2,500,000; and its average net income, after taxes, is under $250,000 a year for the past two years.

Q. How can an applicant get fast and favorable action?

A. The most important step, Breiner emphasizes, is "to provide us with the most complete information possible with the initial inquiry, so we can tell the applicant within a few days whether we are interested." Information that will help includes:

The financial history and description of the business; a description of its facilities and other fixed assets; the background of key management personnel; details of present ownership, capital and debt structure; description of its products, markets, services; use that will be made of the funds; realistic projections of performance; nature, size and relative profitability of competition and outlook for the industry.

Q. What loans are forbidden?

A. Funds are not provided for operating expenses, to pay for inventory, or for any other short-term needs. SBIC financing is an addition to this regular financing.

Q. What are the usual loan terms?

A. Maturities run from a minimum of five years to a maximum under the law of 20 years.

The legal maximum interest rate is 15%, with the actual rate determined by such factors as the degree of risk, rate of repayment, subordination to other creditors, state of the money markets.

Loan and investment totals range at First Connecticut from $5,000 to $1,500,000, with the preferred range, according to Breiner, between $10,000 and $750,000.

Q. Will an SBIC loan finance growth via mergers or acquisitions?

A. Yes, assuming the surviving company meets the size and other SBIC standards.

Q. Will an SBIC finance new companies?

A. Occasionally. They make exceptions but they prefer companies with track records.

Q. What if a business needs more money?

A. The SBIC may either try to find one or more participants, such as other SBICs, venture capital groups, or individuals. Or it may help the company get additional financing from other lenders.

Q. How does an SBIC loan affect a company's credit?

A. It strengthens it. Since the bank generally gets paid before the SBIC does, the infusion of extra money by the SBIC makes the bank loan more secure.

Q. How can a business find out more about the SBICs?

A. Write to SBA Investment Division, 1441 "L" St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005. Ask for the address of the regional office nearest you, which can furnish you with a list of all the SBICs in your area.

Different SBICs use different approaches — with some preferring loans, others equity investment, some a combination of both. Shop around and find the one that's best for you.

Schorsch Is Overjoyed

Kiel, Germany (UPI) — A cow gave birth to a calf just when Defense Minister George Leber walked past a farmstead during a recent NATO military exercise.

The farmer, recognizing Leber, named the newly-born calf "Schorsch", the Hesse dialect expression for Leber's first name, Georg.

When Leber heard of the calf's name, he sent the farmer a bottle of liquor and a congratulatory letter.

New Ordinance May Have Owners of Dogs Howling

Lincoln dog owners may be howling in the aisles of the City Council chambers Sept. 30 when Max Denney's proposal to issue police citations for certain alleged dog violations comes up for a public hearing.

That ordinance, drafted by the City Law Dept., at Councilman Denney's request, will be officially introduced before the Council this week at its regular 1:30 p.m. Monday meeting.

Briefly summarized, the proposal provides that the Lincoln Police Dept. will be able to issue citations — similar to those now handed out for certain traffic offenses — upon observation of violations of the licensing law, the leash law or the barking and howling law.

The proposed ordinance sets up a new procedure for handling the dog violation tickets under which a person receiving such a ticket may pay the fine in the clerk of the Municipal Court office by a waiver system similar to the one currently in operation for parking tickets and moving violations.

Under the procedure, a dog owner cited by the police would be able to plead guilty by waiving his right to a hearing in Municipal Court and would then be assessed a minimum fine of $10 for each violation.

Currently, a person accused of a dog law violation must appear in court on the matter.

Denney says his proposal will make the city's dog laws simpler to enforce because a police officer will no longer have to chase dogs in order to confirm a violation.

If the ordinance passes, an officer will need only to verify the dog's ownership and then issue a citation to the owner.

Also up for City Council consideration Monday are the following:

Heidi, Heather Blossoming Along With the Wildflowers

By Joel Thorson
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Polk — Heather and Heidi Wischmeier like nothing better than to tromp through fields and meadows with their parents in search of prairie wildflower seed.

Mom and Dad are Mary and Don Wischmeier, who manage the Wilson Seed Farms near here for owners Jim and Alice Wilson. The Wischmeiers are looking forward to seeing their daughters and their infant wildflower seed business blossom together into full maturity.

Heather, 5, and Heidi, 4, have taken a delighted interest in the showy, ephemeral blooms that used to dapple the prairie throughout Nebraska and the Great Plains. Already the little ones are learning to distinguish between tall gayfeather and patridge pea, snow-on-the-mountain and black-eyed susan, penstemon and pale purple coneflower.

By the time the girls are grown, the Wischmeiers hope those wild species will be in as widespread use as azaleas, rhododendrons, poinsettias and zinnias — all of which were wildflowers themselves once, before someone thought to cultivate them.

Don and Mary Wischmeier have no trouble interesting their daughters Heidi, left, and Heather in their line of work: Harvesting seeds from wildflowers such as short gayfeather. Kids and business both are growing like weeds.

The Coming Thing

Menton Jim Wilson believes wildflowers are the "coming thing." He says there is a "tremendous interest" on the part of his native-grass seed customers, many of whom want to dress up their plantings with natural splashes of colors.

The wild varieties are hardy, having adapted through centuries of evolution to soil and climate conditions. They don't need as much care, cultivation and fertilizing as domestic flowers. And they can be useful to the home gardener in ornamenting problem areas such as northern exposures, sunless backyards, stony ground and steep banks

For now, there are problems. That's to be expected, of course, in an endeavor as new as cultivating wildflower seed. As Wilson says, "The wildflower thing is really in the folk-art stage."

First, no one has yet learned how to harvest wildflower seed with a combine. Much of the light, fluffy stuff blows out the back before the combine can be properly adjusted. So the Wischmeiers so far have had to strip it, clean it and package it by hand, ounce by precious ounce.

All Hand Labor

"One of the reasons this stuff is so expensive is it's all hand labor," says Wischmeier. Examples: tall and short gayfeather seed cost $4 per ounce, while prairie coneflower is $8 per ounce.

An ounce, however, contains some 2,800 seeds, with a very high germination rate. By comparison, nurseries (the only other commercial source), sell packets of 20 or 30 seeds for about $1.50, Wilson says. "We're trying to learn to produce them the same way we do grass seed, at affordable prices.

Another problem is a lack of knowledge about proper planting and care of wildflower plants. The Soil Conservation Service is studying the horticulture of wildflowers, as is Sotero Salac of the UNL horticulture department, who has provided some seed for the Wilson farm.

But they know little if any more than the Wischmeiers.

Several acres of experimental plantings and transplantings have been established on the Wilson farm, producing a small commercial crop of tall and short gayfeather for the first time last year. From them, the Wilsons and Wischmeiers have ascertained by trial and error that a hard seedbed is best, with a half-inch or so of loose dirt covering the seed.

Freezing seed for two or three weeks before planting seems to "break the dormancy," thereby speeding the germination process by one year, Wischmeier says.

But little is known about such things as optimum planting times and seeding rates. Should seed be applied an ounce to the acre, or a pound? "This has all got to be learned," says Mary Wischmeier.

"It's like discovering a new frontier," she says. "It's kind of exciting."

Spare Time Only

So far, the flowers remain a spare-time pursuit. The grass seed business keeps Don busy full-time in the field, and Mary in the office, year-round. "I don't think it'll ever get to the point where you could live off just the flowers," Don says. "The grasses and flowers go together."

But when the grass seed allows, the Wischmeiers enjoy searching private meadows, abandoned cemeteries and railroad rights-of-way for flowers They note locations of blooms on a map and try to return when the seeds should be dry enough for stripping. Landowners are generally very cooperative in permitting access to their fields, Don says.

Expansion of crop acreage threatens the Wischmeiers' source of wildflowers. This year, Don says, "farmers have hayed native meadows that have never been hayed before."

But most of the Wilson wildflower varieties come from a secure half-section of native prairie belonging to Mary's aunt. The entire Wischmeier family often packs a picnic lunch and spends a whole Sunday there. Heather and Heidi "really enjoy running around and helping," says Mary.

Prairie Mix

"We tell 'em what's blooming today and give 'em plastic buckets to fill," she says. Even the girls' mistakes can be used in seed mixes, she adds.

Commercial offerings include some 19 species, plus a special "prairie mix" consisting of mixed grass and flower seed. The flowers in the mix are chosen to give a variety of color, basically purple and yellow with "a splash of orange and blue and pink and white," Wischmeier says. The mix is also selected to produce blooms from May to September, he says.

Don met his Nebraska-born wife in his native state of Washington. Settling in Nebraska to escape the pressures of big-city life, they were introduced to Jim Wilson by a relative of Don's who deals in bluegrass sod. Wilson hired him 4½ years ago to help with the grass-seed operation.

"We'd always been interested in ecology," Mary says.

Don, a former National Park Service employe, says it took him a while to figure out what he wanted to do with his life, but now he knows. "It's a great opportunity to do something for the environment," he says.

Program In Land Use Planning Set

A program of education and research in land use planning will be carried out in Nebraska under Title 5 of the federal Rural Development Act of 1972.

Glen Vollmar, professor and chairman of the Agricultural Economics Dept. in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's College of Agriculture, said a grant of $49,500 has been provided to carry out the program.

Although it will be administered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the program will be carried out in cooperation with several state colleges, state agencies and other groups in Nebraska.

The educational and research activities in land use planning will be concentrated during the 1974, 1975 and 1976 fiscal years in the Platte Valley and Elkhorn Valley corridors, where the most pressing land use problems are developing. Vollmar said the two corridor areas cover a wide band that takes in a large part of the state.

Honor Farm Family

Rules for the Award

History of the Recognition Award: The Nebraska Honor Farm Family Recognition Award was established in 1946.

Purpose of the Award: The recognition award was established to recognize Nebraska farm and ranch families which have made noteworthy records in typifying the best in Nebraska farming and ranching with emphasis on rural home and community life.

Eligibility: Any Nebraska family consisting of father and mother (and at least one child at home, away from home, or married) actually operating and living, either as owner or tenant, on a Nebraska farm or ranch is eligible.

Recognition: One family will be selected from those nominated. The selection will be announced in the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star in November prior to the award presentation.

How selected: The Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star, in cooperation with the University of Nebraska, each year selects a farm or ranch family to be the Nebraska Honor Farm Family.

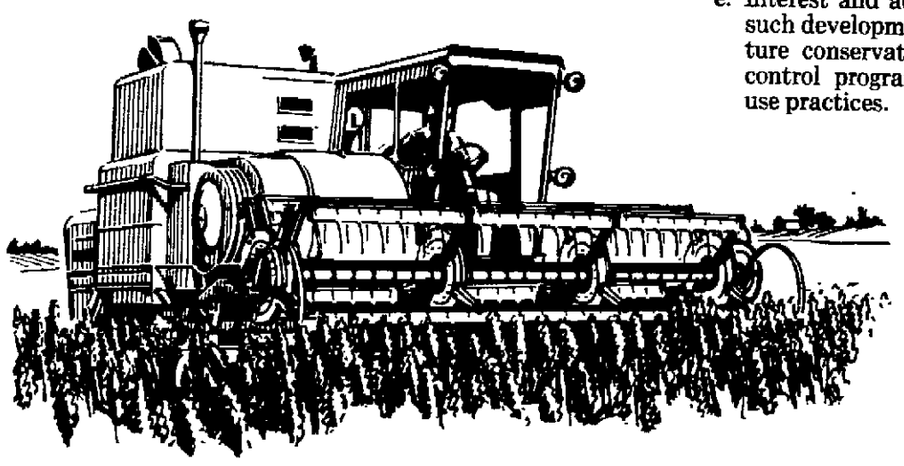

The Award: The family selected will be hosted for a day in Lincoln and will be publicly recognized for their achievement and receive a $500 cash award presented by the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star.

Nomination: Anyone may nominate a family, including the family's own members, by filling out nomination blanks appearing in or furnished by the Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star. The completed nomination blanks must be signed and mailed to: The Honor Farm Family Award, Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star, P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, Nebraska 68501.

Information to be Furnished: Upon receipt of the nomination blank. The Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star will send to the family nominated a general information blank which must be filled out and returned together with signed permission of the head of the family to publish information and photographs of the family.

Selection for the Award: One family will be selected from those nominated. The selection will be made upon the basis of the following points:

1. The farm as a satisfactory place to live.
   a. Condition and arrangement of buildings.
   b. Convenience of the home.
   c. Location, arrangement and adequacy of windbreaks, landscaping and gardens.
2. Family life and community spirit.
   a. Relationship of the various members of the family with each other.
   b. Relationship of the family with neighbors.
   c. Attitude of family toward community affairs.
   d. Participation of family in school, religious and social life of the community.
3. Success of family in operation of the farm or ranch business.
   a. Adoption of modern farming or ranching techniques.
   b. Establish procedures for record-keeping.
   c. Proper land use practices.
   d. Best use of finances and facilities available.
4. Participation of family in activities which contribute to better agriculture and to better farm or ranch family home life.
   a. Willingness to follow improved practices which are justified by adequate research and tests.
   b. Participation in the activities of local groups to promote the adoption of improved methods.
   c. Participation in continued education programs sponsored by the University of Nebraska.
   d. Attitude toward and support of such organizations as 4-H clubs, Extension clubs, Future Farmers of America, and general agricultural and commodity organizations.
   e. Interest and active participation in such developments as soil and moisture conservation, irrigation, weed control programs and proper land use practices.

Nebraska Votes in Congress

Washington — Votes of area members of Congress on key roll calls for the week ending Sept. 21, 1974:

Senate

Abortion. By a 36-50 procedural vote, the Senate refused to kill an amendment prohibiting any funds in a Labor-Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill from being used to pay the cost of abortions under Medicaid except to save a mother's life.

Opponents argued that such action would deny constitutional rights to poor people because they would be unable to afford abortions obtained through private channels.

Supporters of the prohibition contended that taxpayers' money should not be spent on abortions which many Americans oppose.

Voting to prohibit federal abortion funds: None.
Voting for federal abortion funds: Curtis (R), Hruska (R).

Consumer Agency. On a 64-34 roll call, the Senate failed by two votes to achieve the necessary two-thirds majority in a fourth attempt to cut off debate and force a vote on a bill to set up as independent consumer protection agency.

Supporters contended that existing agencies were too closely tied to the industries they regulated to effectively represent consumer's viewpoints.

Opponents of cutting off debate argued that the bill would add to the already swollen bureaucracy, harass businessmen and do little to help consumers.

Voting to cut off debate: None.
Voting not to cut off debate: Curtis (R), Hruska (R).

Busing. By a 45-42 vote, the Senate adopted an amendment to prohibit any funds appropriated in a Labor-Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill from being used to bus students or transfer teachers to another school to achieve racial balance or to carry out a desegragation plan.

Supporters of the anti-busing amendment argued that the language was necessary, because earlier legislation specified that some impact aid funds could be used for busing.

Opponents said the amendment would have little effect since no impact aid funds were carried in the bill under consideration.

Voting to prohibit funds for busing: Curtis (R), Hruska (R).

Federal Pay Raise. The Senate by a 64-35 vote adopted a resolution overriding President Ford's plan to postpone until Jan 1, 1975, scheduled pay raises for about 3.5 million federal white-collar employes and military personnel. The action cleared the way for pay raises to become effective Oct. 1.

President Ford had proposed deferral of the pay increase as a step to fight inflation. The three-month postponement would have saved the government an estimated $700 million.

Supporters of the immediate pay raise said the President's plan was a gimmick that would have no perceptible impact on the inflation battle and would unfairly single out federal workers for wage sacrifices.

Opponents argued that rejection of the deferral plan would make it difficult for the President to ask other groups to exercise wage restraint.

Voting for immediate federal pay raises: None.
Voting for deferral of federal pay raises: Curtis (R), Hruska (R).

House

Consumer Redress Power. By a 180-209 vote the House rejected an amendment that would have strengthened the Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) powers by authorizing it to seek court redress for consumers injured by violations of the law against unfair or deceptive trade practices.

Supporters of this amendment to a product warranty bill argued that the FTC needed the redress power to protect consumers effectively.

Opponents responded that the proposal had not been studied adequately in committee, and would grant the FTC unprecedented powers to defend private individuals in the courts.

Voting to strengthen FTC redress power: None.
Voting not to strengthen FTC redress power: McCollister (R), Martin (R), Thone (R).

Planning Commission Highland Subdivision Approval Is Expected

The City-County Planning Commission is expected Wednesday to give its stamp of approval to the massive Highland subdivision proposed for the northwestern edge of Lincoln.

During a public hearing on a preliminary plat and community unit plan for the 1,000-acre development last week, the planners appeared to agree with a number of recommendations made by Planning Director Doug Brogden.

Brogden is recommending that the developers — Omahan Gene Wilczewski and Mark Development Co. — deed the park site to the city at no cost, phase developments with prior city approval and re-insert an elementary school site in the plan.

Wilczewski has mapped out a residential, commercial, office and industrial community to be located south of Hwy. 34 and Interstate 80, north of the Municipal Airport.

The commissioners also are scheduled to take action on West Gate Bank's application for a change of zone from C Residential to I Commercial along 17th, north of South. The bank wants to build a drive-in teller facility.

Members of the Near-South Neighborhood Assn. opposed the application during a public hearing last week on the grounds that additional traffic would be generated in the area.

The commission also will take a second look at a revised home occupation ordinance, drafted by the City Law Dept. The ordinance is attempting to clarify the types of businesses allowed in residential areas.

In further action the commission will hold hearings or act on:

Preliminary Plats
—Lament Add., at Brookside Dr. and West R.
Dean's Add., south of O and east of S. W. 20th.

Changes of Zone
—Application of Mrs. John Dzerk, from F Restricted to II Commerical, at 16th and L.
—Application of Donley Gerbig, from H-2 Highway Commerical to M Restricted, at 14th and Pioneers Blvd.
—Application of planning director to amend text to clarify and modify regulations of off-street parking in required front yard.

Special Permits
—Application of J. E. Mahoney to operate salvage yard, on south side of Yolande.
—Application for community unit plan and preliminary plat of Pinehurst, west of 70th and south of Pioneers Blvd.

Senior Days Set at UNL

Students from 254 Nebraska high schools have been invited to Senior Information Days Saturday, Nov. 2 and Nov. 9, at University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Talks with faculty, tours, student meetings and a noon luncheon are scheduled. A $1 registration fee is charged.

Students will attend according to the section of the state in which they live. Seniors from 23 Lincoln area high schools will visit the campus during the Nov. 9 session.

Fishing Limit Bill Opposed

Washington (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is opposed to Senate passage of a bill to extend U.S. fishing jurisdiction to 200 miles offshore. The unfavorable report came in a 9 to 8 vote. The bill previously had been approved, 14 to 2, by the Senate Commerce Committee. The bill is opposed by the Ford administration, on the grounds that unilateral action by the U.S. would jeopardize chances for an international agreement on a 200-mile economic zone and encourage other nations to make claims damaging to U.S. fishing interests.

Committee Wants Study of Proposed City, County Merger

The Citizen's Advisory Committee for the County-City Implementation Commission (CCIC) is recommending the CCIC establish a task force to study a proposed merger of the Lincoln City Council and the Lancaster County Board.

The advisory committee also is recommending the formation of a task force to study consolidation of financing and taxation methods for the county and city.

Jack Thompson, CCIC chairman, said he hasn't seen the recommendations, but said when the commission receives them they would be considered at its next meeting.

The recommendation for a merger study of the council and board would be the final step in studying proposals made by the 1973 Arthur Little report on governmental consolidation in Lancaster County.

The Little report recommended complete consolidation of county and city government by 1980.

The CCIC has set up a number of task forces to study various governmental functions ranging from public works to law enforcement. The task forces were charged with making recommendations on how to best implement the proposals made in the Little report.

Some Completed

The original task forces have completed or are in the final stages of preparing their recommendations. The CCIC has already acted on some of these proposals.

Although the fire and emergency services report has been before the CCIC for consideration, the report was sent back to the task force and the advisory committee to work out language differences.

Advisory Committee Chairman Bill Harding and Task Force Chairman Don Penterman said they have worked out the differences and the new recommendations are being studied by their respective groups for submission to the CCIC.

"We're recommending the formation of an overall advisory council on public protection and emergency services," Penterman said.

Penterman said the overall council would provide the coordinating links for public service needs and the governmental services would be provided by fire, police and emergency medical services.

He said the group would have two subcouncils, one for police services and one for fire and medical services.

"This would provide a focal point for the input of ideas from the public on improvement and evaluation of the system," Penterman said.

Penterman said the groups believe the emergency medical services should start moving toward mobile intensive care units. "This is going to be an extension of hospital emergency rooms to a mobile basis," he said.

Mobile Health Unit

Penterman said the proposed units would be similar to the Bryan Mobile Heart Team but dissimilar in that they would be able to handle other situations besides heart attacks.

"We're saying that all these proposals can be done within the money already being spent for emergency services," he said.

Penterman said the groups will also recommend the establishment of a county fire service office. He said the purpose of the office would be to support coordination between the 17 rural fire districts in Lancaster County and the Lincoln Fire Dept.

Harding and Penterman said the districts will be asked to coordinate on a quadrant basis to study methods of providing mutual aid. They say this recommendation is being made with the hope the departments will be able to support each other on the quadrant basis.

Full-time Firefighters?

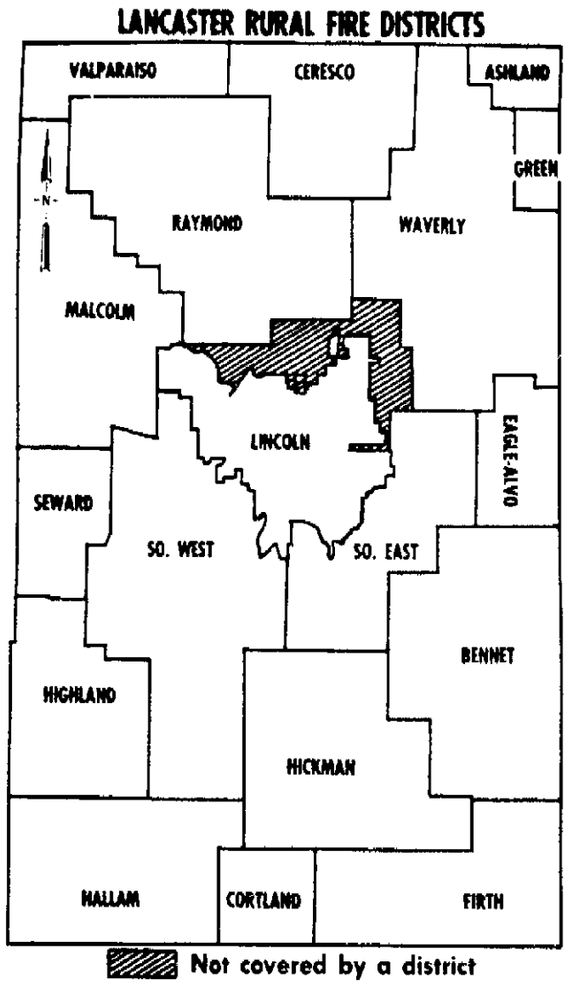

Although there has been discussion of stationing full-time professional firemen in each of the four quadrants, Penterman cautions against assuming this would mean the end of the volunteer firefighters in Lancaster County.

"It's our feeling that in no way can we do away with the volunteer fire departments, but they do need support in their coordination with the Lincoln Fire Dept.," he said.

Citizen Advisory Chairman Harding said his group will also recommend the CCIC coordinate discussions between the fire task force and the police service task force.

He said this would facilitate the establishment of an overall emergency service council or possibly show the need of a public safety director for Lancaster County.

The two group's recommendations will be considered by the CCIC at its next meeting and then forwarded to the city council and county board for any further action if necessary.

Thieu Fires 9 Province Chiefs

Saigon (AP) — The Saigon government announced President Nguyen Van Thieu has fired or transferred nine province chiefs, the equivalent of governors in the United States. No reasons were given, but in the past province chiefs have been dismissed for corruption, incompetence, military defeat or political reasons. In recent weeks, Thieu has been under attack by different factions for corruption in his administration.

Pope: Church Needs Saints

Castel Gandolfo, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI says "saints, strong men" are needed to fight "the permissiveness that is pervading the church "like a deadly epidemic."

His speech Wednesday was the second time in eight days he has spoken pessimistically about the state of the church as preparations continue for the fourth World Synod of Bishops starting Sept. 27.

In his last speech before leaving his summer residence to return to the Vatican, Pope Paul told 2,000 visitors here:

"Both individually and collectively, the phenomena of weakness, posing, spiritual debility and cowardice are spreading today more than ever like a deadly epidemic among people at all levels."

House of the Week

Tudor Styled Ranch

By Andy Lang, AP

Some features of English Tudor syling are incorporated in the exterior of this three-bedroom house, but it's basically a raised ranch of the type that has become so popular because of its excellent space utilization.

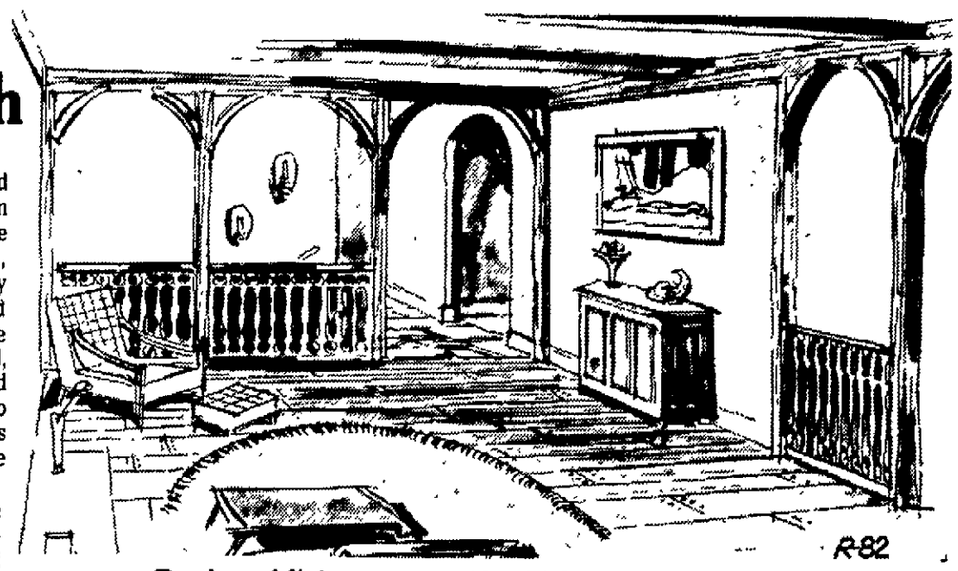

Tudor highlights of Design R-82 include stucco on part of the front elevation, half-timbering and small-paned windows. In place of the usual brick and stone are wood shingles. A covered entry greets guests who find a charming foyer just inside a V-joint solid oak door.

Architect William G. Chirgotis has placed a double set of stairs at the entrance platform, allowing ease of circulation between levels. Half a flight up is an L-shaped living-dining room area running almost 25 feet from the front to the rear of the house. Sliding glass doors lead to the open wood deck.

To the left of the living area are the three bedrooms, buffered by the stairs and bathrooms. The master bedroom is in the rear, with double exposure, dressing room, generous closets, outside vanity and a private full bath with tiled glass-enclosed shower stall. The main bath is compartmented, featuring a full-length mirrored vanity and centrally located to meet the needs of the sleeping as well as the living areas of the house.

The kitchen, with rear service entrance and adjacent mullion-windowed dinette, provides all the necessities and conveniences required. It has a built-in range and oven, refrigerator and a full complement counter and storage space, trash-maker and garbage disposal.

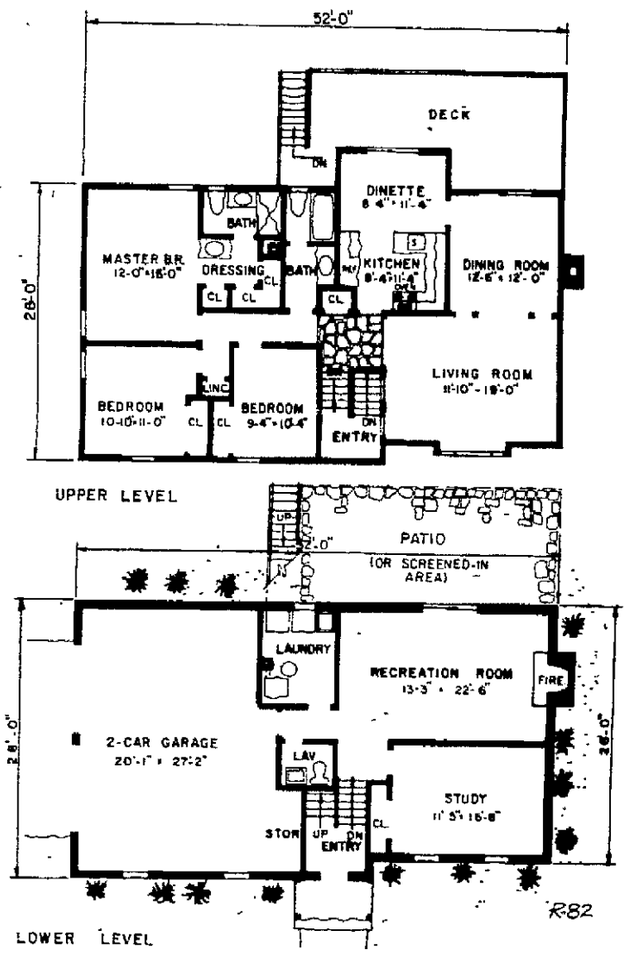

Down from the entrance foyer and raised just enough to provide a flood of daylight that eliminates any eliminate the cellar atmosphere are a recreation room, study, lavatory, laundry and oversized two-car garage to store garden tools, toys, lawn chairs and the like.

Portion of living room, half a flight up from entrance.

The recreation room is wood-paneled, featuring a stone-faced fireplace. It has sliding-door access to the backyard or, if desired, a paved patio. If local codes permit, this level could be finished as a separate apartment by adding a kitchen.

In its living room, dining room, kitchen-dinnette, three bedrooms, two bathrooms and foyer on the main level, Design R-82 has 1,458 square feet. A recreation room, study, laundry room and lavatory on the lower level totaling 956 square feet. The two-car garage is included in the over-all dimensions of 52 by 28 feet.

Antique Collectors Workshop Set

Grand Island — In response to the growing interest in antiques, an Antique Collectors Workshop will be held here on Sept. 30, Oct. 4 and Oct. 7.

Mrs. Auralea Nelsen, a teacher at the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College in Lincoln, will conduct the workshop. She is an acknowledged authority in the field of antiques and has attended antique shows throughout Europe and the U.S.

The course will be an in-depth study of glassware. The first class session will deal with blown glass, the second with art glass, the last with pressed glass.

Information on the workshop is available from the University Extension Division. Sessions start at 7:30 p.m.

G-rated Film Plan Flops

Detroit (AP) — A Baptist Church in Detroit rented the old Pandora Theater and scheduled six-months of G-rated films. The movies flopped, however, and the congregation got soaked. The Rev. Major Smith of the Union Grace Missionary Church said the plan was to draw Detroiters downtown for family entertainment.

The experiment closed with the 500-member congregation losing about $4,000 on an investment of some $11,000 in the project, the Rev. Mr. Smith said. "They (moviegoers) just didn't turn out the way we expected," he said. "We offered 500 free tickets to teen-agers to see 'Hello, Dolly,' and less than 100 showed up."

Garden Gossip

Start 1975 Tillage Now; Garden Instruction Available

By Emery W. Nelson
County Extension Agent

The year 1975 is likely to be one of many gardens. The cost of food is expected to increase and one way to balance the family budget will be to grow vegetables.

Next summers vegetable garden should be started this fall. October is the time to improve the texture and soil conditions. It is also the time to make the soil tillage easier next spring.

Applications of some types of fertilizer should be made in the fall so the nutrients will be available to the plants next spring. The right amount and the right kind of fertilizer will make the garden more productive.

There will soon be leaves and plant residues to be used for compost. Compost can be very beneficial to the garden as a component of the soil and as a mulch. Various methods of composting are used.

To get started in the right direction with the garden, the Lancaster County Extension Service is holding instructional meetings. These will be one Tuesday, at 1:30 in the afternoon and again at 7:30 in the evening. The site is at the USDA meeting room at 5606½ So. 48th, beside the Extension Office.

I will be helped with the program by Dr. Brent Hoadley, Extension specialist, and Esther Wyant, Lancaster County Agent. The program will include information on garden locations, soil improvement, fall fertilizers, composting and fall storage of vegetables.

The meeting is open to everyone interested in gardening.

TAKEOVER NOT AUTOMATIC

When buying an existing home, taking over a conventional mortgage can be practical and profitable. But be cautious. Don't take for granted that assigning the mortgage to another is automatic.

The lender has a stake in who's going to repay him. Many conventional mortgages are written which specifically prohibit this practice without the consent of the mortgage lender. The problem may also be an acceleration clause which makes the whole balance due and payable upon sale.

The lender may waive this clause depending on the credit rating of the buyer, maintenance of the property or spread between original and current interest rates. However, if the interest spread is great — don't count on a takeover mortgage.

Before you advertise "low interest mortgage takeover", and set yourself up for a let-down, why not have us check your mortgage and advise you.

Your Nurseryman Speaks

Discovery in Wisconsin

It's a nurseryman's heaven.

Trees and shrubs propagate themselves and grow with complete abandon. They cover every inch of uncultivated land.

Where is this paradise?

Look at a Wisconsin map. See how its most northern tip juts out into Lake Superior. This is the Chequamegon Peninsula, the place referred to.

In Nebraska, crimson king maple is an extremely popular tree — and very expensive. Its maroon-purple foliage stands out in any landscape. Its perfect crown, its classic maple leaf adds to this distinctiveness.

Yet, it has problems when planted on the open plains Its foliage may burn in summer. Its bark tends to split when the temperature drops quickly in winter. It needs protection, special care

On a walk along Lake Superior's shore between the Sioux and Onion Rivers, I came to a place where I could go no farther A marsh came right down to the lake Driftwood and fallen trees made the beach an almost impenetrable obstacle course I took off my shoes and began wading in and out among roots and branches

As I reached here and there for support, I suddenly realized I held in my hand the foliage of a crimson king maple, a patented, supposedly only man-grown tree I stopped and studied the tree from which it had come It had two trunks It was a truly noble specimen that would have sold for $300 or $400 in Nebraska

During the Labor Day week end, I avoided other tourists by taking long walks along an old, seldom-used railroad right of way. I found quarts of wild blackberries. My cocker spaniel and I both became addicted to this luscious fruit and every time we'd find a new bush, we'd gobble down the berries in fierce competition with each other.

A few wild raspberries and blue berries still remained from an earlier season. Since my dog had no taste for these, I could relax and slowly savour each delectable berry.

Larch is a most interesting "evergreen". It has needles similar to a spruce or fir tree. Yet with the first frost, it drops all of these. It's a living contradiction — a deciduous evergreen.

Along the right of way, between old, and many times broken, railroad ties I found hundreds of young larch trees growing. Their tops had been broken by the logging trains that came by every few weeks. Yet, somehow, these trees were surviving

I also found several miniforests of dwarf Amur maples. This tree has the true maple leaf, but it's only half the size of the foliage produced by other members of the maple family.

One morning I came across an intriguing road sign. It said, quite simply, "Friendly Settlement." I walked along this road for several miles and finally came to an open field.

In this field, in the midst of a quiet forest, stood a sign. It said:

"We thank our mothers and fathers for having given us wonderful childhoods.

Signed,

"Your Finnish sons and daughters."

This is a crazy, mixed-up world. It's sure nice to know that somewhere someone did something right.

Hong Kong Is Very Far Away—Still

Grateley, England (UPI) — Kevin Keogh, 18, joined the army to see Hong Kong and wound up in Belfast.

"I'm thinking of suing the army under the Trade Descriptions Act," which prohibits false or misleading advertising, his father, George Keogh, said.

"He was getting all excited at the thought of the Hong Kong night life," Keogh said of his son. "It was the glowing way the recruiting sergeant described Hong Kong that made him sign on for nine years."

Madison, Wis. — Quarterback Gregg Bohlig riddled Nebraska's pass defense all afternoon Saturday in ancient Camp Randall Stadium and guided the Wisconsin Badgers to a 21-20 upset of the Cornhuskers.

It was his final pass that told the story before 73,381 cheering fans in a game in which Cornhusker quarterback Dave Humm, normally the passing star, sat out most of the last three quarters with a hip injury.

Bohlig, who completed 14 of 21 passes for 242 yards, got his biggest one of the day when he hit flanker Jeff Mack for a 77-yard scoring aerial that tied the score with 3:29 to play.

Then Vince Lamia, a sophomore from Beloit, Wis., booted the extra point to insure the victory for the underdog Badgers.

Less than a minute before that, Nebraska was forced to settle for a field goal after reserve quarterback Earl Everett had marched the Huskers to a first down at the Wisconsin two.

The first play, however, lost three yards, the next one got two of those back, but on the third one Everett fumbled the center snap, recovered the ball and pitched to Jeff Moran who lost a yard.

Mike Coyle kicked the three-pointer from 22 yards out to give NU a 20-14 lead. That meant Wisconsin couldn't tie the game with a field goal, but the subsequent kickoff runback gave the Badgers the ball on their 29.

The first play lost six yards when John Lee and Steve Wieser rushed Bohlig.

Then Bohlig got the bomb away to Mack.

It was just one of our normal plays," Coach John Jardine said. "Jeff runs an 'out' pattern and if he's covered tightly, he turns up field. We practice it every day. My only concern about it was that he might go out of bounds."

On the play, Nebraska's left cornerback covered Mack's out pattern and Mack got behind him. Split end Art Sanger was a decoy covered by the strong safety.

That left only George Kyros to pick up Mack. Kyros appeared to make a move for an interception, but pushed off Mack in the attempt. Even if Mack hadn't gone all the way the Badgers would have had a first down at about the NU 35 because of the penalty (which was declined).

When Humm left the game with a hip pointer, the Cornhuskers didn't have a balance between running and passing which was so evident in their 61-7 romp over Oregon last Saturday in Lincoln.

In fact, by the fourth quarter it was so evident the Huskers weren't able to pass effectively that Wisconsin went into goalline defenses much of the time.

Humm guided Nebraska to a touchdown on his second try to give his team a 7-0 lead with 6:13 to play in the first quarter. It was a 76 yard drive in nine plays. The payoff was a 22-yard reverse at left tackle by wingback Don Westbrook.

Humm had another march underway when he was injured. He had driven the Huskers from their 21 to their 46.

Then on a pitch play, Humm was hit on the right hip by the helmet of Badger end Mike Vesperman as he hurled the ball to Jeff Moran.

Everett replaced him and continued the drive to the Wisconsin 41 before he, too, was hit by Vesperman causing a fumble which linebacker Rick Jakious recovered.

A quick tape job on Humm by trainer Paul Schneider got him back in the game for two more series, both unsuccessful, and then he took himself out of the game for good.

"I had to take myself out because I couldn't set up to pass," Humm said. "I went back in to try, but the coaches always tell us if we can't go 100 per cent we shouldn't be playing. I feel I'm backed up by fine quarterbacks and that my absence didn't hurt us today."

His modesty is appreciated, but the facts are plain. The Huskers just couldn't sustain much in the way of an offense the rest of the way.

The Huskers took advantage of a Wisconsin fumble recovered by linebacker John Starkebaum to score from 23 yards out just before the half for a 14-7 lead at the intermission.

Then good field position again produced a short drive that resulted in a field goal early in the third quarter.

Everett led the Huskers to a first down at the Wisconsin 36 late in the third quarter, but the Badgers stopped the drive four plays later, thanks in part to a fumbled center-quarterback exchange on second down.

A lost fumble by Ritch Bahe at the Wisconsin 47 early in the fourth quarter was the only other semblance of a drive until the final march that produced Coyle's second field goal.

Meanwhile, Bohlig was testing Nebraska's secondary defense against the pass and the Huskers flunked it.

Bohlig's drive that tied the score at 7-7 featured five pass completions in seven tries, the final one a diving grab in the end zone by reserve end Ron Eglott.

Wisconsin's second touchdown also had two key passes in it, both to Mack for 28 and 18 yards. Billy Marek rushed it in from the one on the third play of the final quarter.

Nebraska's defense against the rush was quite adequate. The Badgers, in fact, gained one less yard than Oregon got last week — 77.

Marek, the near-hero in last year's 20-16 Wisconsin loss at Lincoln, was held to 45 yards on 21 attempts, far short of the 145 yards he netted a year ago.

Nebraska's top runner was John O'Leary, I-back who spent part of the time in a hospital getting X-rayed for a possible broken jaw but returned to finish the game. He picked up 86 yards in 17 carries.

Fullback Tony Davis ran for 76 yards in 14 attempts while Westbrook gained 48 in six carries.

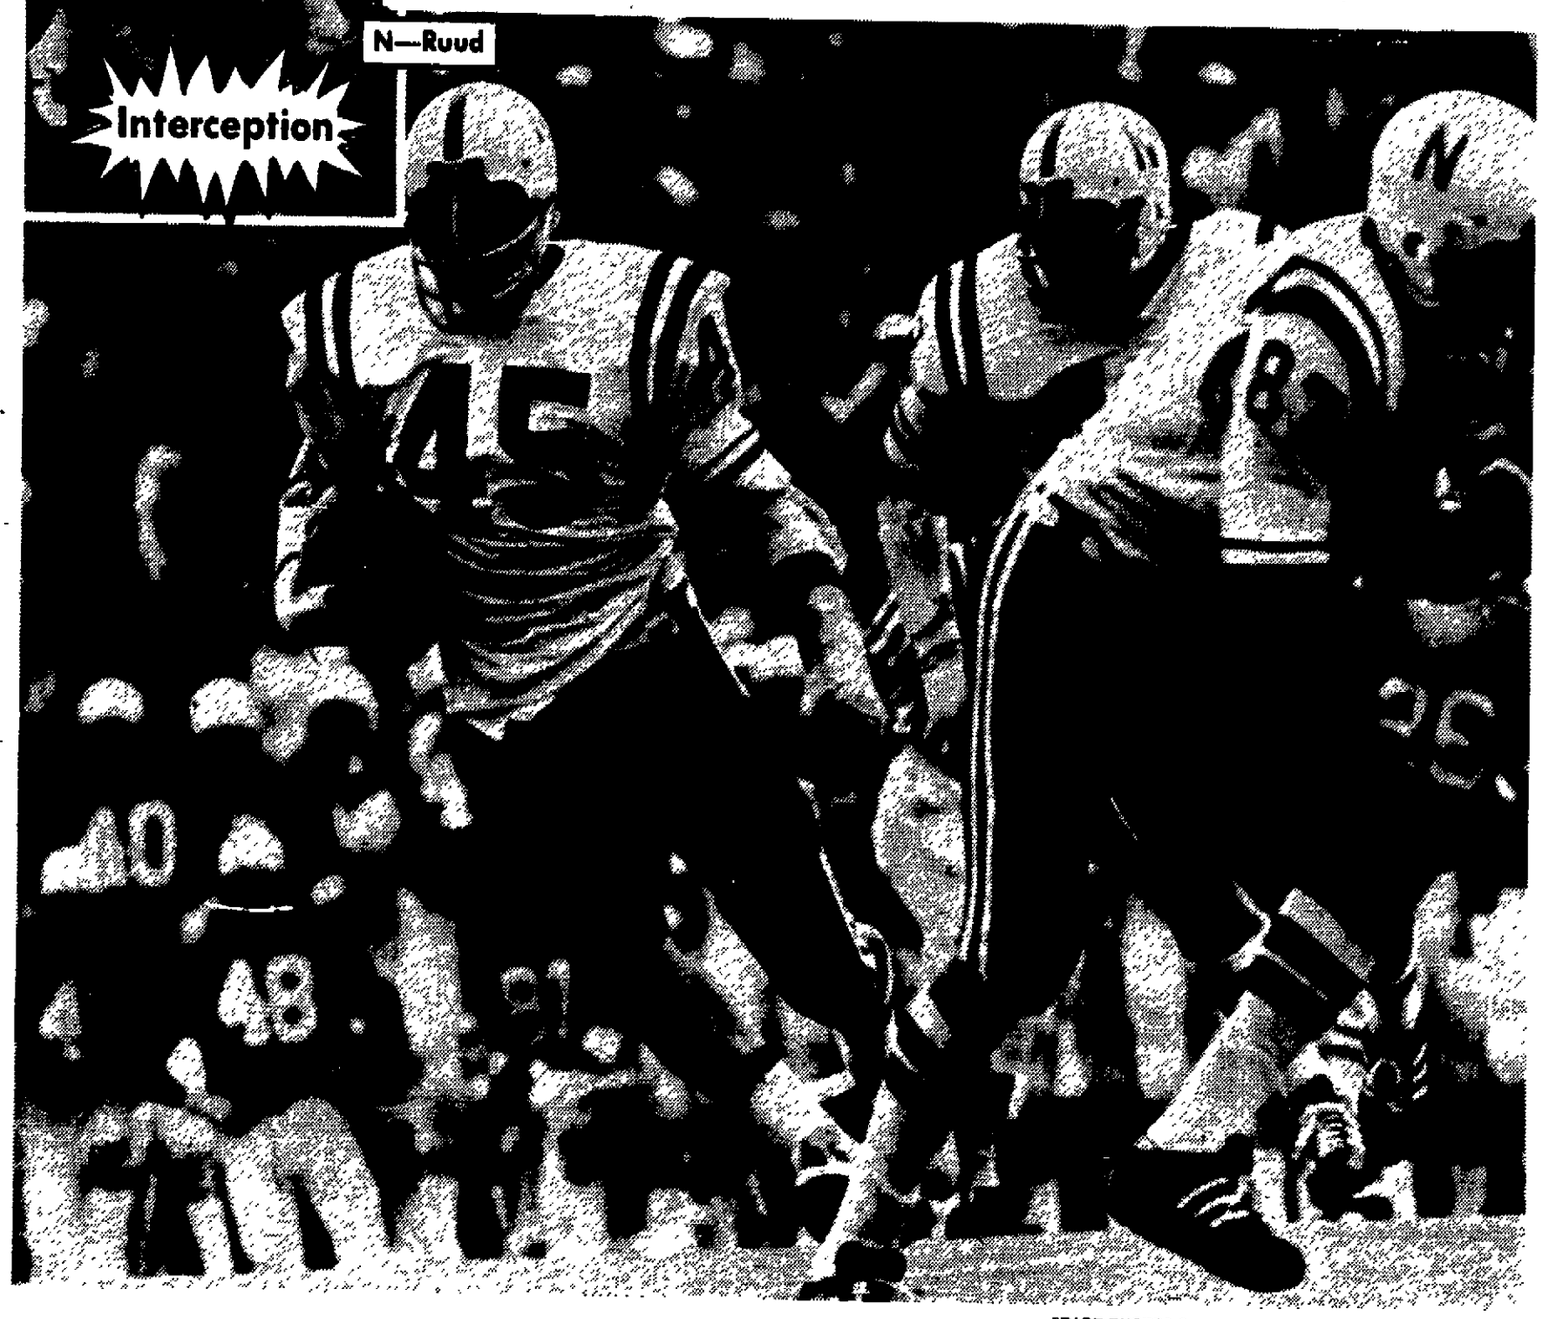

Middle guard John Lee and linebacker Tom Ruud were the leading tacklers with 12 and 11 respectively.

The Huskers had nine tackles for 40 yards in losses to run their two-game total to 26 for 122 yards.

Wisconsin's victory snapped a 13-game Nebraska winning streak against Big Ten Conference opponents, dating back to 1962. The last time the Big Ten won a game was in 1960 when Minnesota scored by 26-14 in Lincoln. En route to that 13-game string, Wisconsin was a victim three times (1965, 1966 and 1973).

Everett was in on one of the oddities of the day. He caught one of his own passes for a one-yard lose when it was deflected into his arms by Badger middle guard Mike Jenkins.

Mack caught four passes all told, and his 77 yarder was the fifth longest pass play in Wisconsin history. It was the longest of Bohlig's career, topping a 76-yard completion to Jack Novak last year in a 28-25 loss to Colorado.

A one-time fullback, Tom Ruud (45) showed Saturday that he hasn't lost all of his ball toting abilities. Ruud, now a senior Husker linebacker and defensive captain, leaps high to intercept a Gregg Bohlig pass and then roars upfield 28 yards to the Badgers' 17-yard line before being brought down.

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — "It was a very un-Notre Dame-like first half," said Coach Ara Parseghian Saturday after his top-ranked Fighting Irish stormed for 35 second-half points and smothered outmanned Northwestern 49-3 for their 13th straight football victory.

Notre Dame led only 14-3 after a fumbling-bumbling opening half, but then Irish halfback Ron Goodman opened the second half with a 62-yard touchdown sprint to ignite a 21point third quarter and the rout was on.

Seven different Irish players sco ed, even though Parseghian started emptying his bench late in the third quarter with the Irish ahead 28-3.

Unhappy Coach Johnny Pont of Northwestern said: "That long touchdown run (by Goodman) caught us in a veer defense and it really turned things around for Notre Dame."

Parseghian took the blame for Notre Dame's spotty first half by easing up on the Irish in practice after their 31-7 opening-game victory over Georgia Tech.

"We usually do some hitting in practice, but because of all the injuries, we had no contact work all week," said the Irish coach. "I departed from our preparation plan.

"At halftime, I talked to our players about the first half and we urged them to play a little better in the second half.

"We were generous to them in the first half, and they were generous to us in the second half when we didn't mess up our opportunities."

Northwestern will play Nebraska next Saturday in Lincoln.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)— Both coaches were in agreement about one thing after underdog Iowa topped 12-rated UCLA 21-10 Saturday.

"They really deserved to win," said UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil. "Today they (Iowa) were a heck of a lot better football team."

New Iowa Coach Bob Commings, who a year ago was a high school coach at Massillon, Ohio, concurred.

"We took the game to them," he said. "We played to win and we did. I'll tell you, that was one hungry Hawkeye team out there and they deserved what they got."

The victory ended a 12-game Iowa losing streak—the longest in the school's history, and before the final gun thousands of fans mobbed the field.

"We're a long ways from being out of the woods yet," said the jubulent Commings, "but I think we've made a pretty big step today. I think that it was very nice that the fans tore down the goal post."

Both coaches were high in praise of Iowa's defense and the play of Hawkeye quarterback Rob Fick, who a year ago could not even make the team.

"Offensively, we had to be doing something right," said Commings. "Rob had a tremendous game. I can think of only one bad pass he threw and his execution was almost superb."

Vermeil said he thought Fick executed almost flawlessly and "threw the ball real well, about like he did against Michigan last week. He just did a fine job."

Commings called the Hawkeyes' defensive effort "super."

"I really can't single out anybody before looking at the films, but I would say we received a super effort from just about everybody," he said.

Among the defensive standouts from Iowa were end Lynn Heil, linebackers Andre Jackson, Dan LaFleur and Dennis Armington and cornerback Earl Douhett.

Was Iowa overconfident after taking a 14-3 lead in the first half?

"Not really," said Commings. "At halftime I reminded the players what we worked for and told them to picture the score on the scoreboards all over the country."

Vermeil lamented the six fumbles the Bruins committed, three of which were recovered by Iowa, including one that led to a quick touchdown.

"Fumbles always kill you," he said. "You just can't do that (fumble) and win."

There was plenty of joking in the Iowa locker room afterwards.

"I think I'll resign now, I want to go out a winner," said Commings with a smile.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles said his Razorbacks weren't living in the past Saturday night when they were upset 26-7 by Oklahoma State.

The Razorbacks, coming off a 22-7 victory over Southern California, were No. 10 in the nation and a one-touchdown favorite over OSU.

"We didn't have any problem forgetting Southern Cal," Broyles said. "We just couldn't get anything good to happen to us."

Arkansas did not cross midfield until early in the fourth quarter and made only three first downs in the first three periods.

"Offensively we never regained our poise after the first series when we fumbled the ball," Broyles said. "Their three men in the middle of the defensive line were too strong for us. We worked on everything they did tonight in practice last week. We couldn't cut off the linebackers when we tried to run wide and we couldn't get to them to block them when we ran in the middle."

Broyles was asked to compare Southern Cal and Oklahoma State but he declined.

Oklahoma State Coach Jim Stanley praised his defense which held the Razorbacks to 63 yards in the first three quarters.

"The defense gave the offense a lot of opportunities," Stanley said. "We didn't cash in on our opportunities. That's what I'm disappointed in.

"We still have a long way to go. We can't make the mistakes we did inside the 20."

Seven Oklahoma State possessions ended in field goal attempts by Abby Daigle and the sophomore kicking specialist made good on four. One OSU possession ended in a fumble and another was halted on fourth down deep in Arkansas territory.

"Any win is a big win and this certainly was a big one," said Stanley.

The victory made OSU 2-0 for the season and evened Arkansas' record at 1-1.

"We've got nine games left and we're just gonna have to circle our wagons and get tougher the rest of the season," Broyles said.

Daigle's four field goals, from 21, 27, 33, and 23 yards, set an Oklahoma State record as the fired up Cowboys kept the Razorbacks bottled up in their on end of the field most of the game.

Daigle's first field goal came midway in the first quarter to climax a 69-yard drive that stalled at the Arkansas four when tight end Ron Boyer dropped quarterback Charlie Weatherbie's pass in the end zone.

Arkansas failed to move after receiving the kickoff and Hankins took Mike Kirkland's punt on his 17-yard line, cut to the left and raced 83 yards untouched for the first touchdown of the game with 4:24 left in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter, Daigle kicked a 27-yard field goal to give the Cowboys a 13-0 halftime lead.

Senior quarterback Bill Holmes scored two touchdowns and rushed for 108 yards Saturday night at Seacrest Field to power an otherwise sluggish Lincoln East team to a 16-6 Trans-Nebraska Conference football win over Hastings before 3,370 fans.

Holmes rescued East in the last minute of the first half, steering the fifth-ranked Spartans to a touchdown after eighth-ranked Hastings had taken a 6-0 lead with 4:45 remaining in the second quarter.

Hastings linebacker Bruce Beach recovered a fumble on East's 7-yard line when Spartan quarterback Dave Watters and fullback Sam Yowell missed connections on a handoff.

It was East's third lost fumble of the first half. The Tigers scored three plays later on a 1-yard sneak by junior quarterback Ed Minnick, who played the entire game in place of injured Hastings standout Doug Phelps.

Holmes, however, energized East on the second play after the ensuing kickoff, galloping 54 yards on an option play to a first down on the Hastings 24-yard line.

With time running out in the first half, East capitalized on a break when Hastings' Mike Murman was whistled for a pass interference penalty on the Hastings 4-yard line. Holmes scored on the next play with only 44 seconds left in the half.

Although Hastings battled gallantly without the services of Phelps, who sprained an ankle in practice last Tuesday, the Tigers were unable to mount an offensive threat.

The Tigers, in fact, finished with only one first down. And that came on the last play of the third quarter after error-plagued East was assessed one of its eight penalties.

Nursing the precarious 7-6 lead, East's defense produced perhaps the game's turning point play.

The Spartans charged hard as Hastings' Randy Coble tried his third "quick kick" with 3:36 remaining in the third period. East's Dan Fijan blocked the attempt and Hastings recovered for a Spartan safety.

East then added an insurance touchdown four plays after receiving the free kick. Holmes passed for 15 yards to Karl Voss and Yowell busted for five more.

After an incomplete pass, Holmes masterfully executed the option and zipped 20 yards down the left sideline for East's final touchdown.

East coach Lee Zentic expressed dissatisfaction despite his team's third straight win. "I'm really disenchanted with our offense," he said. "It's really aggravating that we can't get it untracked and put together better.

"Our defense has really come on though," added Zentic. "The defense hasn't been scored on in the true sense our last two games."

Zentic cited the performances of middle guard Tom Strasheim, linebacker Neil Mitchell, cornerback Voss, end Gordon Thiessen and monster back Holmes.

The Spartan coach also praised Hastings' spirited effort accomplished without Phelps.

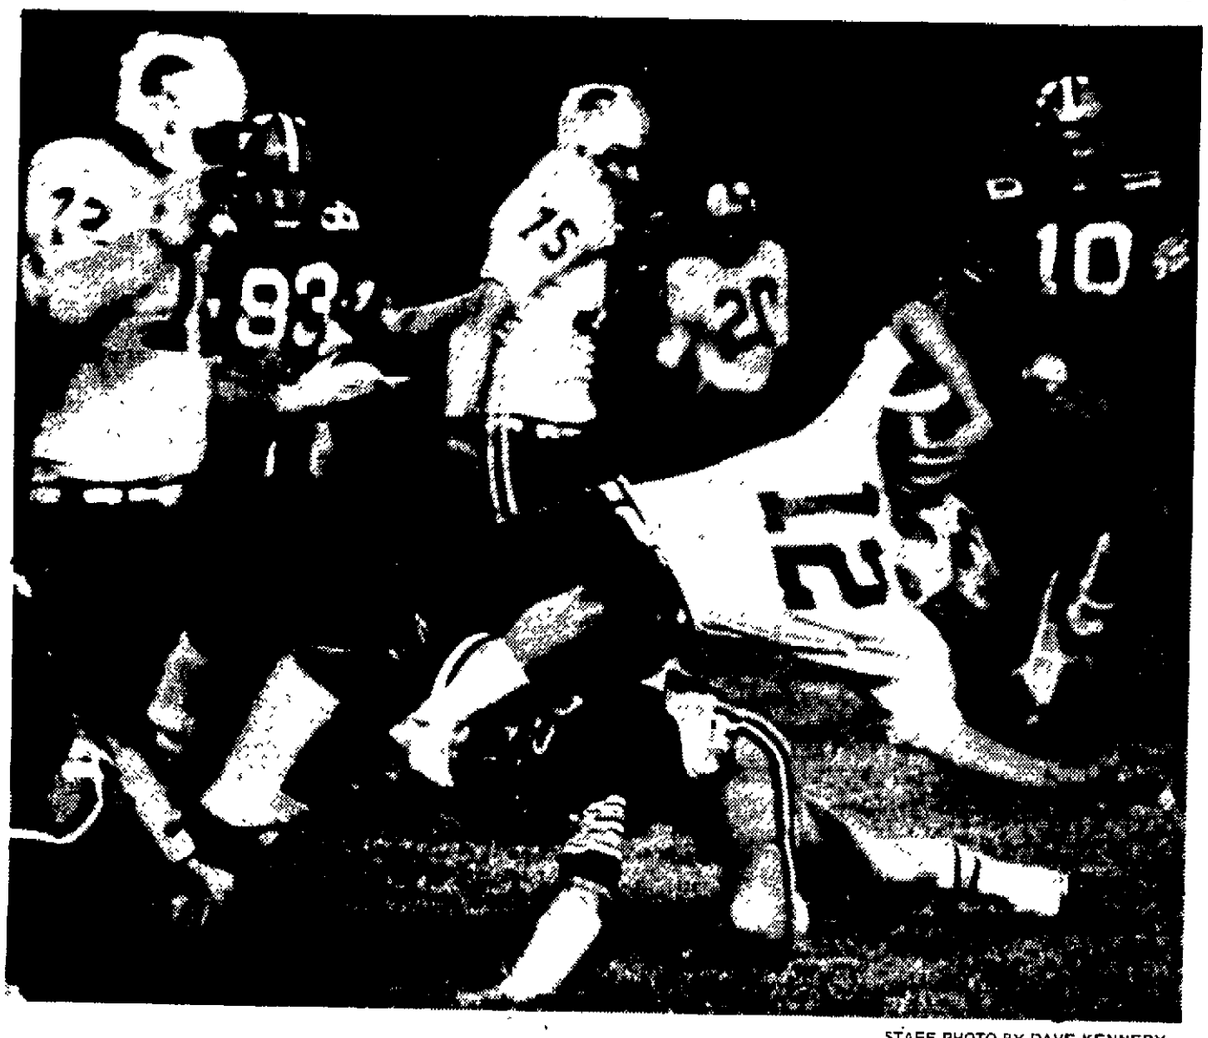

"They hit us the hardest ewe've been hit all year," offered Zentic. "I was impressed with their front six and their linebackers."

Hastings coach Norm Sheets was equally pleased with the play of his linebackers — Bruce Beach and Dave Stuehrenberg. He also cited senior tackle Pete Hohnstein.

"He never came off the field once tonight," Sheets said of Hohnstein. "I think he's as good a tackle as there is in the state."

Peru — Peru State started the 1974 football season with 105 players. Now, three games into the season, only 53 remain, a good majority of those freshmen.

But first-year coach Bob Riley's youngsters took the battle to Nebraska Wesleyan here Saturday night as the Baby Bobcats posted a 27-0 victory over the winless Plainsmen.

Peru, who just lost 14 players in the last two weeks, wasted little time showing the Plainsmen they meant business, marching 66 yards in 10 plays with their first possession.

With 10:20 left in the first quarter, Ignacio Martinez, a freshman halfback, scored from 2 yards out after a Wesleyan penalty. Dale Patton, another freshman, added the extra point.

The Plainsmen had difficulty establishing any kind of running game. Peru held coach Harold Chaffee's squad to only 7 yards rushing the first half and added insult to injury with numerous sackings of NWU quarterback Andy Federle and Dan Klaus in the second half for a net minus 9 yards rushing.

"Our defense was super," an elated Riley said in the victorious locker room. "I'm as happy as ever, but I guess I don't show it because we've got another one coming right up.

"We're on our way now," he added. "We started a lot of freshmen tonight and they really did a job for us."

Riley's freshmen accounted for all of the Bobcat's 27 points.

Patton didmore than kick PAT's for Peru. The rookie from Springfield, Ohio added two successive field goals in the second quarter. The first was a 39 yard effort that bounced over the crossbars. Three minutes later, he added another one, a 29 yard boot.

With 19 seconds left in the third quarter, the versatile freshman bolted in from one yard out and added the PAT for a 20-0 lead.

The Bobcats got their final score as another freshman Harry Phillips, backup quarterback to Rodney Carter, scrambled away from Plainsmen defenders for a 44 yard touchdown.

Mistakes, for the second week in a row, doomed the visiting Plainsmen. NWU lost two of three fumbles and suffered an early second quarter interception.

Wesleyan lost one fumble on the Bobcats' twenty and the other on their own sixteen.

"I thought we did away with those mistakes after last week," Chaffee noted. "We're just going to have to discipline ourselves more this next week. They just sacked our quarterback so many times we were just outphysicalled."

Defensively, Chaffee was somewhat pleased. "Our defense held them inside quite a bit," he said. "But they (the defense) are just playing too much of the ball game."

Riley was likewise pleased with the Bobcats defense, but a little upset with the offense. "We just weren't doing it down inside," he said. "They stopped us inside the five, and you should be able to score all the time from there. The offense was just sputtering. We should have had two or three more scores."

Wesleyan, now 0-2 for the year, will host Austin College, Texas at O.N. Magee Stadium next Saturday, while Peru, sporting a 2-1 mark, tangles with Concordia at Seward.

Abilene, Tex. (UPI) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) Mavericks led at the half, 9-7, but Abilene Christian came on strong in the second half Saturday night to claim a 35-9 victory here.

It was the 13th consecutive win for Abilene Christian, which is 2-0 for the year. UNO's record dropped to 1-2.

Wilbert Montgomery was the spark plug for Abilene, gaining 109 yards rushing, including three touchdowns. He also caught three passes for another 105 yards including a 77 yard touchdown pass.

For the Mavericks, Saul Ravenell had 122 yards rushing and scored UNO's only touchdown.

Concordia Zips Past Graceland

Seward — Tim Wareneke scored two touchdowns on runs of one and three yards to lead Concordia Teachers College over Graceland College, 22-8 here Saturday night.

Warneke also contributed 60 rushing yards while running back Don Baker led the Bulldogs with 93 rushing yards. Concordia totaled 192 yards on the ground and had a total of 250 yards but the Yellowjackets of Graceland outgained the Bulldogs by 20 yards.

Concordia, however picked off two passes during crucial Graceland drives deep in Bulldog territory to stymie the visitors' scoring efforts.

Coach John praised the offensive line for fine work and for protection of quarterback John Seevers, Jr., who connected on six of nine passes including one touchdown to Loren Larabee.

Concordia, now 1-1-1 hosts Peru State next Saturday.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Quarterback Dennis Franklin recovered a teammate's fumble in the end zone for one touchdown and passed for another and David Brown ran back a punt a school-record 88 yards Saturday in a 31-0 victory for fifth-ranked Michigan over Colorado.

Franklin, returning to the Wolverine lineup after missing the season's opener last week because of a virus, hit on 11 of 16 passes for 115 yards and picked up another 68 yards on the ground.

Franklin tossed a five-yard scoring strike to tight end Greg Denboer in the fourth quarter to close out the scoring.

Brown started Michigan's scoring in the first quarter after the Wolverine defense held Colorado on downs. Stan Koleski punted to the Michigan 12 and Brown, sidestepping the first wave of tacklers, ran untouched all the way.

Michigan drove 70 yards in its first possession of the second quarter for its next score, with Franklin falling on a Rob Lytle fumble after the Wolverine tailback punched over and dropped the ball.

Franklin guided Michigan to its third touchdown of the day midway through the third quarter, utilizing the pass catching and running abilities of Lytle to set up a 6-yard scoring run by fullback Chuck Heater.

Franklin completed three passes in the drive, the key reception a 19-yarder to Lytle, who then ran the ball to the Colorado 30. On the next play, Lytle carried a pitchout 24 yards to the six.

Doane Pummels Tarkio

CRETE, Neb. (AP)—Doane scored two touchdowns in the first three minutes of play and went on to defeat Tarkio College 29-7 Saturday night.

After the first set of downs, Tarkio punted and Doane's Bruce Batt returned in 87 yards for the score.

After Doane intercepted a pass, freshman quarterback Bo Gutzwiller threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Kerly for a 15-o lead. Gutzwiller tossed a 70-yard scoring pass to Dave Battle in the second quarter.

Wayne Downs Midland

FREMONT, Neb. (AP)—Substitute quarterback Dave Miller sparked a late drive and Brian Moeller slammed in from three yards out Saturday night to lift Wayne State to a 22-15 non-conference football win over Midland College.

The visiting Wildcats jumped on top early in the contest as Dean Ott gathered in two Rick Benedetto passes for scores.

But, the Warriors stormed back in the fourth quarter, Spencer Gilbert capping a 60-yard drive with a five-yard touchdown burst to make it 15-7 Wayne.

Moments later, Midland running back Rick Klug, a 170-pounder from Omaha, tightened things up, scampering 79 yards for a score, with Dexter Brown powering in for the two-point conversion to knot things at 15-15.

After an exchange, Midland missed on fourth and short at their own 34. Wayne took over with Miller subbing for starter Benedetto.

Chadron Falls, 7-6

CHADRON, Neb. (AP)—Chad Emanuel missed a 30-yard field goal with 16 seconds left giving Dickinson, N.D., State a 7-6 football victory over Chadron Saturday night.

Emanuel kicked a 49-yard field goal with 17 seconds left to win last week's game against Doane.

Doane's points came on field goals of 45 yards by Emanuel and 37 by Bob Lacey.

Dickinson pulled ahead in the fourth quarter on an 85-yard drive. Quarterback Doug Olson ran for 37 yards during the drive and climaxed it with a 15yard touchdown run.

It was Dickinson's third straight victory while Chadron is 2-1.

Recruiting has become the key to success in bigtime collegiate athletics. Coaches search throughout the country — in fact the world — for the talent which will make them a winner.

Did you ever hear the story behind the attempt to recruit Fairbanks, Alaska, high school javelin and high jump star Mervin Mendew?

It involved University of Nebraska track coach Frank Sevigne and a pair of bad actors — Jim Raglin, now Metro Editor of the Lincoln Journal, and Gregg McBride, retired sports writer from the Omaha World Herald.

Raglin, who at the time was covering sports for the Journal, recalls that Sevigne had employed 'world-wide' recruiting tactics to pull his Cornhusker track team out of the doldrums and challenge perennial Big Eight titlist Kansas.

"Frank's team had taken on a real international flavor," Raglin remembers. "Among others, he had recruited Keith Gardner, a fine hurdler from Jamaica, Knolly Barnes, a middle distance runner from Trinidad and Joe Mullins, a top-notch miler from Canada."

Hoax is Hatched

Raglin and McBride were discussing the chances for the Husker track team over lunch. Sevigne's team was strong in every event but the javelin and high jump, the sports experts felt.

"We decided that the best thing Sevigne could do was go to the other end of the globe (from Trinidad and Jamaica) for a super star. Pretty soon we were creating a fictional Eskimo kid from Alaska. We laughingly decided that he'd learned to throw the javelin while helping his father obtain food by spearing seals on the frozen tundra."

The more they talked, the wilder the exploits of the imaginary Mendew became. Pretty soon, Raglin and McBride decided to actually create him. "We went to the dime store and bought a tablet," Raglin continues. "We composed a letter which was supposed to be from Mervin to Sevigne, indicating an interest in attending Nebraska and inquiring about scholarship possibilities. McBride wrote it left handed."

Gregg knew an ex-Nebraskan who was a school principal in Fairbanks (how Mervin was supposed to have acquired an interest in coming to Nebraska). They sent him Mervin's 'letter' which he then mailed back to Sevigne, so the inquiry would carry the proper postmark.

The NU track coach was naturally interested. (He had to write Mervin in care of the school principal since there wasn't any mail route out to the Mendew igloo.) Sevigne's letter was sent to Raglin and McBride for answering. The round-about process continued for months.

Press Clipping

The plot thickened. The two sports writers authored articles detailing Mervin's accomplishments. The printers in the Journal back shop would set them into type, run off proofs on newsprint. Trimmed, they appeared to be news stories from a Fairbanks paper. Mervin would enclose that with his latest letter to let Sevigne know how he was progressing.

One story told how Mendew had cleared 6-6 at halftime of a basketball game between Fairbanks and Juneau, high jumping in his stocking feet. In an early spring outdoor meet, Mervin told Sevigne he'd gone over 6-10, "and could have cleared seven feet, except I kept slipping on the icy approach."

Then came the big blow. Mervin wrote that he'd been contacted by some other Big Eight schools. He was seriously considering Kansas (the hated rival) because he'd heard it was a lot hotter in Kansas "and I'm sick and tired of this cold weather up here in Alaska."

There was only one thing to do. Sevigne would take a recruiting trip to Fairbanks to tell Mervin first hand how nice and hot it gets in Lincoln in the summertime. That's when NU basketball coach Jerry Bush stepped in to break up the plot.

Sevigne says he was on to Raglin and McBride much earlier and just announced the so-called recruiting trip to Alaska in order to make the two sports writers sweat a bit and see just how far they would carry the charade. In any case, it's too bad the trip got called off. The more you think about it, the better an Eskimo who spears seals for a living sounds. He might make a heck of a javelin thrower. In fact, I heard about one from a friend of mine in Nome. His name is . . .

Huskers to Regroup After Tough Defeat

BIG EIGHT

By Virgil Parker

Madison, Wisc. — Nebraska's offense played off key much of the afternoon against Wisconsin here Saturday.

In fact, the Cornhuskers couldn't even humm in tune without their regular quarterback. But the 21-20 final score had the homestanding Badgers singing in the showers.

Cornhusker coach Tom Osborne agreed that the key to the loss came in the final five minutes when Nebraska, leading 17-14, gained a first down on the Wisconsin two yard line but failed to tally a touchdown.

"We had three plays to drive it in," Osborne said in subdued tones in a dejected NU dressing room. "But two of the three plays mis-fired."

Reserve quarterback Earl Everett, who played the majority of the time after Dave Humm was sidelined with a hip pointer, said the fullback slipped on first down, which kept that play from developing properly.

"They (Wisconsin) just played us tough on second down," Everett recalled, "and then I bobbled the snap from center on third down which ruined the timing on that play."

Osborne then called for a field goal by Mike Coyle to put the Huskers out in front, 20-14.

In answer to second-guessers who thought a touchdown try — even though unsuccessful — would have left Wisconsin at least 95 yards from a winning touchdown, Osborne said, "it wouldn't have mattered if they had 95 or 105 yards to go on the touchdown pass they completed to win the game."

The second-year NU grid boss added, "We talked about going for a touchdown, but the field goal was our play. It meant they couldn't come back and tie us with a field goal. They would have to score a touchdown to win."

Unfortunately, he added with a shake of the head but without comment, the Badgers did.

Humm refused to admit that his presence would have made any difference, though most Big Red faithful felt differently.

"The people backing me up are fine players," the Las Vegas senior said of Everett and Terry Luck, who didn't see action except to hold for Coyle's two extra points and pair of field goals.

"On a sprint option I got a helmet on the point of the right hip, Humm said.

Humm was taped up after coming out, then was reinserted to try once more.

"It just wouldn't work," he said. "I've never had this kind of an injury before, so I don't know what to expect. I had ice on it throughout the remainder of the game. I imagine I'll spend a lot of time in the whirlpool for the next few days."

How long will Humm be sidelined? "Marek (Wisconsin tailback Bill), had the same thing happen just before the season started," Osborne answered, "and he was out two weeks."

Nebraska found out how the visitor feels when he comes to Lincoln for a game. The 73,381 wildly cheering Badger boosters made it virtually impossible for the Huskers to call audibles (change plays at the line of scrimmage).

"At home the crowd will quiet down when you ask them to because they're behind you," Everett noted. "But here it was impossible with them yelling all the time. We finally just had to go on the first sound."

Everett said the Wisconsin defense didn't pose any unexpecte problems. "It was just a case of us failing to execute properly."

Osborne said the effort "was one filled with mistakes. Not only the errors near the goal line on our final drive, but throughout the game. We had four fumbles (lost two) and a pass intercepted. You can't do that against a good team and hope to win."

The Cornhusker players and coaches all emphasized that Big Red Ain't Dead, however.

"We'll be back," Humm insisted. "We have to many good people. Besides, we've already put too much work into preparing for this season to quit.

"It makes us mad to lose like this," Humm added. "This bunch will stick together and regroup."

That feeling was echoed many times in the subdued NU dressing room.

I-back John O'Leary, who suffered a cracked jaw and three chipped teeth just before scoring Nebraska's second TD, came back from a hospital visit for X-rays to play some more.

"They told me I had a slight fracture, but that it would be okay to play if I didn't get hit in the same place again. I don't think the coaches would have put me back in, but I asked to play some more, so they let me."

O'Leary added, "that might be good for us in the long run to realize that we're not unbeatable. There's only one way to go — and that's up. And that's where we're headed."

Defensive captain Tom Ruud, who had an outstanding game with a pass interception and a crucial fourth-down tackle to stop a Wisconsin drive, felt "those things don't matter a bit now that we lost. We'll just have to get at it and start proving ourselves all over again."

In addition to Humm and O'Leary, defensive end Bob Martin came out of the hard-fought clash with a sprained right ankle. It's the same ankle he hurt which caused him to be sidelined two games last fall.

The other defensive end, Tom Pate, was knocked out and appeared seriously hurt in the second quarter, but appeared recovered by the game's end.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said he found what he looked for in a football team Saturday. . . .the ability to come back.

Missouri, down 7-0 early in the second quarter, got even and when the visiting Baylor Bears pulled into a 21-21 tie, the Tigers stormed 70 yards for a touchdown in a 28-21 victory.

"It was 21-14," Onofrio noted, "and we had a cinch touchdown for us turned into a score for them. And we still came back and won it."

Onofrio referred to a 96-yard fumble return for a touchdown by Charles McClanahan after Ray Bybee, trying to get into the end zone from the one, fumbled. McClanahan grabbed the ball and ran all the way, and Baylor tied the score 21-21.

"We were backed up against the wall down there," McClanahan explained. "Someone hit the ball carrier, and I just caught the ball. All I could think of was a touchdown. . . ."

"Baylor hit hard and was a very well-coached team," said Onofrio. "Steve Beaird was very difficult for us to stop. Just bounced right away from everyone.

"We were disappointed that we could not take advantage of the two fumble recoveries in the first half. But when you come from behind to win—anytime—you have to be gratified."

Coach Grant Teaff of Baylor termed the battle "a really unusual ball game. The big thing was that we could never get our hands on the ball in the second half.

Missouri would have a long drive, we would score a touchdown and our defense would be back on the field again."

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Randy Wallace, filling in for the injured Condredge Holloway, threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to Tim Fitchpatrick and directed Tennessee to a 17-3 intersectional victory over Kansas Saturday night.

The Vols, tied for 12th in the national rankings, got the win despite losing four fumbles deep in Kansas territory.

Stanley Morgan, running as a deep back in a wishbone formation, scored Tennessee's first touchdown on a one-yard dive on the first play of the second quarter. Kicker Ricky Townsend hit a 29-yard field goal in the third period and Wallace threw 26 yards to Fitchpatrick with 3:17 left in the game.

Kansas' only score came on a 30-yard field goal by Monty Hobbs, who missed two other chances from 24 and 40 yards.

It took eight plays for the Vols to go 36 yards for their first touchdown. Tennessee's chance came when cornerback Jim Watts recovered a fumble by Kansas fullback Robert Miller at the Jayhawk 36.

Five plays carried to the Kansas 22. On fourth down, Holloway, suffering from a bruised shoulder and strained knee, came into the game to hold for a fake field goal try and passed 15 yards to tight end Tommy West. Morgan got the remaining seven yards in two tries. It was Holloway's only action for the night.

Tennessee fumbled away three other scoring opportunities in the second quarter, losing the ball at the Kansas 20, 35 and 26 and midway through the fourth quarter lost a fourth fumble on the Kansas 21.

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — It was just a matter of time until Kansas State put something together for a football victory over a fired-up Wichita State, Coach Vince Gibson said Saturday.

"Defensively, we were playing exceptionally well," the Kansas State coach said following a 17-0 victory over Wichita. "We intimidated them.

"I wasn't so worrked about losing. I knew we would get something together sooner or later."

Gibson said he was disappointed that the Kansas State offense didn't look better. But he pointed out that his team, was forced to go without its veteran fullback, Regan Steiner, out with a knee injury, and to play most of the way without its veteran quarterback, Steve Grogan. Grogan suffered a recurrence of a neck injury that left an arm numb.

"I thought our offensive line played pretty well," Gibson said. "I think our running was better—we must have rushed for more than 300 yards—but we made so many mistakes. How many turnovers did we have?"

Actually, Kansas State rushed for 331 yards and fumbled nine times, losing the ball five times.

Gibson said he had predicted all along that Wichita State would be fired up for its game against Kansas State.

"They played their hearts out," Gibson said.

New Wichita State Coach Jim Wright said he was pleased his young team could bounce back from a 59-0 loss to Oklahoma State last week and play Kansas State as close as it did.

However, Wright said he was not pleased with the mistakes his team continues to make. Wichita has lost its first three games.

"These young men have got to learn not to give a game away," Wright said.

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Dennis Fitzpatrick scored two touchdowns and passed for another Saturday to lead Washington to a 31-28 victory over Iowa State.

Willie Hendricks, who rushed for more than 100 yards, personally accounted for Washington's other touchdown. He carried the ball seven consecutive times in a 56-yard march in the final period that ended with the big fullback crashing over from the one.

Fitzpatrick also had a big ground-gaining day as Washington's new veer offense clicked for more than 500 yards.

But Iowa State was in the game all the way as Cyclone quarterback Wayne Stanley scored one touchdown, passed 39 yards to Tom Mason for another and ran and passed his team to the two-yard line late in the game with the aid of a pass interference call against the Huskies. Fullback Phil Danowsky smashed over for the final score of the game with less than a minute to play.

Mike Strachan scored the other Iowa State touchdown on a seven-yard run in the final period.

It was a 19-yard field goal by Washington place kicker Steve Robbins early in the last quarter that made the difference.

Fitzpatrick scored on a two-yard run midway in the second period and passed eight yards to tight end Paul Bianchini for another touchdown just before the intermission to give Washington a 14-7 lead at halftime.

Iowa State scored on the first play of the second quarter when Stanley sneaked in from one yard out.

Stanley came into the game early in the first period when starting Cyclone quarterback Buddy Hardeman suffered a knee injury.

Badgers Never Lacked Faith

By Tom Hawley
Madison (Wis.) State Journal

Madison, Wis. — For months, people around here have felt they knew something the Wisconsin football team apparently was unaware of — the Badgers were in over their heads. They had a murderous schedule for the first half of the season.

Anywhere in town, during the past week, you didn't have to go far to find a fan who was more than willing to settle for merely a good showing against the fourth-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers, despite Wisconsin's 28-14 victory over Purdue in the opening game.

The players didn't share the feeling, however.

"It was pretty evident before the game that we were confident," quarterback Gregg Bohlig said. It was his 77-yard touchdown toss to Jeff Mack which finally won the game, 21-20.

"It was very evident at halftime," Bohlig added, "that everyone felt we were the better team even though we were behind on the scoreboard."

"A big play can happen anytime," said Mack, who caught the winning 'bomb'. "On that play I faked toward the sidelines, then headed down the field."

Bohlig said he started to throw the ball earlier but saw a defender come up on Mack. "I just waited a little longer," the Wisconsin quarterback said, "and then threw it for all I was worth."

An official called pass interference against Nebraska defender George Kyros, but it was declined.

"The bump was slight," Mack said. "I was just glad I caught the ball."

Vince Lamia, who kicked the winning extra point, said he felt no pressure. "Everyone knows we're a good team. Now, even Nebraska."

"Clutchwise, he never came through better," said Wisconsin coach John Jardine of Bohlig. Jardine continued saying the victory was "the biggest win ever for me at Wisconsin. We believe in ourselves. I knew all week that we'd play a super game. And I knew it wasn't a false attitude."

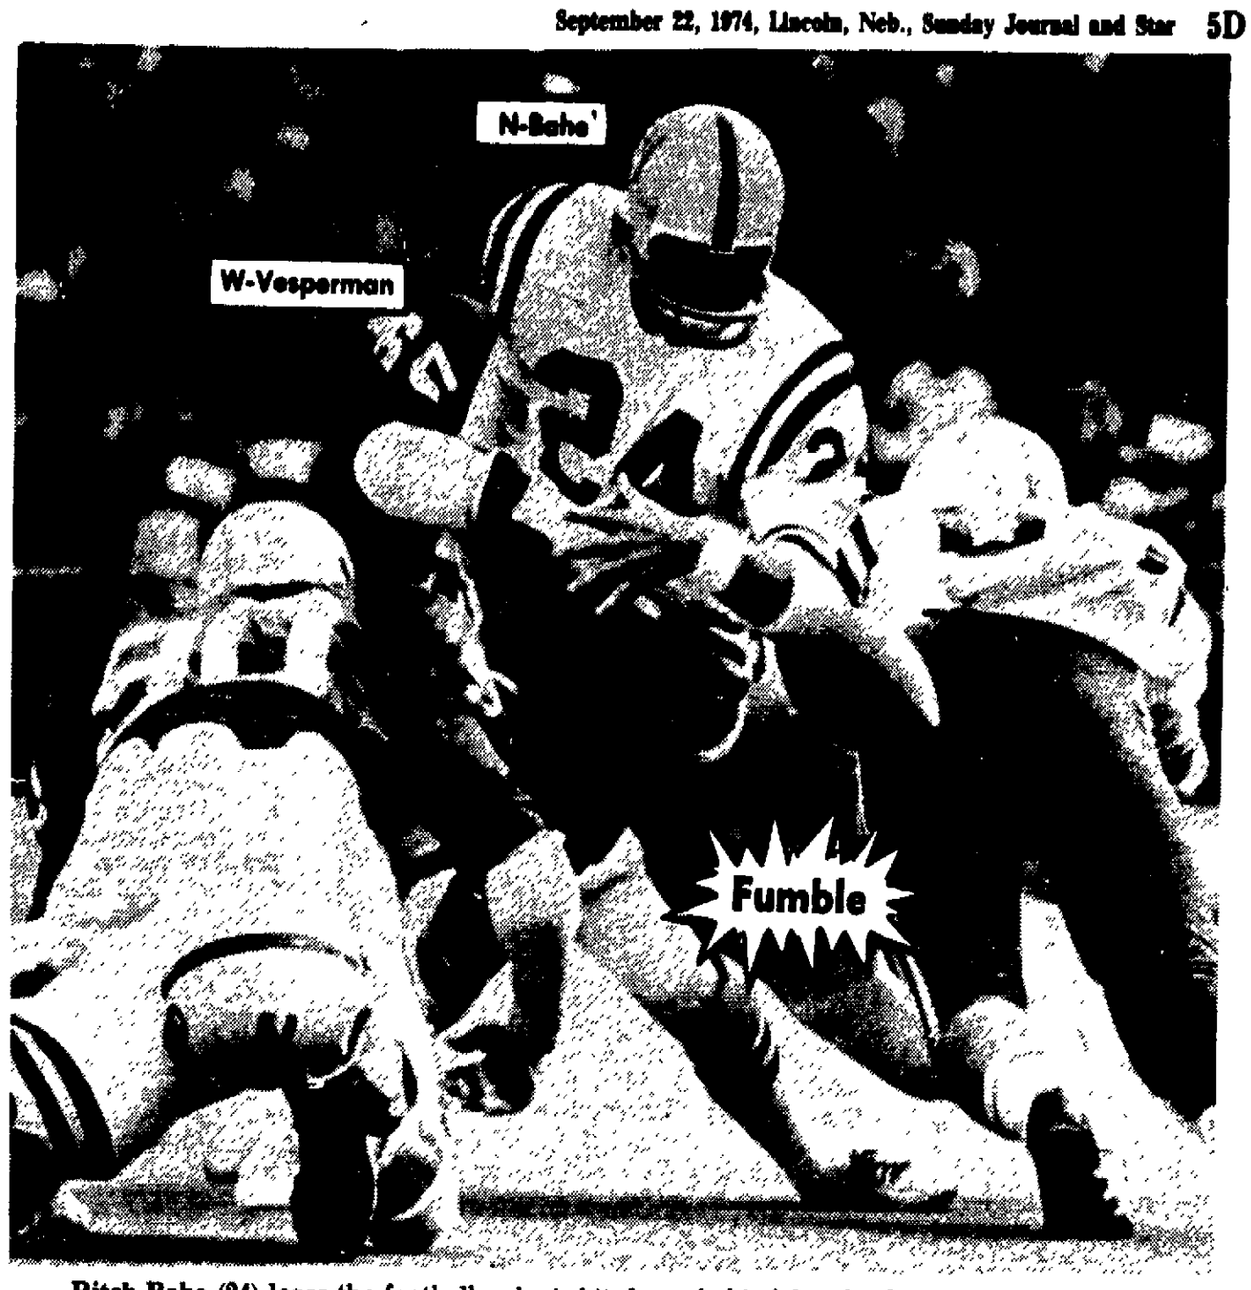

"We're No. 1," chanted Mike Vesperman, an undersized, 192-pound end, who was in the forefront of the Badger defense by making 13 tackles and forcing 3 fumbles.

Jardine said the players on the Wisconsin sideline actually got a lift from Nebraska's second field goal which ran the count to 20-14 in favor of the visitors.

"All our guys got electrified. We knew we just needed a touchdown to win."

The crowd, the largest ever for opening day in Wisconsin history, was entirely red-clad.

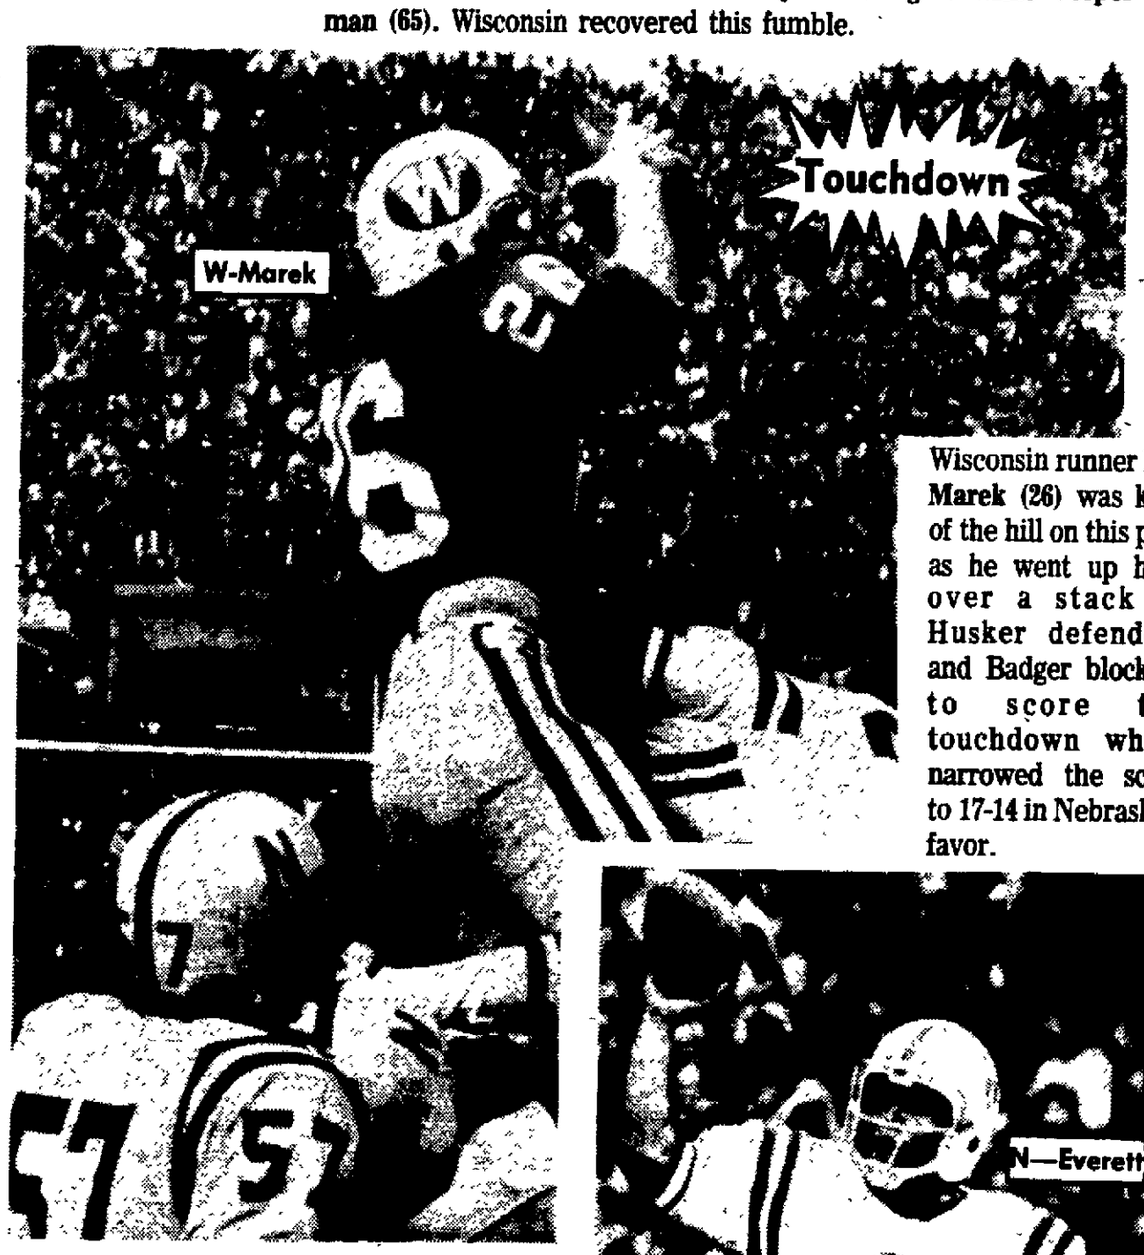

That caused Wisconsin offensive coordinator Ellis Rainsberger to comment, "I hope the people who saw the game on TV will now think that Wisconsin is really Big Red country . . . not Nebraska."

Ritch Bahe (24) loses the football as he is hit from behind by the Badgers' Mike Vesperman (65). Wisconsin recovered this fumble.

Gregg Bohlig (14), Wisconsin's senior quarterback, is under attack from a towering Cornhusker, John Lee (69).

Wisconsin runner Bill Marek (26) was king of the hill on this play as he went up high over a stack of Husker defenders and Badger blockers to score the touchdown which narrowed the score to 17-14 in Nebraska's favor.

Tom Pate (63) was in a world of his own for a while Saturday. After getting clobbered during some rough action, Pate lost consciousness and was carried from the field on a stretcher. But the tough senior from Omaha later returned to watch, with a little assistance from Husker trainer George Sullivan (left) and an unidentified helper.

It was a tough spot for Sophomore Earl Everett (9), having to take over for veteran Dave Humm when the going was rough and rugged. On this play, Everett jumped above the on-rushing Badger defense to complete a 15-yard pass to Don Westbrook.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Tony Dungy tossed four touchdown passes, three to senior halfback Rick Upchurch, and ran for 149 yards and one touchdown Saturday in a 42-30 Minnesota victory over North Dakota.

Minnesota spotted North Dakota a 10-0 lead midway through the first quarter on a 29-yard field goal Chris Dennis and a 4-yard scoring pass Brian Grover to split end Tom Reim.

Dungy then threw three scoring passes, two to Upchurch, and ran for another to give the Gophers a 28-10 halftime lead.

The 18-year-old quarterback hit junior tight end Scott Puchtel with a 9-yard scoring pass in the final seconds of the first period and came right back with a 55-yard touchdown toss to Upchurch in the opening minutes of the second quarter.

Upchurch who rushed for 87 yards and five carries in the first half, set up Minnesoth's third tally with a 31-yard run down the left sidelines to the Sioux 22. Two plays later Dungy scored on an eight-yard keeper.

The Gophers scored their final touchdown of the half with 22 seconds remaining when Dungy connected with Upchurch on a four-yard pass.

The Sioux bounced back for two touchdowns early in the third period on runs of 11 and 5 yards by junior tailback Dale Kasowski to make it 28-24.

Minnesota put the game out of reach midway through the period when fullback J. D. Pride swept right end for a 31yard touchdown.

Dungy's third touchdown pass to Upchurch early in the final quarter mmde it 42-24, before reserve North Dakota quarterback Bruce Daucsavage hit Mark Blaske with a 46-yard scoring pass with 12 seconds to go.

Dungy's four scoring passes tied a school record set by Sandy Stephens against Illinois in 1961. Upchurch's three touchdown receptions also tied a Minnesota record set last year by Mike Jones against Northwestern.

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Freshman Gralyn Wyatt rushed for 127 yards and scored twice and eighth-ranked Texas reintroduced All-America Roosevelt Leaks in a new role at right halfback to run over Wyoming, 34-7, Saturday nightd.

Wyatt blasted through huge holes in the Wyoming defense line, scoring on a 27-yard run in the first period and again from 12 out in the last period.

Leaks returned to action showing little concern for a severe injury to his right knee that required surgery last spring. Entering the game on the second Longhorn possession, Leaks cracked over left tackle for 25 yards on his first carry.

He scored on a five-yard run in the third quarter and left the game with 56 yards on seven attempts.

Freshman fullback Earl Campbell, playing in Leaks' old position of fullback, scored another Longhorn touchdown on a four-yard run in the second quarter and picked up 54 yards on 10 carries.

Starting quarterback Mike Presley scored the other Texas touchown on a 10-yard run in the first quarter.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Miami Hurricane middle guard Ruben Carter, savoring his team's 20-3 embarrassment of the Houston Cougars Saturday, said the 1974 Hurricane —unlike last year's team —is no flash in the pan.

After upsetting the Texas Longhorns to start the 1973 season, Miami floundered to a 5-6 record.

"People who think this win was a fluke are going to be surprised. This year again we showed the Southwest Conference we could beat their best, but we're going to take it right through the season this time," the 6-2, 250-pound Carter said.

It was Carter's eight tackles and his relentless pressure on Cougar quarterback David Husmann with help from defensive tackle Bruce Ely and Eddie Edwards which held Houston's explosive offense to 239 total yards, the lowest in the last 25 Cougar games.

"If someone had told me we would hold Houston to three points," a happy Miami coach Pete Elliott said, "I would have walked away. We played well when the chips were down and I'm equally proud of our offense."

The Hurricane offense called on five different running backs and got short touchdown runs from alternating tailbacks Woody Thompson, a senior, and sophomore Don Martin. But it was the defense which carried the fight to Houston.

The Hurricane, directed by junior Kary Baker, had to drive only 35 yards for its first touchdown after defensive tackle Bruce Ely recovered a Cougar fumble.

The 5-10 180-pound Martin, a sophomore playing most of the first half for senior standout Thompson, carried the final five yards around right end.

Kicking specialist Chris Dennis booted his first of two extra points at 13:34 in the first quarter and then tacked on a pair of 22-yard field goals before Thompson blasted one yard in the fourth quarter to cap the scoring.

Houston narrowed the Hurricane 10-point lead with two minutes left in the half on Lennard Coplin's 22-yard field goal, but it was the only time the Cougars got into scoring position.

The loss was the second in three games for the 10th-ranked Cougars. Miami's victory was its first game of the season.

Miami defensive tackle Ely recovered Donnie McGraw's fumble at the Houston 35 late in the first quarter and helped apply pressure that resulted in five quarterback sacks by the Miami defense. Carter, Ely and tackle Eddie Edwards hounded McGraw all afternoon.

On Miami's first scoring drive, Martin carried four of five plays capped by the score. Martin gained 51 yards on 10 carries, Thompson added 85 on 19 carries and wingback Tim Morgan got 59 yards on six rushes.

Baker completed six of 10 passes for 66 yards.

Karpov Gains Another Draw

Moscow (AP) — Anatoly Karpov and Viktor Korchnoi agreed to a draw Saturday on the 56th move of the third game of the world chess challengers' final.

The game had been adjourned Friday night after 44 moves, and the players made only 13 more Saturday, before calling it quits.

Karpov holds a 1-0 lead after winning the second game Wednesday.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — All-America Archie Griffin rushed for 134 yards and one touchdown and his brother Ray, a freshman, scored two more touchdowns Saturday to lead top-ranked Ohio State to a 51-10 victory over winless Oregon State.

The Buckeyes, despite three first half fumbles, led 23-3 at intermission on touchdowns by Pete Johnson, Archie Griffin and Champ Henson and a 32-yard field goal by Tom Klaban. The Beavers' only score in the first 30 minutes was on a 40yard field goal by Rick Kulaas.

Ohio State put the game out of reach early in the third period when junior college transfer Lenny Willis ran the second half kickoff back 97 yards for a touchdown and twoand-a-half minutes later quarterback Cornelius Greene, sprung loose by a devastating block by Archie Griffin, raced 36 yards for a score.

Ray Griffin, a 5-9, 175-pounder, wrapped up the Buckeye scoring with touchdown runs of nine and 12 yards in the final quarter.

The only touchdown for the Beavers, now 0-3, came late in the final quarter when reserve quarterback Steve Gervais engineered a 67-yard drive, hitting tailback Elvin Momon with a 10-yard pass.

Ohio State rushed for 386 yards in racking up its second win without a loss.

Michigan St. Victor, 19-0

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Sophomore tailback Rich Baes ran for two touchdowns and quarterback Charlie Baggett and split end Mike Jones teamed up for another Saturday to give Michigan State a 19-0 victory over Syracuse.

Baes, alternating at tailback with sophomore Leon Williams, scored his first touchdown early in the fourth quarter on a 5yard pitchout from Baggett.

He scored another 10 minutes later on an up-the-middle run from the two yard line.

Baggett, who never had thrown a touchdown pass in his collegiate career until last week, opened the Spartan scoring in the second quarter with a 30-yard scoring toss to Jones.

It was the Spartans' second consecutive victory. Syracuse now is 1-2.

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Sophomore halfback Rick Kane plunged over for two fourth-period touchdowns Saturday to give Oregon a 27-23 victory over Air Force in a regionally-televised game played in 94-degree heat.

Kane's second touchdown, from a yard out, settled the wild game in which the lead changed hands seven times.

Oregon's Steve Donnelly intercepted an Air Force pass on the Webfoot two yard line with just 26 seconds left as the Falcons threatened again.

Kane's first touchdown had put Oregon ahead 20-16 in the fourth quarter. But Air Force went ahead 23-20 on an 18-yard pass from quarterback Mike Worden to split end Bob Farr.

Halfback Ken Wood scored Air Force's other two touchdowns on runs of one and three yards.

The other Air Force scoring was a 33-yard field goal by Dave Lawson.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Unbeaten Navy, recovering five fumbles in its own territory, shocked seventh ranked Penn State 7-6 Saturday on a four-yard touchdown pass from fullback Bob Jackson to flanker Robin Ameen in a second period rainstorm.

Penn State battled back to score on a five-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tom Shuman to flanker Jerry Jeram with 4:41 left in the game but Shuman's pass for the two-point conversion failed.

The Nittany Lions missed another chance at victory when Chris Bahr missed a 43-yard field goal with 56 seconds remaining. It was Bahr's fourth miss of the day, followinng failures earlier from 36, 38 and 29 yards.

The loss shattered Penn State's 13-game winning streak and 21-game string of home victories. It was the first victory by an Eastern opponent over Penn State since 1970 and the first time that Navy beat the Lions since 1967.

Navy recovered two of the fi fumbles within the 15-yard li in the second half, twice sto ping almost certain Penn Sta scoring drives.

Playing in a fierce wind ar rainstorm in the first half, Nav marched 80 yards on 12 plays fo its touchdown with quarterbac Phil Poirier passing for 35 yar in the drive.

With third-and-goal on th Penn State four, Poirier pitche to Jackson to start what looke like a sweep around right en Jackson then lobbed a touc down pass to Ameen with 5 seconds before intermissio Sophomore Steve Dykes kicke the winning conversion.

About a third of the 42,00 fans in Beaver Stadium misse the Navy touchdown howeve because the rain and wind ha driven them to shelter.

Despite the loss, final statis tics showed Penn State over powered Navy with 267 yard rushing and 108 yards passing fo 375 total yards. Navy meanwhile, had only 171 tota yards on 87 yards rushing and 8 yards passisng.

Jackson had 62 yards on 1 carries to lead Navy but tw Penn State backs exceeded tha total. Fullback Tom Donche had 165 yards on 35 carries fo the Lions and tailback Walt Ad die had 72 yards on 17 attempts.

"The fumbles made the dif ference," said Welsh of the 7- victory, the first triumph for th Middies over a major power i seven years.

"I don't know if we could hav held up if they hadn't fumble the ball," Welsh said.

Coach Joe Paterno was aske if he thought of kicking for on point and the tie.

"We play to win," said the ob viously disappointed Paterno whose team lost at home for th first time in 21 games and onl the second time in seven years The Lions also saw their 13-gam winning streak fade in the mist of rain-swept Beaver Stadium.

The 24-point underdog won the game with a second perio touchdown and conversion.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Sophomore Tony Dorsett returned Saturday to his sensational play of last season, rushing for 162 yards and two touchdowns to lead the 16th ranked Pitt Panthers to a 27-17 victory over Georgia Tech.

Dorsett, who gained only 81 yards last week against Florida State, was virtually unstoppable Saturday. He raced 20 yards for Pitt's first touchdown in the opening minute of the second period, plunged across from a yard out in the opening seconds of the final period, and then furnished most of the yardage when the Panthers drove to the clinching touchdown in the closing minutes of the game.

Pittsburgh scored its first touchdown with only 4:21 gone on a one-yard sneak by quarterback Bill Daniels after Dennis Moorhead had returned a punt 70 yards.

Georgia Tech tied the score 77 with 5:21 left in the first period when Pat Moriarty capped a 77-yard drive with a seven-yard run.

Dorsett put the Panthers ahead 13-7 on the third play of the second period with his 20-yard run.

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Sophomore running back Jim Phillips ran for three touchdowns and senior defensive back Mike Gow ran for one TD and set up two field goals on four interceptions Saturday as underdog Illinois converted five Stanford pass interceptions and three fumbles into six scores for a 41-7 rout of the Cardinals.

Phillips, who carried the ball 27 times for 127 yards, scored on runs of seven yards and one twice for a 28-7 lead by the third quarter. Dan Beaver booted two FGs to make it a runaway victory, Illinois' second in as many games this season.

Stanford, an 11-point favorite, suffered its second loss in two starts. The Cards were never in the game after Gow nabbed a pass by Guy Benjamin and ran it 33 yards for a TD and 14-7 lead near the end of the first quarter.

Illinois' other score came in the final minutes of the game on a one-yard run by reserve quarterback Mike McCray while Stanford got its lone score on a 24-yard pass from Benjamin to Bill Singler.

The Cards got their six points with 4:10 remaining in the first quarter but Phillips evened the score less than three minutes later after linebacker Tom Hicks set it up by recovering a fumble. Gow followed quickly with his score and then Phillips made it 21-7 just before the half following a pass steal by linebacker Mac McCracken.

Well-Mannered Hunter Means Enjoyment

Control Essential for Dogs

OUTDOOR NEWS

A dog may be man's best friend, but an untrained hunting dog can test his owner's nerves better than three hours of grilling from the wife.

With that in mind, the Lincoln Park and Recreation Department formulated the first Hunting Dog Training Seminar, held Saturday at the Nebraska Dog and Hunt Club grounds north of Lincoln.

Some 50 dog owners, many bringing their own dogs, turned up for training aid. Nebraska Game and Parks Commission authority Chet McClain and Nebraska Dog and Hunt Club members Marv Churchill and Ed Schulenberg provided advice on problem areas, what to do and how to do it with the hunting dogs.

"The first thing you have to know is the capabilities of your dog," Churchill stated. He indicated retrieving breeds shouldn't be expected to hold on point, although many do, and so on.

Control of the hunting dog was stressed by all.

"A good hunting dog needs a lot of control," Churchill explained. "Most trainers have their own methods for getting there with a hunting dog. For instance, pointer men have different methods than does a retriever man. But most training methods are basically the same in that you have to have a dog which will do what you say."

The essentials for hunting dog control mean having a dog which will come on call, sit, stay, heel and lose no time doing the chore. Once the command is given, instant response should be demanded.

"The worst problem we have out here is control," Churchill related, "A lot of these are young dogs and could use a lot of work."

McClain and Churchill emphasized the benefits of backyard training in the basics of control. Then comes the field work, preferably with live birds to work with. Quail, pheasant or pigeons can be used.

"You can train a dog on wild birds under the law, as long as you don't make any attempt to take those birds," McClain said. "But in order to shoot birds (except pidgeons), the birds must be purchased from a licensed game farm and banded with bands purchased from the Game and Parks Commission."

Live birds can be shot on designated dog training areas, to include Wagon Train and Yankee Hill lakes in the Lincoln area. Pawnee Lake and Branched Oak Lake also have dog training areas, used regularly for field trials.

The dogs in attendance for the seminar were divided into retrievers and pointers. Churchill and Schulenberg handed retriever instruction while McClain took care of the pointers.

The pointing dogs were treated to a trial run at live quail under McClain's supervision. At the other end of the grounds, the retrievers tried their style on pigeons.

McClain showed a few of the tricks available to help instill interest in the young pointing prospects.

Churchill and Schulenberg went through the paces of training a retriever to properly return with a bird, how to mark a downed bird and getting the best hunting uses out of the hunting retriever.

"There are a lot of good dogs in this area," Churchill pointed out, "and there are a number of excellent state areas to train these dogs on. But, even with the number of dogs and the amount of ground to train them on, there is a lack of use by dog owners on these grounds."

You have to work the dogs to make them top-notch hunters, according to the training supervisors, and the best way to do that is to take the time.

Trouble areas should be referred to the professional dog trainers, but control and the basics are training areas the average dog owner should be able to complete.

Some of the more inveterate sports fans crave statistics. There's nothing really wrong with that, but whoever thinks statistics are the final answer to everything is kidding himself.

The best example to prove that point is Bobby Reynolds, one of Nebraska's most well-known all-American football players.

He was the national collegiate football scoring champion as a Cornhusker sophomore in 1950. Yet, in a highly distinguished prep career at Grand Island, Reynolds never once led his team in scoring.

A leg injury kept Reynolds sidelined for half his sophomore season at Grand Island in 1946. He quarterbacked the Islanders to Sunday Journal and Star state championships as a junior and senior in 1947 and '48.

Reynolds earned all-state acclaim both years. He was a prolific point-maker with an uncanny ability to produce the big play.

As a prep senior, for instance, his touchdown record included kickoff returns of 92 and 90 yards, pass interception runbacks of 100 and 72 yards and dashes from scrimmage of 70, 59 and 50 yards.

Reynolds True Team Player

The records are recalled to point up what Reynolds, now a Lincoln insurance man, contributed over and above statistics. He was a team player in the true sense of the word. After all, he was calling the signals in high school.

Reynolds, you see, cared a whole lot more about winning than he did about statistics.

It's not that statistics aren't important or interesting. In fact, the Sunday Journal and Star plans to pioneer weekly individual state-wide statistical leaders for Nebraska's 32 Class A schools this season.

It's not likely though that any will match the national prep football records sent to us by Vern Sheuring of Urbana, Ill.

Nebraska sophomore split end Bobby Thomas is included among them. He shares the national prep record of 22 pass receptions in one game when he played for Upper Merion (Pa.) High two years ago. He finished with 214 yards and four touchdowns in the game.

Frank Mobley of Suwannee River High of Madison, Fla., also caught 22 passes in one game. But, proving once again statistics aren't everything, his team lost.

Southern Cal senior J.K. McKay, son of Trojan coach John McKay, set the single-game national prep record of 323 pass reception yards five years ago when he was a junior at Bishop Amat High in LaPuente, Calif.

In his highly-publicized prep football career, McKay caught 207 passes, including 203 his final two years. They accounted for 3,389 yards and 48 touchdowns! Thomas finished with 176 career catches.

15 Field Goals In One Game!

Although most national prep football records seem next to impossible to achieve, the one which could stand forever is the 15 field goals kicked in one game by Alfred Griggs of Exeter (Calif.) on Nov. 6, 1915.

Ross Caputo of Judge Memorial High in Salt Lake City (Utah) holds the national prep record with a 60-yard field goal four years ago.

Marty Akins of Gregory-Portland (Tex.) High also kicked a 60-yard field goal five years ago against Arkansas Pass. But, an offside penalty against his team nullified the effort.

Southern Cal quarterback Pat Haden said he experienced his worst passing performance ever last week in USC's shocking loss at Arkansas.

He was rarely off target in high school, pitching to favorite target McKay at Bishop Amat. His senior year, Haden set the national prep record of 42 touchdown passes. He hit 224 of 373 for 3,273 yards in 13 games. Haden also owns the career mark of 7,633 yards.

Ken Hall of Sugar Land (Tex.) set most of the national prep rushing records. Among them are 520 yards in one game (on only 11 carries, a 47.3 per carry average), and 11,232 career rushing yards, including 38 100-yard or more games.

Hall also owns the national prep scoring record of 395 points in one season and 899 points in his career. But, proving that statistics don't insure success, who remembers hearing anything about Ken Hall of Sugar Land, Tex.?

Barber Opens Big Golf Lead

NATIONAL

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Old pro Miller Barber managed a two-under-par 69 and opened up a three-stroke lead—including six strokes over heavily favored Jack Nicklaus—Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Golf Tournament.

The 43-year-old Barber, trying to extend a seven-season string of at least one victory a year, put together a 54-hole total of 205, eight-under-par on the 6,990-yard, Jack Nicklaus Golf Center. But he failed to completely shake the still-threatening Nicklaus.

The Golden Bear holed one putt of 72 feet—"It's been a long time since I made a putt that long and I stepped it off," he said—and birdied two of his last four holes for a 69.

"I'm sitting in pretty good position," Nicklaus said. "Six strokes can change hands very quickly. If I play a good solid round tomorrow, well, you never know what might happen.

"It's not so much how many strokes you're behind—it's how many guys are in front of you. There's only three."

In addition to Barber, they are Mexican upset-maker, Victor Regelado, and Graham Marsh, a globe-trotting veteran from Australia who rarely plays in the United States.

Top Driver In Accident

MOSPORT, Ont. (AP) — Clay Regazzoni, leader in the world drivers' championship points race, crashed his car during Saturday's qualifying trials for the Canadian Grand Prix, but walked away from the wreck.

The Swiss driver had been running about 120 miles and hour when his Italian Ferrari crashed through a guard rail on the 2.45-mile Mosport circuit. The car buried its nose in an embankment but track marshals pushed it back to the pit area.

Regazzoni, who holds a one-point lead over South African Jody Scheckter in the world standings, jumped out of the wreck and ran across the track.

Canada Falls To Soviets

WINNIPEG (UPI) — The Soviet Nationals, powered by Aleksandr Yakushev, swept to an 8-5 victory over Team Canada Saturday in the third game of their eight-game international series.

Team Canada, made up of 27 World Hockey Association All-Stars, came back with three goals late in the third period, but it was too little, too late as the Russians took their first win in the series.

Each team has now one win, one loss and one tie. The fourth game is scheduled for Monday in Vancouver before the series switches to Moscow for the four remaining games.

The Soviets swarmed all over Team Canada throughout the first half of the last period and only the work of Don McLeod in the Canadian nets kept the Russians from further scoring.

Boris Mikhailov got his second tally of the day at 2:35. Aleksandr Bodunov made it 6-2 at 8.44 as he slapped in his own rebound. Yakushev, who was voted the Russian's most valuable player in the game, raised the count to 7-2 at 11:27 on a screen shot that McLeod couldn't see.

Then Canada came to life, with Paul Henderson getting two in a row.

It's us. Or rust.

The Ziebart rustproofing process is so effective we can guarantee your new car against rust-through for 5 years or 50,000 miles, or your money back.

Our sealant is unique. It's attracted to metal, and will creep into welded seams.

The way we put it on is unique. We don't just coat the underbody. We spray inside the doors and boxed-in areas of the body with nine patented spray tools.

As a result, your car is really rustproof. As well as squeakproof, rattleproof and dustproof. So Ziebart rustproofing should more than pay for itself whenever you trade in your car.

So far, over 1,000,000 cars have been Ziebart-protected. Once people find out they have a choice between us and rust, most of them choose us. How about you?

Kluska Uses Different Alleys to Top Bowlers

REGIONAL

John Kluska showed it wasn't the alley that makes the bowler when he recorded the week's top two series in Lincoln league action, rolling a 742 total at Hollywood and a 727 at Plaza.

In notching his 742 mark, Kluska put together games of 243, 248 and 251, while his 727 score came on games of 269, 258 and 200.

Tom Vint, bowling in Plaza's Sunday morning league, found that alley to his liking as he fired his first 300 game.

Hollywood and Plaza were also the site for a pair of bowling rarities when Helen Sissel shot a 148 triplicate and Eric Dodds fired three straight 129 games.

Jean Kohlman, shooting at Bowl-Mor, had the week's top woman's score when she used a 235 game to build a 621 series

In the junior leagues, Tim Moeller rolled his first 600 series, with a 222 game helping him to a 601 total. However, the week's top junior score went to Gerry Keslar, also bowling at Hollywood, who had a 246 high game and 658 series

Swim Classes Still Available

There are still openings in Red Cross swimming classes for boys and girls held at Lincoln High School pool. These classes are from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. every Wednesday evening continuing through December 18. In addition to courses in beginning swimming, advanced beginner, intermediate, and swimmer courses are offered.

Seniors Golf Tourney Set

The Nebraska State Seniors Golf Championships open three days of competition at Hillcrest Country Club in Lincoln Wednesday.

Host pro Bunny Richards says a field of 185 has already entered to challenge defending champion Pete Czura of Lincoln.

The 54-hole medal play tourney — 18-hole rounds are set for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday — will feature play in six separate age divisions.

Only golfers 55 years of age or older will be eligible for the overall senior's title, although a younger group of 'seniors' from 50 to 54 will crown their divisional champion.

All other entrants, while competing for the top spot, will also battle for five other age division titles. They will be divided into groups from 55-59; 60-64; 65-69; 70-74 and 75 and over.

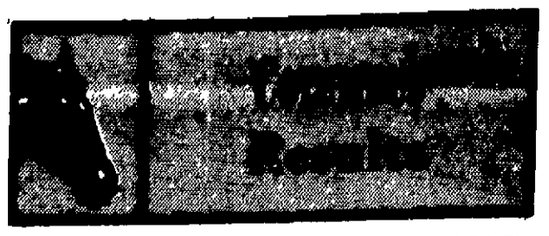

PPK Contest Deadline Soon

Local youths are reminded that they have less than two weeks to register for the 14th annual Punt, Pass and Kick program co-sponsored nationally by the National Football League and the Ford Dealers of America.

Any youngster, 8 through 13 years of age, accompanied by a parent or guardian is eligible to register at Meginnis Ford. Registration ends October 4.

There is no cost to register and each entrant will receive a free Punt, Pass and Kick Tips Book which includes a complete set of rules, helpful conditioning exercises and important punting, passing and place-kicking tips by outstanding pros.

Participants compete only against other youngsters in their own age group.

Energetic Patti Poppert Eyes Karate Black Belt

Aaaiiiee!

For Lincolnite Patti Poppert, a brown belt in karate, the strenuous martial art is fun as well as a means of self-defense. After about a year of lessons, Patti kicks and punches with some of the best. She's moving to board breaking next with an eye on a black belt.

Staff Photos by Dave Kennedy

By Valerie Elmore

Patti Poppert stood back to catch her breath. She had just stomped, slashed and kicked her way across the large room with 24 other yelling, grimacing combatants.

The young woman watched fellow students working out and could not resist interjecting a few words of instruction.

"No, like this, see," she said, her hands forming tight fists. "Aaiieee!" Her arm, pulled back tightly at her side, lashed out in a quick, strong mock move with the potential to seriously injure an assailant.

Sunday Journal and Star

PEOPLE

September 22, 1974 1E

Patti wears one of the two brown belts in this class of Tae Kwon Do (pronounced Tie-Kwawn-Doe) at the Omaha Karate and Judo School in Lincoln. Originally interested in learning self-defense because her husband, Kirby, was out of town often, mastering karate has become a goal for the petite, athletic young woman whose perpetual energy and enthusiasm can be compared to a Husker football fan right after a touchdown.

She's looking forward to breaking boards and earning a black belt in the martial art.

"I get scared when I think about breaking boards," she said, catching her breath. "I know you can break your hand if you're not concentrating right. I've seen people break boards . . .I just don't know." She laughed.

"I Can Do It."

But then her enthusiasm seemed to spurn confidence. "I can do it," she stated. She joined the group again, pairing off with the other brown belt holder for a bit of sparring.

Tae Kwon Do might be called a polite sport since sparring partners bow to each other before the lashes and kicks begin.

Tae Kwon Do is a Korean term for "the art of hands and feet." There are several other variations of karate, a form of self-defense traded from one country to another for centuries. There are Japanese, Chinese and Taiwanese variations, among others, each differing in the way the body is used in self-defense.

"Aaaiii!" Patti's partner twisted in a lightning throat kick that she blocked with arms parallel. In class, kicks and blows are stopped just before contact or aimed to slightly miss to avoid injury. But in actual defense, these blows and kicks are aimed at the most vulnerable spots on the human body such as the throat. A proper blow to the throat is deadly.

According to instructor Roger Terrell, although a few toes and fingers have been broken in classes at the school, there have been no serious injuries. "I just try to be careful and fold my fingers and toes right," said Patti. "I had a friend who broke some toes because he didn't have them bent right."

Body Conditioning

Another important thing in karate is body conditioning. The sparring is always preceded by warm-up exercises. The thrice-weekly classed start with 20-minute warmups that inlcude kicking, sit-ups and leg exercises on a bar similar to a ballet bar only higher. These exercises stretch and relax muscles that could be pulled or strained if unconditioned.

Drills follow the warm-ups. In these drills, students form several lines across the carpeted room. Then Terrell, a second-degree black belt, yells in resonant staccato, "Around! Double punch! Triple punch! Two!" The group advances, grimacing and gritting teeth, arms punching in quick jabs, ending breathless.

Yelling, no matter what the sound, whether it's a growl, grunt or scream, is part of Tae Kwon Do. A kick accompanied by a good scream can unnerve an attacker. The release of air helps pack more strength behing the jab.

It is also used in the class during sparring as a signal that the kicks and blows will soon follow.

The class of 16 men and nine women contains all levels of the belt which signify ability. The novice usually begins with a white belt and progresses up through the yellow, green, blue and brown belt stages to the coveted black belt. The darker the belt, the higher the skill.

Black Belt Beginning

"But the black belt is only a beginning," said Patti, who has been taking karate lessons for about a year. Terrell interjected that it takes longer to move from different degrees of the black belt than from one belt to another.

The reasons for taking Tae Kwon Do are numerous for class members. Patti, a hair dresser by profession, loves sports, playing volleyball and softball with the City Recreation Dept. She says karate is fun and keeps her in shape as will as being a form of self-defense.

For some it is a way to release tension, for others a point of pride. For the more serious, it is a discipline.

As for Patti, it's on to board-breaking and her black belt. And one thing's certain: she packs quite a wallop.

The Lemon Law: Bill in Works To Aid Owners Of New Clunkers

By Don Phillips

Washington (UPI) — Buyers of shiny new cars which turn out to be "lemons" may soon be able to make the manufacturers or dealers pay for having them fixed.

No legislation can eliminate the frustration of finding the streamlined dream in a showroom is a clunker on the road.

Congress, however, is close to approving legal protection for the consumer against having to finance repairs for safety defects which at present neither the dealer nor manufacturer will pay to correct.

The "Lemon Law"

The bill, known on Capitol Hill as the "lemon law," is an amendment to a routine extension of the 1966 National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safely Act. Its sponsors believe it would go a long way toward satisfying consumer complaints about defective automobiles.

Recent survey by the White House office of Virginia Knauer, the President's consumer affairs adviser, showed automobiles led the list of consumer gripes about the products and services they buy.

The pioneering 1966 law authorized the government for the first time to regulate auto safety, including a requirement that the manufacturer recall defective vehicles for repairs. But it left open the question of who would pay to have them fixed.

Complaints that General Motors refused to finance repair of leaky heaters in its early Corvair models and that Volkswagen did the same with some faulty windshield wipers, prompted demands in congress that the manufacturer be held accountable for his errors.

The result is a measure now nearing final action by house and senate conferees that would require manufacturers to repair safety defects free of charge within eight years after the car is purchased.

The bill would relieve the owner of a "lemon" of any financial responsibility in a recall campaign, and could even force automakers or dealers to give owners a refund or a new car if repairs were not performed promptly.

At the same time, the bill would make optional rather than mandatory one of the most controversial safety devices ever installed on a car, the seat belt interlock which prevents a car from starting until the driver has fastened his lap and shoulder seat belts. The devise is now required for all 1975 models.

Passive Restraint

The major obstacle to final agreement over a compromise is a disputed proposal to allow the Transportation Department to require eventual use of the air bag or similar "passive restraint" system designed to cushion the impact of a highway collision.

Also, unresolved is whether the conferees will approve a House proposal to require repair or replacement of defective tires within three years of purchase.

Since the original law was enacted in 1966, there have been 1,500 manufacturer recalls involving 45 million vehicles. About 10% of the owners, totaling 4.5 million persons, have been forced to pay for the repairs themselves.

Many car owners have been reluctant to bring recalled cars in for repairs because of costs or active discouragement from dealers lacking necessary parts or unhappy with reimbursement arrangements from manufacturers.

The new law generally would work thus way:

—Manufacturers would be required to notify all owners of safety defect promptly by first class mail and be prepared to make any repairs.

—Instead of making repairs, the manufacturers could give the owner a new or equivalent car or could refund the purchase price, less depreciation. He would be required to do so if the car is not repaired within 60 days after the owner brings it in.

—Manufacturers would be required to give "fair and equitable reimbursement" to dealers who perform repairs.

—If the manufacturer does not repair safety defects voluntarily, the transportation secretary could require him to.

K-99 Education Needed

By Jane Meninga

In the ballgame of consumerism, businesses traditionally have knocked in most of the home runs.

The reason, says Karen Hull, cooperative extension specialist in consumer affairs at Iowa State University, is that consumers don't know the rules of the game, often don't show up for bouts with businesses and, worst of all, couldn't care less.

"It's time we help consumers become more aware of their rights and then teach them how to exercise those rights," Mrs. Hull told members of the Consumer Alliance of Nebraska (CAN) in Lincoln Saturday.

Speaking to some 30 CAN members at the group's first annual meeting, she urged each of them "get concerned about the 100s of 1,000s that weren't at the meeting."

Consumer Gap

Consumers need to sharpen up to avoid falling into the "consumer gap — that gap between what you hear and are promised and what you actually experience," she said.

For instance, she said, the Federal Trade Commission found that a so-called diet bread, advertised as sure weight loser, only was cut in thinner slices. Or that some soup advertisers used to put clear marbles at the bottom of bowls to make the product look like it was packed with meat and vegetables. Opening it at home brought a different picture, she said.

Mrs. Hull also urged consumers to wipe away the feeling of being "a nobody in a big government, big business marketplace."

The consumer should feel important; his voice does count, she said.

If the public speaks out, it can make more hits in the ballgame of consumerism. She listed some top homeruns: truth in packaging; terms such as jumbo, giant, full gallon on products being outlawed; permanent care labeling; fair credit reporting act; health and safety standards.

What more progress can consumers make to develop this country into a more livable place?

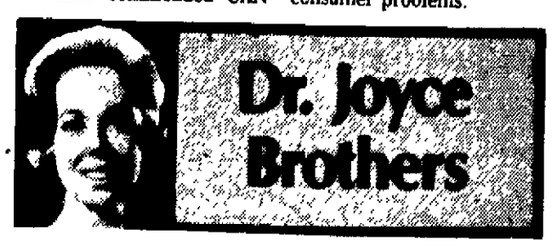

K-99

"We can fight for more legislation and agency regulation," Mrs. Hull said. "But, most importantly, we need a K-99 (kindergarten through age 99) education."

Mrs. Hull commended CAN for its progressive strides during its first year of action.

The group, now affiliated with the Consumer Federation of America headquartered in Washington, D.C. fought for consumer-oriented legislation during the last Unicameral session and has worked with the State Education Dept. and the State Board of Education to increase consumer education in the school system.

In addition to selling special envelope stickers saying "Warning-This Consumer Cares," CAN members are also conducting a survey of Nebraska government officials to determine their analysis of the state's consumer problems.

Schmooze is a Yiddish word meaning "to chat idly or to gossip."

To the author of "The Organization Man," William H. Whyte, schmoozing is a break in the work day, usually occurring between noon and 2 p.m. The schmoozer, he says, must be standing in the street, sidewalk or plaza . . . and he must be talking.

Schmoozing in its finest form can be observed in New York's garment and diamond districts during the lunch hour. Both are like market places of old, with crowds of people talking to others who hold similar jobs — cutters talking to cutters, buyers to buyers, sellers to sellers.

In New York, you'll also find a lot of schmoozing going on directly outside of office buildings. "When schmoozing occurs there," Whyte observes, "it is a mark of deprivation. For example, there must be no place to sit."

Schmoozing begins after lunch. Usually schmoozers stand in a row. There seems to be an invisible line over which nobody steps. Schmoozers, mostly men, may get in a little girl-watching.

A chance meeting on the street can qualify as schmoozing, provided the encounter lasts at least five minutes.

Another variation of schmoozing is what Whyte calls "the three-wave-goodbye kind." This involves a conversation of a few minutes, that lasts longer because the balance of the time is spent saying goodbye. "Such schmoozers make two false starts," he explains, "and then finally make it for a goodbye."

A schmoozer likes a well-defined schmoozing place and prefers to have his back against something. He is attracted to pillars. There even seem to be patterns in what pillars are most popular in a particular area.

Other favorite schmoozing places are the middle of a street, the entrance to a large store, a busy street corner. Ledges are not so much schmoozing places as people-watching havens.

Syrup Care

If you haven't kept maple syrup in a cool dry place, it may be fermented. The fermentage, however, does not spoil the syrup; to restore it to its normal flavor, heat it to the boiling point and skim. Turn into a jar, cover tightly and refrigerate.

Women Men

'Man Made Society—He Can Change It'

By Linda Ulrich

He explores the hills of New Mexico in a '54 Chevy pickup. And speeds all around Lincoln on a $300 bicycle.

But even when Preston Holder is standing still, he keeps moving because he has an insatiable desire to discover, "the kinds of things people have done with their heads and written about."

He's been a telephone lineman, a boiler maker's helper in the Merchant Marine and because he had a natural talent for "reading the dirt", has done numerous archeological excavations as well as been chairman of the University of Nebraska Anthropology Dept.

If you ask him why he wears his hair in a ponytail he will tell you he has a hair condition. It keeps growing.

Some people describe him as a "character" (with all sorts of adjectives attached).

Preston describes himself as "crotchety" and "a bit of a maverick."

There may be a little bit of truth in all that but there's lots more.

Sure Knowledge

Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at NU — "that means they've stopped paying me" — Preston has an expansive vision of American society and the history of civilization and a sure knowledge of the inter-relatedness of most everything.

His personal definition of anthropology is a study of cultures which should be "an attempt to get insight into the very area you're blindest in."

He works with the premise that "man made society. He can change it, too."

Society isn't a static thing, Preston gently reminds. "You can hold it back so long and then whap!"

That's what the American Indian Movement is all about, and Preston thinks it's about time.

Preston Holder

His Ph.D. studies included field work with the Arikara Indians along the Missouri River, reconstructing as much as possible the life of their ancestors.

He "popularized" his findings and published them in a book "The Hoe and the Horse on the Plains," which is "really about conflict and culture and change among the original inhabitants of the plains in relationship to the white 'intruders'," Preston explained. And it deals with the question of what causes some cultures to remain the same and others to change rapidly.

He especially examined cultural genocide, the phenomena in which "white men ruined the old values of the Indians and gave little in return.

Being Indian

"That's why I'm very excited about Indian militancy because it means Indians are getting back into being Indian," he said. The Lakota Sioux are doing the old-time Sun Dance again.

"For any group to recognize its own worth — not to be told but to recognize for themselves — is what gives that culture its backbone."

And anyway, he says, in his studies he found the Indians to be more human, more considerate, more willing to treat people as equals than many of the whites.

Preston sees analogical threads running through all social movements. From civil rights ("blacks are still in a bad position but now they're in a position to fight") to women's rights, the struggles are much the same, he observes.

"Of course I have my prejudices too," he says. Among them, he said, is some male chauvinism, which he continues to fight:

"Even with all the conviction and understanding and insights in the world, some of the old stuff runs deep," he noted.

And even if prejudice is conquered, "it's very important to be very aware of the problem of being patronizing."

Prevailing Problem

That's always a problem with people of the dominant culture, he said, and the minority has the right to say 'to hell with you, whitey.'

Preston believes that attitude is, in fact, more and more prevalent.

He asks the members of the dominant culture to remember that "you want your way to be right. And it is in your way. But it's got a lot of holes in it too."

With that realization comes the next one: Indians have to help themselves.

And in the feminist movement, "men won't help women advance it (the movement). Women will advance it but in the process will transform men."

Preston says his sympathies have always been with the underdog. "I never liked the establishment too well."

Society's Future

To those who see change in American society in terms of disintegration and accompanying doom, Preston offers this reply: "Mankind's future has always looked bright. Look what lovely beginnings. But men's future isn't always bright."

Maybe that's why some people, like Preston, see the need for change.

Preston's wife, Joyce, is a practicing anthropologist and professor of anthropology at Nebraska Wesleyan University. They have three children ranging in age from 19 to 32.

Preston says it is impossible to give up interest in anthropology. He plans to keep on with it for a long time and to write more and better books.

Going Like Sixty

By Jack Smith

YOU ASK: Aren't there lesser-known retirement states where the traffic isn't so intense yet — say Idaho?

ANSWER: Surely. I would think senior living would be rather good in Idaho. I spent several years there as a kid and my memories are all good.

Q. But is the traffic less intense there?

A. Well, the highways are wider, so to speak. There is more land. You don't have to live so close together. But as for growth, the Boise (that's the capital) Valley is the third largest growth area in the nation.

Q. What is Idaho like, geographically?

A. You could call it the split-level state. If you like mountain air and terrain, you should live in the upstairs, the north. If it's more desert-like living you prefer — relieved by foothills you can climb and deep river canyons you can explore — the first floor south is the place to be.

Q. Then southern Idaho is rather like Arizona?

A. Somewhat. Not quite as hot in the summer, a little more humid in the winter.

Q. Is it mostly sagebrush and sand?

A. Oh, No. The Snake River Valleys in the south are richly agricultural. Idaho has one of the best developed irrigation systems. Idaho's major farm reputation is for potatoes, but the state also is big in sugar beets, wheat, and barley. Apple and other fruit orchards are prevalent along the Snake.

Q. What is the main agricultural resource in the north?

A. Timber. Some of the most beautiful forests in the world are in northern Idaho — pine, spruce, fir, hemlock. Forests cover 39% of the state.

Q. How's the cost of living?

A. Consumer products are higher because many are shipped from the East and Midwest. Utility rates are a little less.

Q. What are you faced with in taxes?

A. State income taxes range from 2.5% on the first thousand up to 9% on the fifth thousand and over. If you are over 65, the first $2,625 is exempt or, if married, the first $4,950. Sales tax in the state is 3%. Real property tax will not exceed $75 if the full cash value is no more than $15,000 and you have lived in the state 10 years.

Q. Is good housing available reasonably?

A. Not really. The state Office on Aging concedes that public housing is still barely adequate. There are presently nine developments with 700 units. The private retirement developments are more prevalent near Boise in the south and Couer d'Alene in the north. Rentals are moderate if you have a good income from a job or investment, a little steep if you don't. The best thing to do is to get the local Sunday editions of papers in towns you're considering (write to the circulation department) and study the real estate ads.

Q. Any suggestions as to locations?

A. I would recommend that you consider some of the medium-sized towns that are not so crowded. In the north, if you want to be near a good school, Moscow is the site of the state university. Wallace and Sandpoint are other northern possibilities. In the south — Nampa, Caldwell, Twin Falls, Idaho Falls, and Pocatello.

Q. Are recreation opportunities good in Idaho?

A. Among the best. Not so much in the sedentary sit-on-your-duff sports. But great in hunting, fishing, camping. By the way state parks are free to seniors.

Angela Davis Living 'The Revolution'

Communist Party Member Grants Rare Interview

Berkeley, Calif. (AP) — Angela Yvonne Davis wears two chains about her neck, one of gold, one of ivory. More than adornment, they are chains of commitment.

From a thin golden chain hangs a small hammer and sickle, symbol of the Communist Party to which black militant Angela Davis belongs.

From an ivory strand of beads hangs a dragon, ancient symbol of strength and harbinger of the revolution Angela Davis predicts will crush capitalism.

The writhing, almost translucent dragon evokes other forces — prison and private passion — which have made Angela Davis both celebrated and notorious among American and international revolutionaries.

"People who come out of prison can build up the country," wrote North Vietnamese Communist Ho Chi Minh in a prison poem. "When the prison doors are opened, the real dragon will fly out."

Once imprisoned herself, Angela Davis is bound to the prison reform movement and the effort to free thousands of persons of all races she considers unjustly jailed as political prisoners.

The convulted chain also evokes memory of the man Angela Davis loved — prison revolutionary George Jackson, slain by San Quentin Prison guards in an escape attempt on Aug. 21, 1971.

By one account, as he pulled out a gun, Jackson said:

"The dragon has come . . . The black dragon has come."

The chain of gold, the bond of ivory; these hang gently, hang heavily in the life of Angela Davis.

Pig Tail Girl

Once a pig-tailed Girl Scout from Birmingham, Ala., where her parents taught school, Angela Davis today is an Afro-coiffed Communist who believes with passion and cold historical analysis that revolution is inevitable.

She says she believes that, next to South Africa, America is the most racist country in the world; that racism and repression are rising and that, more than ever, America is receptive to socialist revolution and that Watergate helped sow the seeds.

"I'm going to be committed to the struggle as long as I live," she says. "There is no alternative. It would be like committing suicide to leave the struggle."

Angela Davis

Two years ago the former UCLA philosophy instructor was acquitted by an all-white jury of murder, kidnaping and conspiracy. The charges grew out of an Aug. 7, 1970, Marin County courthouse escape attempt in which a judge and three other persons died. She was accused of buying guns that killed them.

For two months, Angela Davis was hunted, one of the FBI's Most Wanted fugitives. For 18 months she was imprisoned while crowds chanted "Free Angela. Free All Political Prisoners."

When she was freed on June 4, 1972, Angela Davis declared her acquittal a "people's victory" and vowed. "I can begin to give all I have to free all political prisoners and oppressed people."

Today, Angela Davis is one of four co-chairpersons of the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression, a loose coalition of 130 community, ethnic, labor, religious, prison, civil rights and other groups with 25 chapters in 21 states.

Lectures

She travels around America to lecture, raising money for the radical, non-tax-exempt Alliance. She lives off the advance payment for her autobiography and said she will give future proceeds to the Alliance.

She says she would like to live without police surveillance of her small home in a black working class neighborhood of East Oakland; to live without threats of death and violence.

She would like to go shopping without being recognized and asked for her autograph which she gives with the word "solidarity."

"I really would prefer to have someone else do all this," she says.

But those things must come later, if at all, for Angela Davis.

"You know," she said very softly, bending her head into shadow, "when I start thinking about all the things that I would really like to do, then I also reflect upon what might have happened if all the people involved in the movement for my freedom had decided they would do what they like, instead of making sacrifices."

The bond of gold and ivory circles the life of Angela Davis.

"History is moving in the direction we represent," she said during a rare interview. "In the end we know we are going to win . . . People are receptive to revolutionary ideas."

"Watergate," she said grimly, "has helped a great deal. We have been saying for years that there is an apparatus of repression used against political activists and people who express their opposition to government."

Wearing burgundy slacks, high-collared burgundy shirt and brown leather jacket, Ms. Davis (she prefers that title) arrived for the interview with two women friends who sat by quietly.

Her words are carefully, precisely chosen. Again and again she speaks of historical inevitability. She might be addressing a class.

Pipe Smoker

"I took up smoking this pipe because I used to smoke four packs of cigarets a day. Everyone asks me what's in it," she grinned, holding it up and filling the round bowl with tobacco.

"It's another symptom of our male supremacist society that people think only men should smoke pipes . . . but please don't take my picture while I'm smoking," Angela giggled.

The state of North Carolina and its prisons are a major national focus for the Alliance she co-chairs. Ms. Davis calls it "The state which exhibits the most severe and concentrated forms of repression in the country."

There are 50 people on death row in North Carolina, more than in any other state. This fall the U.S. Supreme Court will hear a challenge to the state's death penalty law.

"If a precedent is set there for executing human beings once more, it's going to happen all over the country," she adds.

Angela knows what it's like to live behind bars. She is personally involved in the case of Marie Hill, a 21-year-old black woman convicted of murdering a white storekeeper five years ago, now serving out her life in a North Carolina prison. "She was forced to sign a confession under threat of death," Angela says.

"There's really not much to say about me," Angela Davis shrugged. But her famous gap-toothed smile and extravagant Afro are recognized wherever she goes.

America is far better off without Richard Nixon, she said, "but that doesn't touch the major problem. Because the real issue isn't so much related to politicians as individuals and being immoral. It has to do with the corporations in this country, the monopoly corporations. Nixon was their spokesman."

Increasingly, American corporations are being thrown out of other countries, Angela explained, and in order to maintain their profits they turn inward and exploit workers domestically.

And because people will fight exploitation, she says, "far from being on the way out, repression is rising, the level of racism is rising and leaning on much more subtle forms than in the past."

Angela lightly touches the chains about her neck. A slow, sardonic smile touches her lips.

Would a revolutionary, a feminist, like to get married and have children?

"I'd like to," Angela Davis said slowly, a little shyly, as though speaking of a distant goal. "But it's difficult to talk about that realistically when you don't even have the time to do the kinds of things that are conducive to meeting people that you would want to have children with.

"My first commitment is to the Alliance . . . If in the context of my commitment to the struggle, I can find time to do the things I'd like to do . . . then I will. But all that has to be secondary."

Fall, Winter Dates Are Set

Mr. and Mrs. Don Etmund announce the engagement of their daughter Jane to David Firestone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Firestone.

MONDAY, SEPT. 23

Your birthday today: Coincides with the equinox. The Sun is directly over the equator at 5:59 a.m. EDT, beginning the zodiac sign Libra. Those born earlier have the Sun in the last degree of Virgo. For all today's natives this year promises unusually interesting changes in work and relationships.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: If you know what you're buying, go ahead, but check that you get what is agreed. Sentimental ventures seem neglected—cheer up, there'll be another time.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: When your patience runs out, stop. Take a deep breath, strive for serenity. Insight eventually brings about renewed relationships. Avoid overdoing your work.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Close associates require tact. Be wide-awake, observant if you must travel. Protect your loved ones from echoes of your problem-solving struggle.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Money is a root of discord if you permit it to be. Your own decisions, put into action without boast or apology, work best. Let well enough alone.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Aggressive moves, impatience with business contacts are to be restrained. Work on existing ventures rather than starting new ones. Home life needs your gentle touch.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Seek solitude to gather your thoughts. Almost any suggestion from you provokes an extreme response today. Spend time improving your health.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Be firm and specific about arrangements already made—stay out of new ones elaborated by your friends. You have enough at home to consider just now.

Aries [March 21-April 29]: Business matters are unsettled, some moves being premature. Family ties are momentarily tense. You resolve the situation by accepting people as they are.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Temporize, give current stresses time to come to balance, as people see other sides of the issue.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Expenses increase, while bright prospects on a new job decline.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Anything will do as a playing piece in a bicker game. You needn't get into it at all.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Just because the work is marked "rush" doesn't mean you have to be hasty or to attempt more than you can handle. Special care with anything mechanical is advised.

Front Porch Forum Lost to Fast-Paced Modern World

Mrs. Paul Matt . . . porch relaxation.

By Harold Spence
Special Contributor

Did front porch sitting disappear before the front porch passed out of the picture? Or was it the other way around? A few front porches remain today but they are seldom occupied by sitters.

However it may be, the American institution of front porch sitting seems to have gone the way of the buggy ride, spring housecleaning and the 10¢ Saturday matinee.

A naturally air-conditioned forum on summer evenings, the front porch was a stage for everything from politics and national affairs to neighborhood gossip. It was a place of sociability. Passersby stopped in or were called in to exchange town talk before going on to their own front porches for further dissemination of the news and views.

Today's front porch, if an abbreviated concrete stoop can be called that, is little more than an entrance to the home. It hardly lends itself as a place for family communion on a summer's evening. And there is certainly no room for porch swings, hammocks and rocking chairs.

Warm Welcome

Yesterday's front porch was something different. When the weather was right there was almost always a gathering in the hazy twilight of the day's end, watching as night painted a blackout.

Warm summer evenings under a starry sky . . . the serenity of trees in sleepy whisper . . . the low cadence of crickets . . . kids playing along the sidewalks or chasing fire-flies . . . sounds of laughter in the distance . . . giggles from a porch swing next door.

That phase of family communion is no more. An older generation looks back on it with fond recollection. A younger generation never knew it.

The front porch, long before radio and television, provided comfortable seats and regalement along with news commentary (sans commercials) for the family and their guests. About the only expense I can remember was when father, working late at the office, stopped at the corner drug store soda fountain and brought home a treat.

Room For All

The front porch I remember was deep and roomy. It wrapped almost halfway around the house and while members of the family and their guests occupied favored positions facing the street, it still afforded a private entrance and a darker corner in the wrap-around where a girl could greet her current beau.

The squeaky swing at one end of the porch became a trysting place for sweethearts after the rest of the family had retired for the night. A hammock that swung between the columns in the curve where a spreading maple overhung the porch was made to order for a Sunday afternoon nap.

I remember the summer when a colony of bees found an entrance into one of the big hollow wooden columns and built up a sizeable hoard of honey. One evening after the bees had retired for the night, father had a carpenter come in and remove the column and retrieve the honey. It sweetened the family's breakfast biscuits all through the winter. The column was replaced and the hole plugged up. A farmer friend took over and carried off the bee swarm.

No Room for Bar

Perhaps the front porch was a place of sociability in days past because the backyard was used for more practical purposes. The indispensible privy occupied a prominent position and a garden took considerable of the available space.

Backyards of those halcyon days often had a chicken pen, perhaps a windmill and a barn that housed a horse or two and a buggy. There was a shed or lean-to for storage of cobs and-or firewood. The animal population at some homes included a cow for fresh milk and perhaps even a pig or two.

The old front porch was a place to unwind, a peaceful retreat, and in the evening a place of respite from the day's toil and worries.

Finances Dictate

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend and I are planning to get married. The problem is that he wants a very big wedding and I want a small, intimate one.

We get along beautifully until someone brings up this subject, then we end up mad at each other and the evening is ruined.

I am a nervous person and the thought of a great big wedding scares me to death. It would seem more like a theatrical production than a sacred ceremony. And another point, Ann — my folks are not very well off financially, and they can't really afford a big bash, but they are awfully sweet and will stretch to the limit if I say I want one.

Please tell me what to tell my boyfriend so he will understand.

Embattled Betty

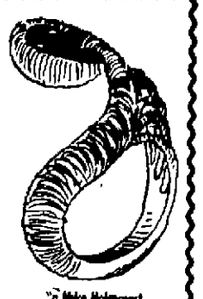

Dear Betty: The point about your parents' limited finances is enough. You don't need any other arguments.

A priceless talent starts with The Priceless Piano

Before you buy a piano, you'd kind of like to feel that somebody in the family will want to learn to play it.

And that used to be a gamble.

No more. We will bring a brand new Wurlitzer Piano to your home, place it just where you want it, and give you three whole months to decide which of you or your kids is going to discover a priceless talent.

It costs as little as $10 a month, plus a small delivery charge. And when someone in the family begins to find the magic in music, and you decide to keep the Priceless Piano, every cent you've paid in rental will go toward its purchase price.

It's about as foolproof a way as anybody's thought of to let you find a priceless talent.

Come see us. And bring your priceless talent with you.

Good Drama Is Religious—Julie Harris

By George Cornell

New York (AP) — To Actress Julie Harris, all good drama is religious.

"If it tells the truth about life and the human heart, if it speaks of men's failings and also their grandeur and hope, then it's religious," she says. "That's my idea of religion — dealing honestly with life."

That's why Miss Harris, a recognized queen of her craft, sees nothing exceptional about starring in an intentionally religious movie produced by a branch of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association.

Once she had read the script, "There was no question in my mind about it," she said in an interview. "It's a great story. I'd do it any time, anywhere."

She referred to the film version of Corrie ten Boom's best-seller, "The Hiding Place," an account of a Dutch Christian woman's resistance against the Nazis to save Jews and her own miraculous survival in a concentration camp.

The $1 million production, the first big-budget movie put out by the Graham affiliate, World Wide Pictures, also features other top performers: Eileen Heckart, Arthur O'Connell and a newcomer, Jeannette Clift.

It's to be released in commercial theaters later this year.

Like A Tremendous Plea

"The movie is like a tremendous plea, 'Oh God, we must love one another,' " Miss Harris said, her slender hands upturned in appeal.

"Jesus told his apostles that they could forget everything else, but to remember that, to love one another," she went on. "It seems like such an easy thing to do. Yet we don't do it."

Miss Harris, a small daisy of a woman with brave blue eyes, expresses a keenly religious disposition herself, both personally and as she sees her profession.

She noted that the patron saint of actors, St. Genesius, was an early Christian martyr. In explaining what happens in a good acting performance, she cited a kind of mysterious transcendance about it.

"You submerge yourself so another person can be there," she said. "You break out your own existence and become someone else. You project beyond self. In a way, it is metaphysical."

No Explanation Except God

Recalling her role in "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln," set after the assassination of the great Emancipator, Miss Harris said she was completely swept back into that time. She added:

"It had nothing to do with me. I could feel him behind me. There's no explanation except God, except the truth."

Miss Harris, a native of Grosse Point, Mich., who now lives in Irvington, N.Y., holds a string of top honors for roles in such plays as "Member of the Wedding," "I Am a Camera," "The Lark," and movies such as "The Haunting," "Forty Carats," "Moving Target" and "East of Eden."

Concerning her recent four-month shooting schedule in Holland on the new movie, in which she plays the part of a woman who so thoroughly reflects Christ's love that she cannot hate even the Nazis whom she opposes, Miss Harris said: "She will live with me the rest of my life."

As for her own religious views, she said, "I believe in the presence of God in all of us, and in his revelation in Jesus Christ." Although an Episcopalian, she said she's not a regular churchgoer because she dislikes the "endless sermons."

"Why Me, Lord?"

By Associated Press

This week marks the 25th anniversary of the start of Billy Graham's evenglistic career, with a three-day celebration of it at Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles, the place where the farm-reared preacher began his rise to fame.

"Why did God choose you?" a reporter once asked.

Replied Graham: "When I get to heaven, that's the first question I'm going to ask Him."

Church Notes

Clayton Yeutter To Speak At Centennial Breakfast

Seward — Clayton Yeutter, assistant secretary of Agriculture, will be the centennial speaker next Sunday for the United Methodist Church here, celebrating over 100 years of service to the community.

Yeutter will speak at an 8 a.m. breakfast, held at the Concordia College gymnasium, on "Religion in Life (my own, with observations from national and world travels)." A male chorus will sing a few selections.

Missionary Convention

Rosemont Alliance Church, 2600 No. 70th, begins its annual missionary convention this weekend. The congregation, which gave a record $40,000 to foreign missions last year, will hear four missonary speakers during the conference, which ends next Sunday.

Speakers include the Rev. James Johnson, missionary to the Phillipines; the Rev. Roland Perret, missionary among the aborigines of India; Elizabeth Arnold, missionary to Viet Nam, and Emil Aanderud, missionary and musician from Mexico.

Dr. L. L. King, a former pastor of Rosemont and now vice-president of Alliance Overseas Ministries, will speak Friday through Sunday.

The Rev. H. B. Leastman, pastor, said the public is invited to attend services, held Sundays at 10 a.m., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and at 7 p.m. during the week.

Organ Dedication

A two-manual, 26-rank pipe organ will be dedicated at Faith Lutheran Church, 63rd and Madison, at 4 p.m. today.

Charles W. Ore, associate professor of music at Concordia College in Seward, will play the dedicatory program. The organ was recently purchased for $41,488, partially from money collected by a pipe organ fund started by Mr. and Mrs. Phil Rot in 1965.

Special Services

The Gospel Travelaires, led by Jerry and Mary Smith, will hold special services today at 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the Northside Church of the Nazarene, 30th and Starr.

Youth Gathering

Grand Island — Some 1,000 to 1,200 teenagers of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod are expected here Nov. 8-10 at a Nebraska District youth gathering, "To Pass It On."

Beck to Give Willson Lecture

Dr. Harrell Beck, professor of Old Testament at Boston University School of Theology, will deliver the 1974 Willson Lecture 10 a.m. Wednesday at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Dr. Beck, a native of Lyons who still has ties with Nebraska as a member of the Nebraska Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church, also will serve as resource person for the third annual Pastors' Colloquium scheduled for Friday at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Beck will deliver his Willson Lecture in the Emerson Recital Hall. The lecture is open to the public without charge.

Throughout Wednesday, he will attend classes and hold informal meetings with students. His first session with students is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the NWU campus center.

On Friday, Beck will address pastors at 10 a.m. in the Otis Lecture Hall on the topic: "Learning to do more with Less." His speech will develop the theme of the day-long session "The Morality of Scarcity."

He will hold a talk-back session at 11 a.m. with the pastors and at 1:15 p.m. Dr. Otis Young, Lincoln, will conduct an interview of Dr. Beck for the participants.

Today and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m., Beck will lecture at Faith United Methodist Church, Fourth and Madison Streets in Tilden.

Is God A White Racist?

By David E. Anderson
UPI Religion Writer

That, according to William Jones, assistant professor of philosophy at the Yale Divinity School, is the key question that theologians attempting to construct a viable Black theology must answer.

So far, he thinks, most attempts at answering the question of the interpretation of racism of God have not been satisfactory.

In an essay in a book of readings, "The Black Experience in Religion," edited by C. Eric Lincoln (Doubleday Anchor), Jones looks at the thoughts of three prominent Black theologians — Joseph Washingtn Jr., James Cone and Albert Cleage — and finds they leave the question of God's racism "essentially unresolved."

"In the light of Black suffering . . . the unsavory and, some will say, blasphemous question must be put at the outset: is God a white racist?" he said.

Because of the nature of suffering in general and Black suffering in particular, the question of divine racism cannot be avoided," Jones said.

But, he adds, suffering can express "a relation of favor or disfavor between man and ultimate reality." That is, one could understand God visiting suffering on a people — as with the Israelites in the Old Testament era — because they were a chosen people through which God works out his plan for human history in the vicarious suffering of an elect group.

At the same time, however, suffering could also be interpreted as a sign of God's disfavor, as a punishment for sin.

"We contend that the peculiar nature of Black suffering raises the question of divine racism; we do not conclude that it answers the question," Jones said.

Jones also contends that the commitment of Black theologians to fashioning their theology on the basis of the Black experience sets up that experience as a theological supreme court — a court obliged to radically examine all traditional theological concepts, including that of God and Christ.

Prayer Said For Nebraska

A special prayer for the state of Nebraska will be said today at the Washington Cathedral, Wash., D.C., and the state flag will be carried in procession at the principal morning service, according to Mrs. Zimri Luce Smith, Nebraska chairman for the National Cathedral Association.

Inspiring Words

by Bob and Ross Metcalf

"Perhaps the most valuable result of all education," writes Thomas Henry Huxley, "is the ability to make yourself do the things you have to do, when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not; it is the first lesson that ought to be learned; and however early a man's training begins, it is probably the last lesson that he learns thoroughly." They are noble words, but it is so much easier to procrastinate. Except that in the long run duties do have a way of catching up with you.

Recapture Older Mortgages?

Lenders trying innovations such as discounts if 'cheap' loans are repaid early; if you'll refinance at 8½%, you can get funds for car.

By Gene Kelly

The mortgage pool has become a small puddle in Nebraska.

So much so, in fact, that some lenders have come up with innovative plans to recapture loans that went out to home buyers a decade ago at interest rates of 6% or less. They want to reloan the money at today's 8 7/8 % average mortgage rate (just bumping the 9% state usury ceiling). Any bank can get 12% or more on a commercial loan.

It's being done on a rather quiet basis, with the contacts being made, for the most part, in mailings from thrift institutions to old customers.

A few months back, for example, Nebraska State Savings and Loan of Fremont contacted 1837 old customers and offered to give them a 5 to 6% discount if they would make a full or partial prepayment of their existing mortgage.

These were generally loans on which the unpaid balance was below $10,000 and which had been loaned at 6 to 7½%.

"We didn't get much response," notes Dale McClain, a Nebraska State vice president. "Some people feel that having a mortgage paid off is just great.

"But a good many know that when you have a mortgage at that level, you have a real bargain, especially when you deduct your interest on your income taxes."

McClain is quite frank in explaining that "our goal is to raise the interest level of our mortgage portfolio, so we can, in turn, afford to make more mortgages available."

In recent weeks a second strategy has been used by this S & L., since the payoff overtures were not very productive.

"People are real sharp on interest rates these days," he explained. "We've been seeing an outflow of savings deposits, as people invest in T bills. (Treasury notes) And people aren't paying off old loans when their savings can yield them up to 10%."

'Very Favorable Rate'

So a new battery of letters went out to customers who hold the relatively low-interest martgages.

It said they had been selected for "special consideration" and that "even in view of the extremely tight money market, we can offer you additional money.

"If you have plans for remodeling a new automobile, or some other project, we invite you to consider increasing your present loan to get the necessary cash.

"Because of your excellent rating . . . we would offer you a very favorable interest rate below the existing money rate."

Any catch? How much below?

The interest rate on the entire mortgage would jump to 8½%, with the home being reappraised and the loan being limited to 80% of this figure, McClain noted. Or the customer could borrow back up to the level of his original "open-end" mortgage.

A loan fee of 1½% will be charged on the "new" money (with a $100 minimum), plus any abstracting, title and closing fees.

If the existing loan is one of those old six percenters, the interest level would go "only to 8%," he stressed.

"The customer can take a vacation with the cash if he wishes," McClain said, "but we are serving his economic needs."

Funds for these larger loans come from monthly mortgage payments, homes being sold and those full payoffs. "We're certainly getting little new money from savers. And money we can get from the home loan banks would cost us 10½%. I don't expect the crunch to slacken until spring.

"You could look at it this way: The old customer gets money he needs. He's paying high interest, but he gets the benefits of tax deductions on his interest.

"One of the real advantages of being a home owner is this: If your interest rate is even 8½% on a loan of $12,000, after your tax deduction you end up paying a true interest rate of 6.16%."

T-Note Limit Ultimately In Hands Of Congress

By Peter S. Nagan
(c) 1974, Newhouse News Service

Washington — Before you chew out the Treasury for limiting purchases of its latest high-yielding security to $10,000 or more, you ought to know that it really isn't Secretary Simon's fault.

It's not his fault that money is so tight and interest rates are so high.

It's not his fault, either, that the savings institutions can't — for practical as well as legal reasons — match the returns available on marketable securities.

And it's not his fault that the drain on funds out of the savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks has choked off the money needed for mortgages and home building.

Neither Simon nor his Treasury Department created the current dismal state of affairs. And neither has the power to end it. All they can do is try to make the best of a bad situation.The ultimate solution must come from another source — Congress.

The trouble is that Simon can't stay out of the mess. The Treasury has $2 billion in notes coming due for redemption on Sept. 30. Because it isn't really in a position to retire the notes, it has decided to "roll them over" — issue new two-year notes to get the money to pay off the holders of the maturing paper.

The question was: How do you do it? Not so much what interest to pay or for how long the paper should run, but who should be allowed to buy it. It was clear to begin with that, no matter what Simon and his debt-management team decided, they were going to take a lot of flak.

—If they held the minimum amount an investor could buy at $1,000, savers would certainly rush to withdraw funds from savings institutions. The mortgage situation would get worse. Treasury officials would feel the heat from the thrift institutions, the homebuilders, the would-be home buyers and many members of Congress.

—If it made the minimum of $10,000 — the least amount of one-year-or-less Treasury bills that has been available for some years now — the Treasury would get the brickbats from small savers and their friends on Capitol Hill. There was an outcry last may, when the debt managers for the first time raised the minimum to $10,000 on two note issues put out for longer than a year.

Congressional critics demanded that the Treasury keep on a $1,000 minimum on securities issued for more than a year — except when officials believe that the low figure would lead to "serious disclocations" for thrift institutions and home building. That's exactly what they do believe at this time.

'Painful Balancing'

"We had to make a painful balancing of conveniences to small savers with the interest of not exacerbating the difficult liquidity situation" of the mortgage lenders, Undersecretary Jack F. Bennett explained in announcing the terms of the refunding. 'There is an element of arbitrariness in where we draw the line," he said, noting that the Treasury did give the small investor the $1.000 break at its last major financing in August.

Presumably, the Treasury will try to give the small saver the nod at its next major offering, another refunding scheduled for mid-November. Maybe an every-other-financing pattern is emerging.

But the basic problem of cause and effect between tight money on one hand, and disaster for thrift institutions plus home building on the other, will remain. Some basic changes are needed in the nation's financial system to keep these two areas from getting more than their share of the impact of credit restraint.

The problem has been studied exhaustively and numerous solutions have been proposed. A presidential commission has urged sweeping reforms that would give thrift institutions greater leeway to diversify into higher-yielding investments and to compete for savings.

There have been proposals for variable interest rates on mortgages that would rise and fall with market rates generally — and permit the institutions to pay more to depositors when marketable securities yield more. And some experts are proposing to exempt a certain amount of savings-account interest from federal income taxes.

Maybe such solutions will work — or maybe they won't. But Congress will have to vote the changes.

Ted Coatney 'Outstanding Restaurant Operator'

W. E. (Ted) Coatney

By Linda Ulrich

His state honor led to a national one, and Lincoln restaurant owner W. E. (Ted) Coatney thinks it's "Quite a deal."

Named Restaurateur of the Year by the Nebraska Restaurant Assn., Coatney recently was one of nine persons across the country named an Outstanding Restaurant Operator by the Department of Hotel and Restaurant Administration in the College of Business at Florida State University at Tallahassee.

Coatney also was initiated into the Society of Hosts, the professional society of Florida State University's hotel and restaurant majors.

Participating in the 22nd annual Salut Au Restauateur Program, Coatney was among the honorees participation in a "Share Your Success Secrets" panel. He said his business philosophy is simply "to serve good food and be nice to people."

And, he added, "you're in the business to make a living, but you hope that you are of some service to the community too."

Coatney, who has been working in the restaurant industry since 1945, said the difference between getting started in the business then and now is that in 1945, you could get started with a small amount of money but today that isn't possible.

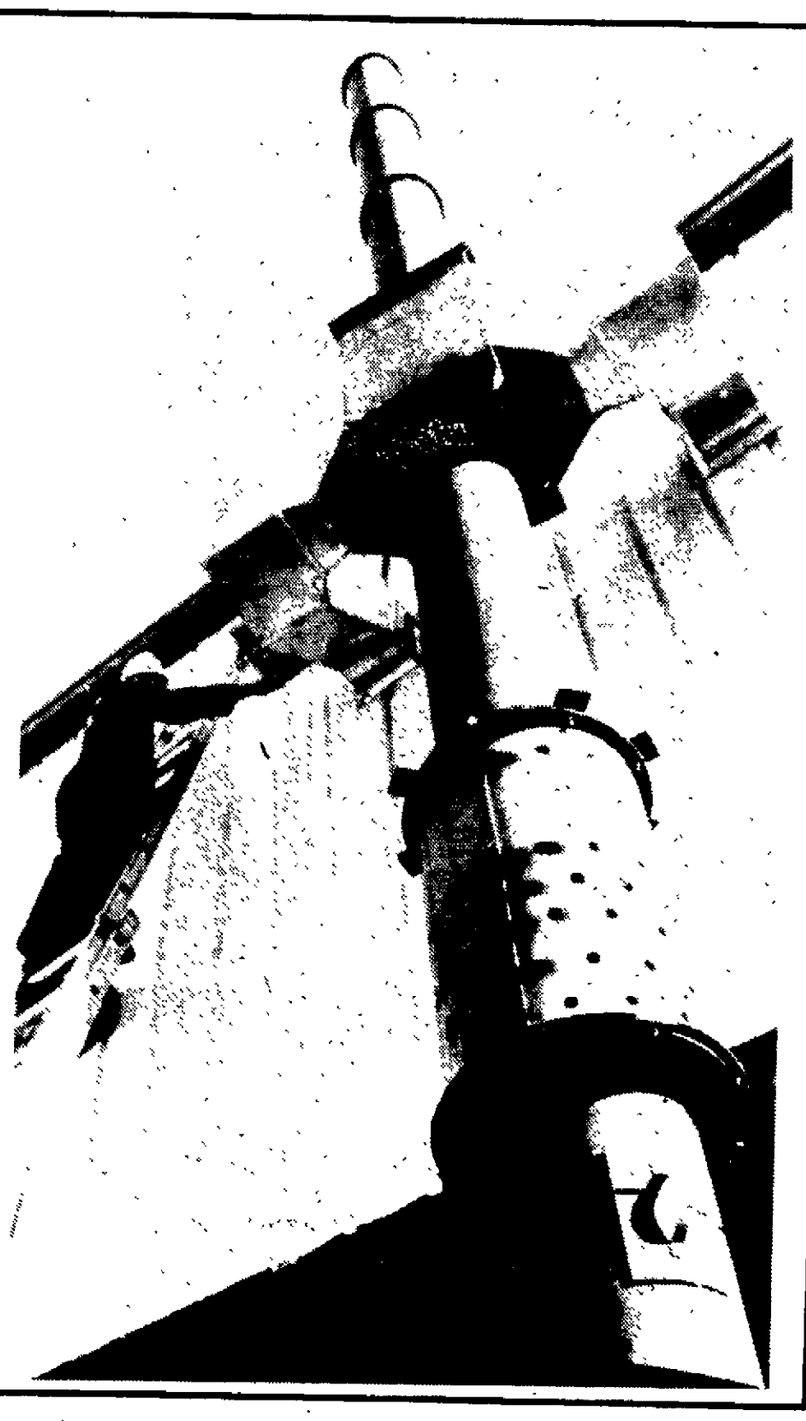

Inflation has had a "tremendous impact" on business, he said. "All of us are trying to figure out how to produce meals that people can afford."

Increased costs mean "people are definitely reading the menu more closely."

But, he says, they're still eating out. "And I hope they continue to."

Trash Can Help Heat A Building

There's no energy shortage at Tractor Supply Co. in Omaha, thanks to a non-polluting incinerator that literally burns up its own smoke. From this unit the company recaptures enough heat for the plant to reduce its use of natural gas by 350,000 cubic feet each heating season. "The beauty of this arrangement," says James P. Joyce, plant manager, "is that this heat-recovery system . . . saves us some $5,400 a year. By using this heat-recapture incinerator we are killing two birds with one stone — cutting our trash disposal costs to the bone by burning it up instead of paying to have it hauled away. And at the same time we've found a fuel that costs us nothing and was right under our noses all the time."

1 in 3 New Products Sells

By Joe Cappo
(c) 1974, Chicago Daily News

The information you are about to read is usually guarded as closely as the most important classified military secrets.

Companies and individuals have engaged in many forms of marketing espionage to uncover these corporate secrets and use them to their own advantage.

The object of this secrecy and skulduggery? New product ideas.

Companies will go to all lengths to keep mention of new or proposed products out of circulation until they are ready to release the word. If the concept for a new product is divulged too early, a competitor might seize on the idea and actually beat the originator into the marketplace with a similar item. And often, the first guy out gets an insurmountable head start.

For marketing-oriented companies, new products are the lifeblood. They are introduced on a steady schedule to rejuvenate sales as old worn-out products are phased out.

Each year, hundreds of millions of dollars are spent on research and development, marketing testing, new packaging, advertising and other important elements in the introduction of thousands of new products.

But even with all of this money and planning, industry sources indicate that about two out of every three new products that enter the marketplace are flops.

We thought it would be interesting to give outsiders a rare peek into the thinking behind new products and to take a look at items that someday may be on the supermarket shelf.

So we talked to Martin L. Chaisson, president, and Bob Levin, executive vice president, of Future Thought, a company that develops new products and sells them to other companies.

Future Thought develops the concept, then arranges for an independent laboratory to formulate the product and make prototypes. The company selects a name for the product, designs packaging and then offers it for sale outright or on a commission basis to companies with appropriate production and marketing facilities.

Here are the names and descriptions of some of the products. They actually are not on the market, but some manufacturers have told Future Thought that they have similar products in the works. Future Thought also has not acquired the rights to the names of celebrities or characters used in some of the products.

Here are a few of them:

G.I. Joe food for kids. These are frozen meals for youngsters, with the line named after the popular Hasbro doll. Packaging plays an important part in the appeal of this product. The container looks like an Army mess kit. The nutritious fruit drink comes in a canteen-like container, and canned items are marked as "C rations."

— Tell-tale diapers. Most disposable diapers look alike and do the same thing. These look different because they have Mother Goose nursery characters on them. More than that, because of a litmus paper liner, the characters turn from blue to pink when the diaper is wet, so parents know when it's time for a change.

— Dog ketchup. "Research," Chaisson said, "shows that 60% of the persons who feed their dogs dry food add something to it. Even 40% of those who use moist food add something. Well, here's something made to be added to dog food. It's also great to spice up table scraps."

— Brown bag lunch. This item is packaged in a brown paper bag, and the label on it resembles the check from a carryout restaurant. It can be sold at a supermarket or from a lunchwagon. Inside the bag is a full lunch, including a sandwich, soup, pudding, potato chips, plastic spoon and fork, etc.

— Just add lettuce. The name isn't a sizzler, but it clearly states the only thing needed to provide a gourmet salad for two persons. The container is compartmentalized and carries such ingredients as spices, salad dressing, croutons, shredded crab meat, etc. There would be a line of crab Louis, Hawaiian, Greek salads with appropriate ingredients.

— Dog money. It's really an old product, a dog snack, but made in the form of different-sized coins. They are to be used as rewards, based on the ad pitch: "A dog is only a dog until you pay him off."

— TV snacks. This is a line of four different snack items, each of which is aimed at a specific demographic audience. Each also is named after a TV character. They include Howard Cosell's pretzels, Cookie Monster's cookies, Dinah Shore's cheese puffs and Archie Bunker's corn puffs. Names would have to be changed as series go on and off the air, but snack products are always changing anyway.

— Chuckwagon cookin'. This is the most ambitious project that Future Thought has developed. It started with a line of frozen, uncooked marinated meats (steak, hamburger, chicken, beef roast) to be barbecued outdoors or broiled indoors.

Outlook Rosy for Wine?

Los Angeles (AP) — Thousands of acres of new vineyards now coming into production should mean a rosy outlook for the drinker of California wines — at least in the immediate future.

Skyrocketing wine prices are expected to level off, and some varieties will be down in price.

"This is now a fait accompli," says Harry G. Serlis, president of the California Wine Institute, which represents growers.

But Serlis added in an interview, "The future of wine prices at the consumer level is not that clear. While grape prices are coming down from their all time high, there remain numerous other cost factors which are continuing to rise."

During the late 1960s, and into the 1970s many thousands of acres were planted as investors and expanding wineries rushed to take advantage of wine's exploding popularity.

It takes five to seven years for a new vine to start producing.

A flood of grapes from the heavy planting of years past has now begun.

The Wine Institute reports that 180.000 acres of wine grapes will be harvested in 1974 — an increase of nearly 30% since 1970.

It is this "great promise of the vineyards," in Serlis' words, that is expected to translate into lower prices as well as improved wines through better supplies of better wine grape varieties.

The consumer price index of table wines show a jump of more than 46% between 1967 and 1974.

For example, a popular wine — Zinfandel, a zesty red wine from the grape of the same name has gone from $1.89 a bottle to $2.75 in the last three years.

An increasing number of Americans have discovered wine in recent years. The institute estimated that from 1960 to 1973 total U.S. wine consumption increased from about 163 million gallons a year to 275 million gallons a year.

Eighty per cent of the wine consumed in the United States comes from California, the institute says.

A major part of the new vineyard plantings has come in Central California's vast San Joaquin Valley, where the bulk of the state's wine is produced.

The new plantings have been in better wine grape types — such as Barbera and Petit Sirah in the reds and Chenin Blanc, French Colombard and Semillon in the whites.

Some have been grapes developed by the University of California at Davis for use in warmer climates.

Better grapes from the central valley and added supplies from the higher-prices coastal regions where quality is considered higher means improved raw materials for the state's big volume wine producers.

Skyhawk Is Smallest Buick Ever

Flint, Mich. — Buick's new Skyhawk, the smallest car to carry the Buick nameplate in more than 60 years, has been unveiled.

The two-door Skyhawk is nearly identical to Chevrolet's sleek new Monza small car, except that it's powered by an economical 110-horsepower V-6 engine. No other engine is available with the car.

George R. Elges, Buick's general manager, said that Buick has been given 50,000 Skyhawks by General Motors. Chevy has been given 100,000 Monzas.

The 231-cubic-inch V-6 is a refined version of the original 225-cubic-inch V-6 engine which Buick used from 1962 to 1967. It will be the base engine in the compact Skylark coupe and in the intermediate Century, Special and Regal models. But Elges says most buyers will order larger, optional engines for these models because the V-6 is too small to provide much power for a car heavier than the Skyhawk, "unless," he added, "there's another severe gas shortage."

The winter gas shortage slashed into Buick sales. The auto maker is forecasting sales of 650.000 cars for the 1975 model year and around 500,000 cars for the 1974 model year.

Elges said Buick will seek to broaden its image. It has been known as a large car producer, but now it will emphasize its Skyhawk and compact models and will try to appeal to younger buyers.

Subcompacts Really Disguised Vegas

Detroit — Pontiac's new subcompact car is called the Astre, but it's a Chevrolet Vega with different front and rear styling touches.

Still, Pontiac is delighted to have the four-cylinder Astre, which comes in hatchback and station wagon form. "About 25% of new car buyers are purchasing imported cars or domestic subcompacts," Martin J. Caserio, Pontiac's general manager, said. He predicted that about 100,000 Astres will be sold in 1975 model year.

The gas shortage caused Pontiac, known primarily as a large car producer, to take a sales beating in 1974.

Oldsmobile will woo a growing luxury small car market with a new sporty subcompact and a new line of compacts and intermediates.

Olds has unveiled its subcompact Starfire, luxury compact Omega Salons and mid-size Cutlass Salons.

The additions give Oldsmobile the strongest — and the most expensive — small car lineup in ints history.

The Starfire, a posh spinoff of the Chevrolet Vega, is a close copy of the new Chevrolet Monza 2 Plus 2 with a steeper price tag — $4,157, compared with $3,986 for the Monza.

Program Anti-inflation Key?

(c) 1974, Chicago Sun-Times

White House consideration of a government program to provide 800,000 new jobs reflects a fear that the unemployment rate may exceed the "politically intolerable" rate of 6% in the months ahead.

The suggestion for an emergency program to cushion unemployment as government anti-inflationary policies squeeze the economy first came from Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Burns and the Federal Reserve Board have a special status in the government. The board is independent of the White House, so Burns may speak his mind without clearing with the President. And the President is under no obligation to heed what Burns may say.

But coming from Burns, the suggestion for an extraordinary government program to create new jobs is noteworthy. Burns was the first official of the executive branch of the government to endorse wage and price controls and his endorsement came as a shock to the Nixon White House. Burns can't be blamed for the way wage-price controls were ultimately handled by the administration, but it is a fact that the Nixon people turned from pooh-poohing the idea to embracing it.

This time around, although the Burns suggestion on jobs raised many eyebrows, the Ford administration has indicated that the plan will be given serious consideration.

What makes the Burns plan controversial and shocking to some is the price tag. Burns himself estimates that it would cost $4 billion. But the Fed chief is fully in accord with President Ford's drive to trim the federal budget and reduce the pressure of government spending on prices.

Why then would Burns publicly urge a program that would boost government spending by $4 billion? The only conclusion is that Burns thinks unemployment is indeed going to jump to politically intolerable levels, 6% plus, and something must be done to alleviate the situation.

Otherwise the public outcry might be such as to force a dismantling of the entire anti-inflation battle.

Burns, the man who is directing the main attack, the man who is applying the tight money vise, might have to switch to easy money in the face of public and congressional fears of a major recession.

That, in general, has been the history of past efforts to curb inflation by applying the tight money squeeze. It is a long and painful process and usually the brakes have been eased too soon or too fast, or both, and the pain has gone for little.

Sizable Gain Made in Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rebounded from a 12-year low this week with a sizable gain in respose to recent declines in short-term interest rates and speculation the prime rate would be lowered soon

Much of the gain on the New York Stock Exchange for the week could be attributed to some bargain hunting, particularly in high-priced stocks which have been depressed by the market's deep slide over the past several months. Analysts called much of it technical

The Dow Jones industrial average, which plunged to a 12-year low a week ago when it reached 627 19, gained 43.57 to 670.76 for the week. The widely watched indicator of 30 selected blue-chip stocks registered four consecutive gains, including a 22.14 - point rise Thursday, before easing 3.29 on Friday.

The broader-based standard & Poor's 500-stock index made an equally impressive recovery from a week ago, gaining 4.94 to 70.14.

The NYSE common stock index rose 2.63 to 36.74.

The volume picked up to 77,100,000 shares from the 67,955,408 traded the week before. But it was far below the 105,783,060 traded during the same week a year ago.

The week's advance was broad, which encouraged some analysts. Advances overwhelmed declines, 1,416 to 361, among the 1,974 issues traded.

The spark to the market was an easing by the Federal Reserve Board of its tight money policy. It pumped some money into the banking system, leading to a reduction in some short-term interest rates.

The Fed said it would like to see federal funds trade in the 11 to 11½ per cent range, down from the 11½ to 12 per cent range which was in effect last week. Federal funds, a key short-term debt instrument, are uncommitted reserves banks lend one another

In watching these developments, Wall Street began to anticipate a reduction soon in the prime rate —that which banks charge their most creditworthy corporate customers.

Their optimism appeared to give a boost early in the week when executives of Bankers Trust Co. New York, First National City Bank and Chairman David Rockefeller of Chase Manhattan Bank all said they thought the prime may be lowered to around 10 or 11 per cent by the end of the year.

Many investors, however, were disappointed Friday when Citibank, the second largest in the nation and a trendsetter in the prime, left its rate at the historic high of 12 per cent. The high rates have depressed Wall Street for months.

Fed Chairman Arthur Burns told a conference of banking and financial representatives he opposed any significant relaxation in the Fed's tight money position, but pledged, "There will be no credit crunch in this country."

The Consumer Price Index jumped 1.3 per cent in August, its sharpest gain in a year.

Feeder Cattle

Omaha (UPI) — Trading of feeder cattle and calves at the nation's marketing centers last week produced a generally lower price pattern again, with a few exceptions in some of the central corn belt's river markets.

The weekly report prepared by the National Livestock Feeders Assn. said while price declines of up to $4 were common in most marketing areas, the Sioux Falls, Kansas City and Omaha terminal markets showed price advances steady to at least $1 high, mainly on yearling cattle.

The number of cattle on the move last week approached levels closer to normal for early fall but still on the reduced side of moderate. The USDA's feeder cattle reporting centers registered a total of 157,000 head last week, up some from the 143,000 count of a week ago but a good measure short of last year's 183,000 count

Kansas City had 4,900 and the Seven River Markets complex 17 500

Wheat Mixed; Corn Off

Chicago (UPI) — Wheat was mixed and corn, oats and soybeans were substantially lower last week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was off 1¾ to up 6½¢; corn off 4¼ to 9¼; oats off 6½ to 8½, and soybeans off 9½ to 25.

Advances in wheat again were attributed to good export reports and repeated warnings that world food production will be sharply lower this year than in 1973.

Corn failed to pick up any export steam and weather remained on the warm side to keep trade concentration on the offering side. Additionally, fewer animals on feed this year than in 1973 contributed to some of the bearishness.

Soybeans responded mostly to weather, with some caution also noticeable, particularly following President Ford's speech before the United Nations, because the President failed to spell out the exact nature of help this nation would offer to the world's hungry.

Soybeans ended the week slightly on the strong side with private sources forecasting a good chance of frost in the next few days.

The forecasts, however, were not enough to stimulate firm buying in corn.

Invest in our Country's 2nd oldest vending machine business
Here's a high earnings opportunity. As a U.S. Postage Stamp Machine Distributor, you could find the returns on your investment overwhelming.

We offer and secure investment opportunity to undertake part time or full time. We offer independence — YOU'RE THE BOSS.

The U.S. Government has now approved the sale of $1.00 postage stamp booklets through private enterprise.

You can start your own business in 4 to 5 weeks with a minimum investment of $2500. Our company will install your coin-operated self service postage machines, establish your territory and protect your company established territory.

Locations seem limitless — motel-/hotel/grocery store/drug store/airport/restor/etc. And so are your benefits.
*Free training
*Free bookkeeping forms
*Locations guaranteed
*No product loss or storage
*100% warranty of equipment
*Safety & security
*Company financing of expansion equipment
*High returns
*Virtually; inflation/recession proof

European experiences will be related and shown in slides when the current version of the Cornhusker Marching Band hosts alumni at a reunion next weekend. Slides deal with all aspects of the last spring's 23-day European tour, including fun in the Swiss Alps.

Band Was Musical Group Not Sideshow, in Europe

who was with the band during its tour in May and who has assembled much of the material that will be shown to band members and alumni at their reunion.

In Ostend, Belgians perched on every vantage point to watch and hear Nebraska band's concert conducted by Prof. Jack Snider (in foreground, white jacketed).

For years travel has been described as a "way to broaden horizons, develop a new sense of awareness". It is a cliche but one with much truth to it.

If one disagrees, he should visit with any of the 167 University of Nebraska Cornhusker Marching Band members who traveled through Europe last May. A successful three-week concert tour of six countries left almost everyone with this so called "new awareness".

It might be something as insignificant as a new appreciation for a Coke with ice in it. Or it could be a whole new way of looking at folks back home. Few of the students returned to Lincoln exactly the same.

Jack Maxcy, Bayard, noted that the tour gave him a new appreciation for Nebraska. "You've got to leave home to realize how good we've got things here," he said.

What we have here, according to Maxcy, is "water with a meal, Coke with ice, private restrooms in hotels (with toilets that work), Nebraska beef, wide streets, large, spacious residential areas, and an overall higher standard of living."

Jack also explained that Nebraska is "home" above everything else. "When I heard the band playing America the Beautiful in Europe it was easy to get emotional — . . . a lump would form in my throat."

Jack thought Americans could learn something about life from Europeans. "Their pace of life seems more relaxed," he said. "They enjoy simple things like a walk in a park and they often take two hour lunch breaks."

Marcia Goeller, Pilger, found that the trip brought her a "lot better understanding of the individuals in the band since we lived so close for three weeks."

Marcia said she especially enjoyed the concerts on the tour. "Music is something everyone can relate to no matter what language they speak," she explained. "When you communicate that way it is really a neat feeling."

Pat Osbon, Lincoln, agreed. "We took something unique to Europe and left lasting and good impressions," he said. "Thirty years from now I'll remember the concerts and the audiences. I probably won't remember Cologne Cathedral."

Pat was very high on the European audiences. "For once we were appreciated for what we are — a musical group. In the States a marching band usually serves as a sideshow to a football game," he said.

"Some fans don't appreciate a band for the musical entity it is. In Europe they did," Pat said.

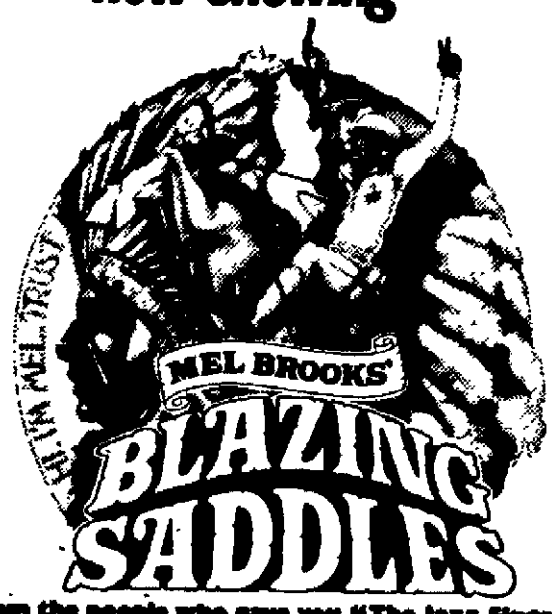

"When the European audiences started reacting to our music you could feel the band pick up on it," he con-

Preston's Pickin's Ain't Slim

Amarillo Slim Preston

Hollywood (UPI) — Amarillo Slim Preston has eyes watchful as a cobra's and at a poker table he's every bit as poisonous

The professional gambler made his motion picture debut in California Split, starring Elliott Gould and George Segal as a pair of card sharps.

Slim is given to sly country humor, down home similes and would have you think he is a simple yokel Many a sophisticated slicker has discovered — at great expense — that Slim is a superb psychologist who isn't a gambler at all

He virtually eliminates the element of chance when he puts his money on the table — and almost invariably rakes it back with his winnings

"I play a lot of games," Slim says "gin rummy, backgammon, checkers or whatever. But only 15% of cards is luck Poker is a game of skill."

Slim is big and rich He owns a 3,460-acre cattle ranch near Amarillo, Tex. He dresses like an extra from an old Gene Autry movie He's an accomplished mathematician and has the guts of a porch climber.

One gets the feeling, too, that he can handle his dukes But he never gets physical with all the dudes who try to cheat him with marked cards, loaded dice and other devices

"I spot 'em every time," said Slim, unamused "A fly speck on the back of a card looks as big as an elephant foot to me

"I never let on I know they're cheating That gives me the advantage because they think they're fooling me. I thrive on guys who try to slicker me. I can read a marked deck quicker than the guy who marked it.

"My policy is to keep playing with a cheater until he's broke."

Goodbye, Minneapolis Hello, LINCOLN!
"Harold and Maude" finally ended its run in Minneapolis, after 798 precedent-shattering days (or 26½ months, or 2 years and 2½ months, however you count). Some picketing neighbors, tired of looking at the same old marquee, breathed a sigh of relief. But thousands of H and M devotees, who had been seeing the movie over and over, were left wondering what they would do with their Saturday nights.
"Harold and Maude" are ours now. We don't anticipate any picketing — there are a number of other marquees in the neighborhood, after all. But if the record-making crowds are any indication, we do anticipate a long, long run. Maybe even longer than the one set by Minneapolis.
Can we match them? Can we beat them?
Let's go.

'Junque Show' Is Puppeteers' Thanks

By Holly Spence

Some women drool over diamonds, pearls and mink!

Lee Ridge will take a ratty persian lamb coat or holey socks over those niceties anyday.

And the Lincoln Community Playhouse master puppeteer has been doing a lot of drooling lately. After a recent newspaper story outlined her puppeteer-making needs, she has received such an abundance that the Ridge porch runneth over.

You can't tell me that newspapers don't write about happy stuff — this is just silliness," said Mrs. Ridge.

She is gratified that people of the community would take the time to clean out the rag bags and junk drawers to bring her their castaways.

So she and her puppet-making charges have put together a puppet show, entitled The Junque Show, for the people in the community — for the people who brought the junk."

Shows will run between 11:30 a.m. and 1':30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in the People's Garden behind the Lincoln Center Bldg. at 15th & N.

Even more than thanking the people for the junk, Mrs. Ridge said the undertakings will serve as "a gesture to thank the community."

This series of shorts shows with hand and rod puppets will be "an informal kind of thing" which has been a creative learning experience for her younger puppetry students.

Ten-year-old Allison Stoner and 13-year-old Steve Fagerberg show off some of their creative efforts for The Junque Show.

Interesting characters were created and will be manipulated by Allison Stoner, Steve Fagerberg, Brian Sigrist, Shawn Bachman, Leslie Kendrick and Stewart Lewis.

Since the junk started arriving there has hardly been a time when Mrs. Ridge or any member of her family could step out of the house and find the porch bare.

The Puppeteers received a bushel basket of Tinker Toys, four two-pound cans of buttons, 600 egg cartons. "We can make our dragons now," wooden spools, pieces of fur, little plastic bottles and many other treasures.

A former teacher even left a large box of items, noting that she was pleased to find "a home for her precious collection."

Although Mrs. Ridge is still hoping for lots more items — with another special plea for X-ray film — the response has been overwhelming and the people she's met have provided heartwarming experiences.

And her greatest dream — a black persian lamb coat to make into black puppets — was fulfilled. A special surprise was a large quantity of batting.

"One thing I forgot to mention before was old photograph records with old-time pop music," she said. They have used some of these "odd-ball tunes" for the music for The Junque Show.

Actually we threw away very little," said Lee. "There was very little that wasn't useful."

And the alert is still out for junk!

What is junk? "It's good stuff left over from another time," laughed Mrs. Ridge.

The Ridge porch at 1415 So. 26th awaits more junky junque with open arms.

Seoul-Taipei Service Ends

Seoul (UPI) — Korean Airlines, South Korea's flag carrier, has terminated its flight service between Seoul and Taipei because of decreasing number of passengers to the island of Taiwan, KAL officials said. They say Japanese tourists, who normally accounted for four-fifths of KAL's Taipei-bound passengers, do not visit South Korea these days because of diplomatic tensions between Seoul and Tokyo.

James' Death

Jesse James was killed in St. Joseph, Mo. on April 3, 1882, by Bob Ford, a former member of the James Outlaw gang.

Jacques D'Amboise

D'Amboise 'Encounter' Friday

Jacques D'Amboise' "Ballet Encounter" opens University of Nebraska 1974-75 Performing Arts Series at 8 p.m. Friday in Kimball Recital Hall.

Performing Arts programs are open to the public but a box office spokesman said season subscriptions have taken all but about 50 seats, which will be available on a single performance basis.

A product of the school of American Ballet (the official school of the New York City Ballet), D'Amboise first appeared on stage at age 11 with the Ballet Society.

As a principal dancer with the New York City Ballet since 1953, he has originated numerous roles. Aside from his New York ballet activities. D'Amboise has danced as guest artist with the Metropolitan Opera, at leading European opera houses, international festivals and with symphonies.

He had a leading role in the Broadway musical Sinbone Alley and has been featured in such films as Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, Carousel and the George Balanchine production of A Midsummer Night's Dream.

D'Amboise is a choreographer as well as a dancer and four of his works were done for the New York City Ballet. In the last few years, the reknowned dancer has turned his interest toward directing. His credits as director include Roberta, Lady in the Dark and Peter Pan.

Big Band Cavalcade At Omaha

Omaha — The Big Band Cavalcade will be staged at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Omaha Civic Auditorium Music Hall. The show features Bob Crosby, Freddy Martin, Helen Forrest and Red Norvo.

These stars will be supported by 15 band musicians recruited from the ranks of earlier big bands for this 12-week national tour.

Each artist will take a turn offering the classic tunes with which each star has been associated. Martin was reknowned in the early 30's as a band leader and Crosby was a vocalist. Miss Forrest was also a vocalist while Norvo made his name on the vibes, xylophone and as a band leader.

NU Band's Trip

tinued," and it became a high energy perpetual type of thing. We seldom get that kind of situation here in America."

Although he had a good time, Pat revealed that Europe left him unimpressed to a certain extent. "Our culture is based on their's," he said, "so in that respect there's not much difference."

"The Swiss Alps are beautiful but not unlike our Rockies," he said, "and the Rhine River is polluted just like the Missouri. We have everything they have. Theirs is just older."

Lilly Coniglio, Lincoln, had quite a different impression. "It was different," she said flatly. She felt there were many distinctive European aspects to the countries visited. The shops, the transportation (small cars, trams, trains), the food, the way Europeans held a fork, their soccer, late meals — there were a host of differences.

"It was a great trip," she exclaimed. "I haven't come down yet. I really loved the way the people appreciated us."

No one person on the trip had any higher hopes for the band and Europe than Lynn Alexander from Ansley. Lynn had just finished law school and his seventh year with the band. The veteran musician headed the Committee to Send the Cornhusker Band to Europe.

"Europe surprised me," he said, "because the middle class standard of living was much less technical than here. They didn't seem concerned with appliances and color televisions."

Lynn said he felt Europeans were concerned about their history and the preservation of it. He sensed they were worried about the effect industrialization will have on it.

"My biggest disappointment on the tour was other American tourists," Lynn said. "They try to buy everything, are impolite, disrespectful and act like Europeans owe them something." Lynn noted he wasn't including the band in that group.

Lynn felt the concerts exceeded his expectations. "We definitely made a good impression for the band and the state," he said. "For instance, after the Vienna concert Italians who heard us wanted us to come to Rome and other tourists from New Zealand and Australia asked us down there."

"Two elderly ladies from St. Gallen, Switzerland, heard us in their city and then followed us to the next town to hear us again," Lynn continued, "and on top of that they got everybody's autograph twice."

Lynn told of one concert at a German village where he sensed some subtle anti-Americansim.

"We were in a district that lost over 80,000 men during the war," he said. "Some veterans were in the crowd."

After the musical show Lynn walked by a group of these men and overheard one saying, "These are good Americans".

"As far as the concerts were concerned, we just scratched the surface," said Lynn. "I felt like Sutter discovering gold."

Lynn finished on an ironic note pointing out that the band had toured Europe more thoroughly than Nebraska. "It's unfortunate we don't have a way to take the same musical show to towns throughout our state," he said.

Narrow streets limited marching maneuvers. Scene is Ostend. Old World backdrop for Cornhuskers visiting Vienna.

Triumphant Visit Home

A University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) professor of music has returned from a triumphant visit to this native Norway.

Audun Ravnan, who performed in the first concert at the Bergen International Music Festival, had rave reviews in the city's newspapers. In fact, after the second concert, both performed at Troldhaugen home of the composer Grieg, he received the same acclamation.

"This was Audun Ravnan's first festival performance and first concert at Troldhaugen. The young man from Aasane, at first considered a child prodigy, wnet to America for further education a few years after the war, and there he has been ever since.

"His hometown has not heard much from him during these almost 30 years, but his comeback yesterday was convincing proof that he must be considered one of the foremost Norwegian pianists . . . and in his solo group he also exhibited a solid technique and emotion filled interpretation . . ." said Valter Aamodt in Bergen's Tidedde.

Concerning his second concert Bj. K. wrote in Bergen's newspaper Morgenavisen, "Our US-emigrated, Bergen-born pianist Audun Ravnan played at Troldhaugen Saturday. His exile and professorship have obviously not hurt his pianistic technique or his feeling for the Norwegian tonal language and — as we well know — a pianist needs plenty of both in Grieg's Ballade in G Minor.

"Ravnan rendered these great variations, so heavy with destiny, in a manner which makes it easy to regret that this pianist is lost to the Norwegian musical life, even though we are not suffering from a scarcity of good pianists in this country of ours. His interpretation of the changing moods of the work's movements brought the ballade close to our lives once again.

Audun Ravnan at Grieg's piano.

"Ravnan's technique is irreproachable and there is a towering spaciousness in his dynamic register, even if the instrument at Troldhaugen did not always provide a perfect answer to his coloristic intentions.

"In truth, there was throughout the entire performance piano playing of the highest sublimity which made a strong and intense impression in Grieg's chambers . . ."

Ravnan talked a bit about the four-week trip. He visited his mother and stepfather, brothers and sisters and other relatives during his star.

Concerning the concerts at which he played he said, "It was a solemn occasion for me. The room (at Troldhaugen) is small and the members of the audience — and the crowds at both were large — were very close to me." The pianist hunched his shoulders, demonstrating the proximity. "It was nice warm feeling. There also were persons listening in the gardens. The piano has been worked on frequently." And, after Ravnvn performed on it, there was bit of clean-up to do on it.

"While playing I split the ends of my fingers and they bled. I had no equipment with me to fix them up."

And how did the piano look afterward?

"Bloody," Ravnan laughed.

Alan Sillitoe Plans UNL October Visit

"In a sense, I am looking forward to my stay in Nebraska more than in New York," wrote Alan Sillitoe to Robert Haller, University of Nebraska professor of English. And that stay begins in October.

Sillitoe, who will be on the Lincoln campus as a visiting fellow is the noted English author of Saturday Night and Sunday Morning and eight other novels, several short stories, travel books and a play.

He met Haller and several NU students when they were on a class trip last year. "We were in Nottingham (Sillitoe's home) studying the effects of urbanization and industrialization on British culture.

"Sillitoe spoke to us for about four hours and then we adjourned to a pub where we talked another three hours. We discussed all sorts of things—working conditions, education, etc. And when we parted, it was a mutual agreement that if his schedule permitted he would visit us here," Haller explained.

This is the author's first trip to the United States. He is in this country in connection with the publication of his new collection of short stories, Men, Women and Children.

His visit to Lincoln is sponsored by UNL's English Dept. in response to increased interest in fiction, Haller said.

Unlike the students he will talk with a UNL and unlike most of England's Angry Young Men, Sillitoe had no formal education as a writer.

As many children from working class families in England, the author failed to qualify for further education after elementary school and went to work in a bicycle factory.

Sillitoe was drafted at the end of World War II and spent a few years in Malaya as an RAF radio operator, Haller said. While in the service, he contracted tuberculosis and spent a year in the hospital where he first began to read seriously.

When he left the hospital in 1951 and until 1957, he had a very small pension to support him while he wrote. Sillitoe is not an anti-establishment writer but aims "to represent the intensity and dignity of working-class people and to celebrate their triumph over circumstances."

He has visited the Soviet Union twice and Israel once. Three of his novels, Saturday Night and Sunday Morning, The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner and Ragman's Daughter have been made into films.

Alan Sillitoe

The writer, whom Haller describes as "very generous with us," in addition to the workshop for advanced fiction writers, will make several public appearances. A tentative schedule:

Oct. 1: Film showing of Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner, 12:30 p.m., followed by discussion in Sheldon Gallery auditorium. English-geography colloquim, 4 p.m. 228 Andrews Hall.

Oct. 2: Public reading, Nebraska Union, 14th - R Sts. 3:30 p.m.

Oct. 3: Public lecture, The Origins of Saturday Night and Sunday Morning, 4 p.m. Sheldon Gallery auditorium.

New York — The Metropolitan Opera launches its 90th season Monday. General manager Schuyler G. Chapin envisions stormy seas, but says: "I do not intend to captain a sinking Titanic."

"Ours must remain a star house," Chapin says. What stars cost is "nothing compared to our basic operational expenses of maintaining an orchestra of 92, a chorus of 78 — plus extras — and some two dozen dancers."

Chapin notes, "There are only a dozen or so real box office stars."

With Renata Tebaldi virtually retired from opera and Leontyne Price rarely at the Met, the burden of stellar lure has fallen on Joan Sutherland, Marilyn Horne, Luciano Pavarotti and Birgit Nilsson, with Shirley Verrett, Martina Arroyo, Richard Tucker, Placido Domingo and increasingly erratic Franco Corelli among a scant fistful of those who are major attractions.

Wagner, according to Chapin, remains one of the great attractions, but there is an acute shortage of great Wagnerian voices. The happiest crisis faced by the Met ticket department is overwhelming demand for the non-subscription four-Saturday matinee broadcast performances of the "ring cycle."

"This year," Chapin notes, "we have new productions of Janacke's Jenufa and Mussorgsky's Boris Godunov, funded by the always-generous Mrs. DeWitt Wallace, and Benjamin Britten's Death in Venice, a gift of the Gramma Fischer Foundation." In addition, there will be last June's new double bill of Bartok's Bluebeard's Castle in a creative, daring production paid for by Francis Goelet, and a lively Gianni Schicchi, of Puccini, funded by the Corbett Foundation.

"Subscription sales, partly the result of a new approach to advertising and promotion in general, are more than holding their own at about 58 per cent, with remaining seats for single ticket buyers," Chapin says.

Chapin adds that more than 62 per cent of all subscribers are making voluntary contributions along with their ticket purchases, indicating "that our message of financial need is getting across."

Translations for U.S. Children

By Mary Somerville
Chief, Young People's Services
Lincoln City Libraries

Foreign children's books in the United States represent a rare and somewhat endangered species. Only the best are translated into English and of these, a scant few reach American libraries.

Then too, unless the translator is skilled and the child reader receptive, the book from another country may spend most of its life on the shelf. Even British books, which achieve wider circulation, are not always available nor do they receive the attention they deserve.

One translated title that gets checked out is The Glassblower's Children (Delacorte) by Swedish author Maria Gripe, who just received the Hans Christian Andersen Award for her total work.

An extended fairy tale, The Glassblower's Children tells how the lord of All Wishes Town kidnaps Klas and Klara for his childless, unhappy lady. The bored lady is beyond joy, since she knows the lord can fulfill her every wish.

She is not entirely pleased with his latest gift. The cold beauty of the lonely mansion contrasts with the loving simplicity of the glassmaker's cottage. In the end, seeress Flutter Mildweather, who prophesies the kidnaping from the start, sets out with her raven, Wisewit, to save Klas and Klara.

Young People's World

Best British book of the year is The Ghost of Thomas Kempe (Dutton) by Penelope Lively. Equivalent to our American Newbery, the English Carnegie Medal is given for fine writing.

Children from all countries are bound to delight in the story of a boy and a poltergeist. When James Harrison and his family move into a 200-year-old house, they do not dream that an unseen lodger haunts the attic room. A 17th Century sorcerer, Thomas Kempe, makes himself heard but not seen all over the house, breaking vases and writing on windows.

Blamed for all the mischief, James enlists the aid of an exorcist. Lots of humor, an old diary, and a mysterious presence make The Ghost of Thomas Kempe a memorable story.

A Russian title that has yet earned no award but has received many rave reviews is An Old Tale Carved Out of Stone by A. Linevski (Crown). The most outstanding foreign book we have read recently, and reminiscent of the finest historical fiction by Rosemary Sutcliff, An Old Tale delineates the lives of a Siberian Stone Age people.

Because he is a seventh son, the boy Liok becomes a shaman. Knowing nothing of magic and terrified by the tribe's expectations, Liok uses his guile to predict the outcome of hunts. The boy thus has to contend with more than freezing winds and ravenous wolves; to save his life, he must avoid being made the scapegoat in the tribe's constant battle to expel evil spirits.

The Mildred Batchelder Award, presented annually for the best foreign book translated into English, recently went to Petro's War (Dutton) by Alki Zei. Her Wildcat Under Glass (Holt, Rinehart & Winston), also about political tyranny, won the same award in 1970.

Set in Greece during World War II, Petros' War describes Nazi domination and its effects on one family. A boy at the start of the war, Petros becomes a young man as he aids the resistance effort. Through his eyes we see the larger ramifications of war: hunger, the death of innocent people and the terrible struggle for survival.

Facing Death

Love Must Not Be Wasted. By Isabella Taves; Crowell.

Here is a very personal and honest book about death and the destruction it leaves in its wake.

Death is very lonely — both for the dying and the survivors — it is very un-American, is undignified and messy and it often leaves the living in financial and emotional chaos.

Which sounds like very morose or maudlin kind of reading. But it really isn't. It's informative, honest, warm, and if you have no personal knowledge of death, you will, and this book will tell you more about how you're going to feel than perhaps anything you've read so far.

The dying, Isabella Taves says, are often a nuisance to the medical profession and an embarrassment to the clergy.

The patient has the right to die with dignity, but not if it ruins the lives of those around him. "The patient is not God. Neither is his doctor. Neither is his clergyman."

Patients have rights, but so do the survivors, and the author can tell it as well as anyone — the sometimes strange behavior the survivors practice in the struggle for their own survival.

Isabella Taves, a native Lincolnite, was married for 20 years to Dan Mich, an editor for Look magazine, who died after a lingering illness.

His illness caused him at times to be demanding and unreasonable. Because of his own unresolved grief from the death of his mother when he was only four, the author says, Mich spent his entire life looking for his mother. That search accelerated during his terminal illness and the author tried to play the role, often at great expense to herself.

Isabella Taves

One of the things this book explains is the duration of grief. More often than not, after the visits, after the notes and the flowers have stopped, the grief low is still far down the road ahead:

"Accept everything that comes your way. But in the end if miracles are to be accomplished (and recovery from grief, when it happens, does seem like a miracle when you look back and remember how you once felt), everything depends on you."

Author of several books, including Women Alone, Isabella Taves also is the writer of a syndicated column with the same title.

She makes many references to Lincoln and Tecumseh, where her parents, as well as other relatives, are buried.

The one distracting property of Love Must Not Be Wasted is a somehow disorderly arrangement and insertion of personal experiences of people she has known. There's nothing wrong with them, but the organization of material makes you feel as if your thoughts have been interrupted. It doesn't flow as well as it could.

The final chapter in the book shows the author contemplating her own death. Honest to the end, she confesses that what she fears most is that she will be alone when she dies.

"You can only erase pain by facing it steadily," she writes. "You can stand anything you can talk about. A wise old doctor was once asked what to do when sorrow comes. He said, 'Take it gently by the hand.' "

Indian Portraits And Data

Recently brought into print by Historic Indian Publishers of Salt Lake City, Utah, in a limited first edition is Historic Indian Portraits: 1898 Peace Jubilee Collection, compiled by Bill and Verla Rieske.

The volume commemorates Omaha's 1898 Trans-Mississippi Exposition and Indian Congress and reproduces material — printed and photographic — from the Omaha Daily Bee Peace Jubilee Souvenir.

As its title suggests, however, the book's most prominent feature is a collection of colored portraits of Indians from various tribes. These have been reproduced from the work of F. A. Rinehart of Omaha, the exposition's official photographer. They are accompanied by comments from mostly well-known Indians, not all of whom are pictured.

With the book is a separate foldout map showing the areas — from Siberia and Greenland to the Isthmus of Panama where it joins South America — occupied by the various Indian tribes of North America. In the book are additional maps delineating population density, dominant subsistence areas, natural vegetation, housing, crafts and other facets of Indian life.

Textual comments, statistics and other data have been annotated by the Rieskes, and they have identified the sources of their material in bibliographic references.

Historic Indian Portraits and the hand-colored photographs from which its illustrations were reproduced were displayed at the 1974 Nebraska State Fair.

WASPish Tale

Forest Hills Diary. By Mario Cuomo; Random House. When New York City decided to build a low-income housing project in Forest Hills in 1972, residents rebelled with a ferocity that astonished many. Individuals of liberal leanings angrily objected to the proposed influx of thousands of poorer citizens into their middle-class, middle-income neighborhood. It was a classic confrontation in a government's efforts to provide proper housing for the underprivileged, a conflict that today is being repeated across the nation. Mario Cuomo, the mayor's mediator in the crisis, gives a straightforward day-by-day account that takes its drama from the importance of the issues involved.— UPI

Writers' Lives

The films Anais Nin and Anton Chekhov: A Writer's Life will be shown Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 3, 7 and 9 p.m. at the Sheldon Art Gallery, 12th and R, on the University of Nebraska campus.

Anais Nin is the portrait of the woman writer who discusses psychoanalysis, dreams, methods of editing her journal and an experiment with LSD.

The 37-minute feature on Chekhov is narrated by Eli Wallach.

Chamber Music Series Has Two Kimball Hall Concerts

It isn't for everyone, but people who like chamber music often become almost fanatic about it.

Perhaps the definition of the term chamber music explains the attitudes. The Encyclopedia Americana describes it as instrumental music of an intimate character written for performance by two or more players. No part is a solo with accompaniment, all parts are equal in importance. The term implies performance in a room or small to medium-sized auditorium.

Tenth Season

The Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music was organized, according to Mrs. Peter Worth, when there were no chamber music performances nearer than Omaha. She and Robert Narveson, Arnold Schatz, Larry Poston and Fred Link organized the Friends.

On Oct. 25 the 10th season for the present organization, in association with Sheldon Art Gallery, opens with a performance by the Cleveland Quartet.

The Cleveland Quartet appeared in the Lincoln series about five years ago. For their return engagement they will play a program of compositions by Brahms, Bethoven and Mozart.

One change in the Friends series this year is that two concerts, the first one and the one by the Nebraska Chamber Orchestra, will be in Kimball Recital Hall. The other concerts will be in the smaller aduitorium of the Sheldon Gallery.

"This means there will be additional seats and persons who do not have series subscriptions may attend," said Nelson Potter, president of the Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music. "Actually, there usually are some tickets available to non-series subscribers at any performance."

3 Other Concerts

The performances scheduled at Sheldon Gallery auditorium include the Alma Trio on Nov. 22, Peter Serkins Chamber Music Ensemble on Jan. 31 and Quartetto Caecilia di Roma on March 7.

The Nebraska Chamber Orchestra will play under the direction of Yuri Krasnapolsky, conductor of the Omaha and Des Moines symphony orchestras.

A grant from the Nebraska Arts Council makes this Lincoln performance possible, Potter said. "In this special concert we hope to bring together some of the best musicians from the Omaha and Lincoln symphonies ... and thereby bring into being a new, highly professional sounding ensemble. We think that we may be starting something with this concert."

Potter describes Sheldon Auditorium as ideal for chamber music with its "superb acoustics and its limited seating capacity of 300."

Information concerning series subscriptions may be had from Potter, the Sheldon Art Gallery or at the Westbrook Music Bldg. ticket desk, Potter said.

Members of the Lincoln Friends of Chamber Music board, in addition to Potter, are Mrs. John McClendon, treasuruer; Mrs. Ted Andros, Mrs. Robert Narveson, Schuyler Houser, Arnold Schatz, Wesley Reist, Eugene Johnson and Jim McCabe.

Recital Friday Introduces Judy Cole of NU Faculty

A new voice on the Lincoln music and teaching scene — that of Judy Cole, mezzo-soprano and instructor of voice at the University of Nebraska — will be heard in a free public recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in Kimball Hall, 11th & R.

Mrs. Cole, a Florida native, earned baccalaureate and master's degrees from Louisiana State University and studied at the Cantica School in London. She has done considerable private teaching and was an instructor at voice at Indiana State University in Pennsylvania. She has been a professional soloist at B'Nai Israel Temple and St. James Episcopal Church in Baton Rouge and was an apprentice artist with the Sante Fe Opera Co.

Ms. Cole will begin her first Lincoln performance singing Vivaldi's typically baroque Stabat Mater, for string quartet and organ as well as contralto voice. George Ritchie will be at the organ, with the quartet composed of Laura Jeffs and Connie

Judy Cole

Feese, violins, Anne Pettis, villa, and Paul Bedell, cello.

Her program also includes three selections from a 19th century French lyric song cycle by Faure entitled Poeme d'un Jour, a collection of non-opera songs written by Verdi and four of a series of 12 poems of Emily Dickinson set to music by Aaron Copland. Piano accompaniment for Ms. Cole will be by Lucy Greene Wenger.

Oboe, Bassoon Program

The University of Nebraska School of Music presents two faculty members in a free public recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Kimball Hall. They are Robert O'Boyle, oboe, and Gary Echols, bassoon.

O'Boyle will open his program with Jan Wanhal's Quartet for Oboe and String Trio in C Major, Opus 7, No. 6 and Echols has selected the Franz Danzi Quartet for Bassoon and String Trio in B-flat Major, Opus 40, No. 2. The string trio for both numbers will be composed of Marilyn O'Boyle, violin, Pat Morrow, villa, and Priscilla Parson, violoncello.

O'Boyle also will play a romantic composition by Carl Rienecke, the Trio for Oboe, Horn and Piano in A-Minor, Opus 88. Thomas Fritz will perform on piano and David Kappy on French horn.

Echols will return for Beethoven's Trio for Flute, Bassoon and Piano in E Major. The flute performer will be David Van de Bogart; Audun Ravnan will be pianist.

Suzuki Group At Concordia

Seward — The Suzuki Talent Education touring group will be at Concordia Teachers College here Oct. 1. A workshop Directed by Suzuki-trained Japanese teachers is scheduled at 1 p.m. in Weller Auditorium. A concert by child musicians is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the college's physical education building.

The Suzuki method uses mothers to teach pre-readers by ear and uses group techniques at lessons. The Seward workshop and concert are sponsored by the Seward Arts Council and the Concordia lyceum and music departments. Prof. Charles Krutz is event chairman.

Collier Recital Tonight

Morris Collier Will open the Nebraska Wesleyan University faculty recital season at 8 tonight in O'Donnell Auditorium in the college's Fine Arts Center.

Collier's recital will include three sonatas, one each by Beethoven, Bach and Prokofieff.

Collier said the Prokofieff piece has been praised as one of great beauty and originality with fresh and melodic approaches for violin and piano. "Many call this one of his finest pieces of chamber music," Collier said.

Lincolnites In Ainsworth Music Series

Ainsworth — Mrs. Gerald F. Baruth and Mrs. Frank Paul of Lincoln were guest soloists in the first concert of Ainsworth's 1974-75 vesper series.

The September concert featured Medelssohn's St. Paul. A chorus of Ainsworth church choir members sang. The title role was sung by Glenn Trent, a former teacher at Ord and York, now of Kansas City.

Mrs. Baruth is soloist at Trinity United Methodist Church in Lincoln and Mrs. Paul is soloist at First Baptist in Kansas City. Both sing in the Lincoln Symphony Chorale.

Other concerts in the Ainsworth vesper season include an organ recital by C. Richard Morris of Des Moines, formerly of Lincoln, on Oct. 13; piano recital by Jean Sanders of Lincoln Nov. 17; brass concert by an ensemble conducted by Prof. Jack Snider of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Jan. 19, and an organ recital by Alec Wyton of the Church of St. John the Divine in New York City in April.

Jerry Hohnbaum, formerly of Lincoln and now of Ainsworth, directs the vesper series.

Live History Theater Opens

Chester, England (UPI) — Chester has opened a theater of "living history," with 2,000 years to cover. Chester was the headquarters of the 20th Legion when the Romans ruled Britain. Many medieval buildings remain within its well-preserved city walls.

The British Heritage Theater presents an audio-visual interpretation of the city's history, and reconstructs memories of periods from Elizabethan to Victorian Times.

Tune Debut Atop List

The subject of love — I Honestly Love You — by Olivia Newton-John zooms to the top of the Cash Box magazine survey on its first visit to the list.

Other new tunes on this week's survey include a comedy bit by Cheech & Chong entitled Earache My Eye and First Class' Beach Baby. This week's list, last week's ratings in parentheses:

8. Hang On in There, Baby, Johnny Bristol (10).
9. Earache My Eye, Cheech & Chong (new).
10. Beach Baby, First Class (new).

Dropped: Tell Me Something Good, Rufus (3); The Night Chicago Died, Paper Lace (4); I'm Leaving It All Up to You, Donny & Marie Osmond (7).

Los Angeles Philharmonic Opens Oct. 24

Los Angeles (AP) — The Los Angeles Philharmonic opens its 56th season, Zubin Mehta's 13th season as music director and the 10th anniversary of the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion Oct. 24, 25 and 27.

The program of gala opening week concerts will be dominated by a performance of the Verdi Requiem with soloists Martina Arroyo, Mignon Dunn, Luciano Pavarotti and Ruggero Raimondi and Roger Wagner's Los Angeles Master Chorale.

On the same program, works by Ivees and Schoenberg will mark the beginning of a commemoration by the orchestra of the centenary of the birth of those two great composers.

Five guest conductors will appear during the season: James Levine, Andrew Davis, Pierre Boulez, Lawrence Foster and Carlo Maria Giulini. Sidney Hart, the Philharmonic's concertmaster and associate conductor, will be on the podium for one week's concerts.

'Home-Leave' for Americans Surprises

By Charles Mitchelmore
(c) Chicago Daily News

Vienna — More than a few Americans who live and work in Europe view the prospect of "home leave" with dismay. That's the trip back to the United States every year or so, sometimes required by American employers to keep their far-flung employes up to date.

Although home leaves are usually paid for by the firms, they invariably cost the returnees extra money. There's never enough time to see all the relatives, check in at company headquarters AND actually enjoy some vacation time. The thought persists that the time could have been spent so much more pleasantly seeing sights abroad.

My family and I have just returned from a sort of home leave that took us, for business and family reasons, to many parts of the United States. Much to our surprise, we had one of our best vacations in years.

When we travel in Europe, we look forward to good food, a change of scenery and some stimulating culture. We know it will all cost more than planned, but we also hope to feel it was worth it.

In the United States we got everything we sought in Europe. A few highlights, perhaps useful as ideas for those who can't come to Europe:

—Almost literally in the wilderness, seven miles up the Rogue River from the Oregon coast town of Gold Beach, we ate for three days better than in many so-called luxury restaurants of Europe. This was at the Tu Tu Tun Lodge, a handsome place built and run by a San Francisco architect gone into exile.

Gourmet meals were served family style around lazy susan tables and — wonder of the American way of life? — they were cooked by a 17-year-old girl just out of high school. The price for a full day's meals worked out to less than a medicore lunch in London.

—In the handsome outdoor opera theater at Santa Fe, we saw Mozart performed in English in a production so bright and sparkling we hung our heads in shame at the shabby way his Magic Flute is treated at home in Vienna.

—On an hour's airplane flight from San Francisco to Eugene, Ore., we were treated to a tasting of four pleasant Mexican wines with — again to our surprise — lovely cheeses and fresh fruits. What a contrast to the plastic box lunches served on trips inside Europe! On another airline, but on two separate flights, from Dallas to Albuquerque and from Albuquerque to San Francisco, we were served in tourist class two of the best airborne meals I can recall — and even the coffee was hot.

—At the Shakespeare Festival in Ashland, Ore., we saw a performance as good as anything I can remember from five year's residence in Britain, with frequent trips to Stratford and London theaters. And the best seats were $6, which won't buy much of the Bard elsewhere.

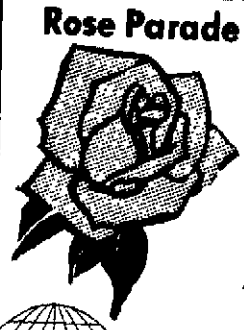

—In the neighboring Oregon town of Jacksonville, a gold rush center in the 1850s, there's a stagecoach ride to see the historic sights. And what was the price of a 20-minute tour that really excited the kids and even pleased the grown-ups? We couldn't believe it, after years of inflated amusements in Europe but it was adults $1 and children 50c.

We did think the entrance fee at the amusement park of Six Flags over Texas was steep, until we realized this is a new American policy: pay once and then ride everything free. Everyone in the family managed to get his money's worth in a couple of hours on big slides, little trains and old-fashioned roller coasters.

Sure, there were disappointments and unpleasantnesses. We laughed when relatives complained about 55c gas because we pay twice as much. Then we rented an American car and discovered we got half the miles per gallon we do at home in Europe.

There also were six-hour airline delays and some junky food and bad television. But we have returned, convinced an American vacation can actually be a vacation.

Our Little Town

Don't Measure Riches in Money

By Gertrude Skinner
Superior

Have you ever noticed that those people who say that money doesn't matter are those who have always had it?

I was born into a family rich in love for God, each other and our fellowman; the more practical side of life found us wanting. Wanting food, shelter and clothing. It never occurred to us to expect more. Just staying alive was big business. There was no money.

Because of the restrictions of an empty pocketbook in my formative years it has always been most difficult for me as an adult to part with money without great gnashing of teeth and prolonged consideration of value about to be received.

There are a great many rich people living in Superior.

Rich in kindness, generosity, love and compassion.

Because of the dear hearts and gentle people in my home town I am once again weaving the pattern of life, a life shredded by the shock of losing Eli.

These lovely human beings have surrounded me, supported me and put up with me. From personal observation I know all about their value as human beings: about their finances I know absolutely nothing.

To guess would be to say that a few are reaching for their first million but that most of us are making do with what we have at hand. And we explore a lot.

At hand we have a local radio program whereby we buy, sell or trade personal possessions in a carnival atmosphere that is great fun. Also we have a thrift shop which brings to the surface such treasures as I have found - an antique jacquard bedspread in perfect condition for $2.50; a burned wood letter box for 10c; a camel's hair coat that is gorgeous, price $1.75.

My latest acquisition - a string of beautifully matched pearls which I innocently bought for the silver clasp alone in a Salvation Army thrift shop. Experts tell me the "beads" are pearls. For which I paid 25c

Everyone seems to have his own way of doing things. Right? My way of doing things is to buy, sell or trade and explore a lot. Right?

British Guiana Stamp Value Up to $312,000

By Associated Press

The world's most valuable stamp — the British Guiana one-cent black on magenta of 1856 — is now listed for 130,000 pounds (approximately $312,000). This means a price rise of some 10,000 pounds in one year.

This and many other remarkable increases are revealed in the new 77th edition of Stanley Gibbons' British Commonwealth Stamp Catalog.

In general, stamps issued during the reigns of Queen Victoria and Edward VII have increased by 25 per cent in the 12 months since the previous edition of this catalog. George V stamps have been upped by 20 per cent.

Bermuda's Postmasters' Provisional issues of 1848-61 have risen tremendously. The Penny Perot of 1854 is now listed for 50,000 pounds. In the 1969 catalog, just five years ago, this stamp was shown at 6,500 pounds.

Mini-Albums

The U.S. Postal Service reports that the only mini-albums currently available by mail order from the Philatelic Sales Division are the 1972 and 1973 editions. Both albums are still selling at the original price of $3 each. Some local post offices have them on hand.

The 1972 album included the Cape Hattera's block of four 2-centers as well as the Colonial Craftsmen set of four and the four Wildlife Conservation block. The 1973 book contains 11 issues including the popular Boston Tea Party block of four.

ASDA Show

The 26th annual ASDA National Postage Stamp Show will take place on Nov. 22-24 in New York City. It will feature participation by governments and postal administrations throughout the world, stamp clubs and societies, and leading dealers. A court of honor will display world renowned collections which have won gold medals in competition at international stamp exhibitions.

Nicaraguan Animals

Nicaragua has issued a beautifully designed set of 10 stamps depicting animals of that country. Pictured on the adhesives are the anteater, puma, raccoon, ocelot, guinea pig, water rat, peccary, tapir, red deer and jaguar.

Another issue pays tribute to the West German football team which won the 1974 World Cup in Munich. Nicaragua overprinted its 10-cd value which was issued recently to honor the games.

Halloween Reminder

Requests for first day cancellations of the U.S. Postal Service is Legend of Sleepy Hollow stamp must be postmarked no later than Oct. 10. The Stamp, being issued at North Tarrytown, N.Y., that day, is one of the Folklore series. It depicts the "headless horseman" pursuing timid schoolmaster Ichabod Crane. The two figures in a famous story by Washington Irving, who lived in Tarrytown and made it the setting for his tale. First-day cancellation requests must include the proper remittance (10 cents per stamp in money order) and should be sent to Postmaster, North Tarrytown, N.Y. 10591.

Tuba Recital At Doane Today

Crete — The Doane College fine arts division presents the college's first public recital of the season at 3 p.m. today in the Communications Center auditorium. Featured performer will be Keith Heckman, a professional tuba player from Lincoln. He will be accompanied on the piano by Doane Prof. James Bastian.

The program will include Lebedev's Concerto in One Movement, Alec Wilder's Sonata for Tuba, a Suite for Unaccompanied Tuba by Walter S. Hartley, and Vaclav Nelhybel's fun-packed Suite for Tuba and Piano.

Heckman is a graduate of the University of Nebraska School of Music and is a former pupil of NU Prof. Vernon Forbes.

Solarian®

The sunny floor that's born with a shine on its face ...and keeps on gleaming, without waxing!
Solarian is a totally new kind of floor that actually does shine without waxing. Its high shine comes from its 'Mirabond' surface, an exclusive formulation that retains its gloss—without waxing—far longer than any ordinary vinyl floor. It's also a lot easier to keep clean. Spills, tracked-in dirt—even black heel marks come up easily. Customers who have bought Solarian just can't get over the way it relieves them of the chore of taking care of their floors. Say goodbye to floor-care drudgery. See the dozens of high-fashion colors and designs available.

Does Audience Passivity Vindicate Network Bosses?

By Ron Powers
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — You cover the broadcasting beat long enough and you come to the disgusting conclusion that all those supposedly out-of-touch, insensitive network executives really do understand their viewing audiences after all.

Throughout the premiere period the three networks unloaded some of the shallowest, silliest, commonest, most patronizing and repetitious and rigidly formulized excuses for entertainment series ever visited on the viewing audience — even by the networks' own miserable standards.

Big-city lawyers turned country lawyers. Baseball players turned high-school teachers. Ex-marines turned private investigators. Law school graduates turned truck drivers. Anybody see a pattern there? Guess not. Nary a telephone call asking how to protest threadbare premises for series.

Banality Is Shock

Then there's the execrable rip-off, by NBC and "producer-star-director" Michael Landon, of the excellent Laura Ingalls Wilder series of children's books. The TV version is called Little House on the Prairie, and it has been so banalized for television that even some children I know, who read the books, turned away from the pilot episode in shock and disillusionment.

Premiere Week Ratings: Page 6TV

How many calls asking how to protest this affront? One. Everybody else, presumably, sat through it in slack-lipped silence.

Or take NBC's Born Free, which turns photogenic Africa into just another arena for chase scenes by planes and four-wheel-drive trucks and uses dialog that is stunning in its simple mindedness.

Any calls requesting advice on whom to write in outrage over this desecration? Zero.

Reaction To 'Innocent'

No, the overwhelming bulk of viewer outrage was directed at the one example of courageous, honest and intelligently crafted television drama: A two-hour NBC world premier movie called Born Innocent.

Starring Linda Blair and written by Gerald Dipego (the writers always get overlooked in the credits for these things), Born Innocent was the story of a runaway girl who lands in a reform school, and of the cruel, insensitive treatment she receives there.

It is a dramatic theme that has plenty of applicability in many places.

The story was not pretty. It included a lesbian gang-rape scene, with a plumber's helper as the offending tool (the photography here was restrained and far from explicit). And it ended with the girl rejecting the compassionate caseworker (Joanna Miles) and joining the pack of young female beasts who have tormented her, killing the sparks of her sensitivity.

And the reaction to it — in phone calls to NBC in New York, WMAQ in Chicago and the Chicago Sun-Times — was nearly uniform shock and rage.

Suddenly, it seemed, everyone in the country was concerned with the question of quality in television.

Who Picks Channel?

"How dare you bring such smut into our home?" the viewers fumed, as if NBC agents themselves switched the channel selectors to Born Innocent. Many callers railed against the "four-letter words" — although there were none.

But the most common focus of viewer complaints against Born Innocent was that it would be seen by their children. And the children, presumably, would be forever warped and twisted by what they saw.

I doubt it — as I doubt the validity of the complaint itself. The controversial rape scene was enacted in such a way that only a sophisticated viewer could perceive that anything was happening to the girl — anything beyond your normal mugging, that is, which is common enough on TV. As for the existence of sadists, lesbians and angry victims in general — they're out there, whether television in its 25-year history of euphemism has admitted it or not.

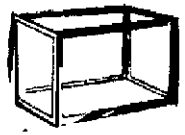

If parents insist on sheltering their children from such truths — or refusing to discuss what a child sees on TV in a calm and instructive way — then let them turn the dial to Good Times and hush up about closing the airwaves down to unsettling drama.

Melissa Gilbert (lower left) plays Laura Ingalls (Wilder) who participated in, and later wrote, the story on which NBC's Little House on the Prairie is based. Michael Landon who plays Pa Ingalls, holds either Lindsay or Sidney Green Bush, twins who double in the role of Baby Carrie. Karen Grassle is the mother and Melissa Sue Anderson plays the role of Mary, Laura's older sister. The show is seen at 7 p.m. Wednesdays on KMTV.

Versatile Stapleton Wants Edith Kept in Her Own Place

Hollywood (UPI) — Jean Stapleton is determined to portray Eleanor Roosevelt in a movie, thereby putting to rest growing suspicion among the uninformed that she and Edith Bunker are Siamese twins.

After four years of playing the dingbat Edith in "All in the Family," Jean is anxious for a national audience to see her doing something else.

Every year during the top-rated show's hiatus the actress plunges into theater work to restore her long-established reputation as an accomplished and versatile actress.

This past year, for instance, she starred in the Los Angeles Music Center's presentation of "Time of the Cuckoo." Then "The Vinegar Tree" and "Lullaby" at the Totem Pole Playhouse which she and husband Bill Putch own in Pennsylvania.

Still, to almost everyone, Jean is unmistakably Edith Bunker.

"Earlier this year a disc jockey said over the air I would be good as Eleanor Roosevelt," Jean said. "Then another friend suggested I should play Mrs. Roosevelt. The idea really excited me. So I began to do some research. There are at least 35 books on Eleanor Roosevelt. And I hope to read all of them.

"She was a fascinating woman and her influences are still with us. Already I've become more politically alert.

"Since word got out that I'm interested in doing a biographical picture about Mrs. Roosevelt, I've had offers to use research materials of people who knew her during her lifetime.

"I met Mrs. Roosevelt once when I was in 'Come Back Little Sheba.' She came back stage after a performance and we were all so awed we couldn't say a thing. The poor woman had to make all the small talk."

Jean Stapleton ("Edith Bunker") has ambition to portray the late Eleanor (Mrs. Franklin) Roosevelt (right).

Zorro to Dare Oppression Again

Zorro is coming back. ABC will have another version of The Mark of Zorro, tale of a daring adventurer in pioneer California, playing a dual Character to avenge his family's oppression. Douglas Fairbanks Sr. did it for the silent movies, Tyron Power starred in a talkie production and there was a popular television series in the 1950s that had parents buying Zorro capes, masks and other accoutrements for their young sons. The new Zorr is Frank Langella, prominent stage and screen player.

A.M.'s Debut On January 6

New York (UPI) — ABC's new early morning program, A.M. America, due to bow next Jan. 6, will be in charge of three personalities — Bill Beutel, Stephanie Edwards and Bob Kennedy. John Lindsay, former New York Mayor, will be a regular ruest Commentator.

Great Director Series Repeats on ETV Net

For movie buffs of every age, most of the 244 PBS (Public Broadcasting Service) stations across the U.S. are expected to repeat a TV series entitled, The Men Who Made the Movies. The biographical documentaries, delving into the works of eight leading American directors, were made possible in 1973 by a grant from Eastman Kodak Company.

William Wellman

William Wellman, whose films include Public Enemy and The Story of G.I. Joe, will be the subject of the first repeat, starting Wednesday at 7 p.m. on KUON and the Nebraska ETV Network stations. The remaining seven programs will be broadcast on consecutive Wednesdays.

Other directors to be featured — along with excerpts from their films — are Frank Capra, Howard Hawks, King Vidor, George Cukor, Alfred Hitchcock, Vincente Minnelli and Raoul Walsh.

Walker's 'Kodiak' Aimed at Campers

(c) Chicago Daily News

Los Angeles — So there he is, all of him: Clint Walker, 6-foot-6, 235 pounds. And he says he's not really so big — there's 6-foot-7 Jim Arness.

"Now, that's tall," says Clint.

Being tall, too, is better than being short.

"Some people say that being big attracts trouble. I don't think so. I used to be a bouncer and I was very much in demand and made good money, and one of the reasons was that a big man has less trouble. The other guy may think twice," he said.

On the other hand, most of his problems came from "the little bitty fellows — and you can never win with them. If you whip 'em you're a bully and if you lose you're a coward.

Walker, 47, for eight years the star of Cheyenne on ABC, has come back to the network after 10 years and a lot of movies to star in a new ABC show, Kodiak, about an outdoorsman, strong, silent cop in Alaska.

"ABC decided Clint Walker still had a lot of fans out there and he should be doing a series," Walker told interviewers. "The question was, what kind? Well, we saw all those people who jam the freeways on Friday night, bumper to bumper in campers and trailers, all trying to get away from the rat race, trying to get out there and see some green, some mountain streams and blue skies.

"So that's what we're going to try to bring them."

Walker has starred in five 90-minute movies for ABC the last three years (Yuma, Hardcase, The Bounty Man, Scream of the Wolf, and Killdozer), and all of them did well.

"I believe in action movies. I don't like a lot of words. I think a picture is much more interesting if it tells the story by action, more interesting than a lot of yak," he said.

An action man himself, Walker was nearly killed a few years ago when he went head over heels on skis and landed on a ski pole, which punctured his heart.

They sewed him up and he was back at work on a picture in Spain with Telly Savalas in two months. The doctors said they couldn't figure out how he even lived.

"I bent the pole to a right angle, that's how hard I hit. But I'm fine. I can do anything. Except the doctors tell me I'm not supposed to stick any more poles in my chest," he said.

His big, brawny chest helped him star in his first movie a little while back, The Bowery Boys Go to Africa, in which he played Tarzan.

"They were taking Jane back to New York with them. So I came out of the jungle beating on my chest and yelling. I think one of my lines — it was my first speaking part — was 'Jane stay,'" Walker recalled.

"The movie people had a record for the Tarzan yell but I'd been practicing, up in the mountains above Burbank — I could hear the people down below say, "What the heck was that?" — and they used me instead. It sounded like a coyote with his foot caught in a trap."

Walker, a believer in health foods and exercise, lots of it, said he doesn't let his age bother him.

"I have to think sometimes to realize how old I am. People get programmed to think that at a certain age they have to look and feel a certain way. That's nonsense," he said.

"The thing to do is enjoy life. If you don't, you're old when you're young. If you do, you're young when you're old. Life is really fascinating. There is so much to see and do.

"If I get bored, which happens rarely, I figure it's my own fault."

Clint Walker as Alaska patrolman Kodiak.

No. 402 in a Series

In NEBRASKA Who? Where? What? When?

It was a special occasion, long enough past now that it could not be duplicated no matter what the demand.

Last Week's Picture

When the State Fair closes, teardown night and the following day leave the midway area looking something like this scene following the 1968 fair. Cleanup crews go to work almost immediately and the debris soon vanishes.

107 years ago this week — Old Nebraska

1867: From the high ground east of Market Square, an observer could see nearly 40 houses in the city of Lincoln.

Elder Taggart was named chairman and Judge A. F. Harvey was chosen secretary of the new State Historical Library Association.

100 1874: Lincoln was divided into three voting precincts by the county commissioners.

Lincolnites could ride by train to Chicago without a single change in cars.

90 1884: The hose race between the Fitzgerald and Merchant hose companies at the county fair had to be rescheduled for a later date because of the heat.

Total Lincoln city school enrolment was 1,800, up 191 from the previous year. Thirty-eight teachers were in the school system, 16 in the central school and eight each in the North and Park schools.

University of Nebraska freshmen were reportedly acquiring many of the customs of other colleges. This included carrying canes.

80 1894: Lincoln was the only Nebraska city showing a gain over the previous year in bank clearings, according to Robert Wilson, Lincoln superintendent of the Bradstreet mercantile agency.

70 1904: The Lincoln City Council amended the street car regulation ordinance by striking out of the law all speed limits and removing the requirement that cars keep at least 100 feet apart.

Action was taken at a meeting of the retail grocers' association against the policy of a cereal company in offering premium coupons in packages of food.

60 1914: The Nebraska Supreme Court affirmed a district court decision sustaining the validity of a state law providing for a double shift of firemen in the city of Lincoln.

A Lincoln banker said he had received complaints from some bankers in smaller communities to the effect that pro-German sympathizers were suspicious that money might be taken from all banks to make loans to the Allies.

50 1924: City Commissioner Duncan proposed that automatic traffic signals be installed only where arteries crossed and less emphasis be placed on prohibiting left-hand-turns.

Prof. H. B. Alexander told city fathers that Lincoln could learn from Europe "that open spaces in the center of a town are the most necessary single item" for a beautiful town.

40 1934: Union College student enrolment increased 83% over the previous year to a total of 400.

Wages for city park laborers were cut for the winter from $16.80 per week to $8.40 a week.

30 1944: Lincoln City Lines, a private firm then operating Lincoln's public transportation system, was ready to apply for State Railway Commission permission to abandon street railway lines and for authority to replace them with buses.

How Nebraska could harvest its almost 310 million bushel corn crop was a question with many young men either in the service or in war industries.

20 1954: Elementary students in Lincoln ranked above the national average in arithmetic, according to Dr. Steven Watkins, superintendent of schools.

Chairman Russell Brehm of the Lancaster County Board advised a Topeka, Kan., man he would have better luck in some other county getting a license for fortune telling.

10 1964: The 15th and O location would best serve Lincoln and Lancaster County as the new city-county building site, according to the City-County Planning Commission, but for the first time since it was proposed in 1961 the Commission had split, 6-3, in a report on the project. The site eventually chosen was 10th and J.

a year's supply the new way
Dahlberg has just developed a revolutionary new Ultra-Low Current amplifier that operates with extremely low current drain on the battery. Now, hearing aid users can get 1300 hours of battery life from the new Magic Ear 252I. Using a 675 Mercury battery the average life is increased four times as long as conventional aids in the same power class.
Users will appreciate the savings in time, money, and convenience.
With an average use of 16 hours per day one 6 pack of batteries in the Magic Ear 252I will last up to 1¼ years.
The ULC amplifier is the latest word in hearing instrument technology from Dahlberg. If it's a sound idea, you'll hear it from Dahlberg. Call for an appointment or come in for complete information or mail coupon to.

CB Radio Abuse Attacked by FTC

By The Associated Press

Some people call it the garbage radio band.

In Los Angeles and Chicago, arguments about its use have sparked shootings, knifings and other physical harassment, Federal Communications Commission (FCC) officials say.

Last year, its misuse apparently created a hoax that sent hundreds of persons searching in New Mexico for a small boy supposedly called Larry.

It's the citizens' band or CB radio, and many persons admit it has evolved into a jumbled morass of chitchat and is virtually impossible to police.

State police charge truck drivers use their CB radios to warn other truckers about police speed traps. The truckers also used the radios to communicate during shutdowns late last year and early this year.

"It's like taking a shower in public," says one Illinois state trooper. "They have us spotted wherever we are."

"When CB began it was serving its purpose but now it's become a complete abortion," said Richard Casey, executive director of a Chicago CB group. "It needs a complete revamping."

An estimated four million persons in the United States own CB radios.

Complaints have increased 10% every year since 1968 to about 20,000 in fiscal 1973, the FCC says.

"The abuses have grown so great that the actual usefulness of citizens' band radio has been threatened," says Vernon T. Wilson, assistant bureau chief fo the FCC enforcement division.

In 1958, the federal government established 23 channels at a designated frequency for CB radio to provide a communications system for small businesses and the general public.

Under FCC rules, stations are limited to a four-watt output and operators are required to have licenses.

Unlike the amateur radio frequencies used by ham operators, CB radio isn't supposed to be for hobbyists. Operators also are required to use call letters, hold conversations to five minutes

Most of the regulations are disregarded more often than kept. Many CB users have units of more than 100 watts that disrupt other CB channels and even television and radio reception, Wilson says.

Only an estimated 20% of CB owners have operators' licenses. Many persons also use pseudonyms such as "Vampire" rather than call letters, severely impeding identification of violators, Wilson says.

To curb abuses, the FCC recently has started eight-man regional CB investigation teams.

"The largest problem is that there is a total disregard for the rules by a large percentage of operators," says Jeff Anderson, supervisor of the FCC special enforcement team in Grand Island.

"A lot of people go to the local radio store, buy a set and just go on the air. They don't bother to get a license, they don't use call signs, they just start jabbering."

Some CB operators think the federal government should shoulder part of the blame for the abuses.

Some individuals suggest the FCC reduce its license fee from $25 to less than $5 to encourage more users to register and learn CB regulations.

They also suggest marketers of CB radio equipment require a license before selling a radio.

A few severe fines or FCC action also would thin the abusers' ranks, says Randy Knowles of Chicago, a CB radio operator since 1960.

Why not abandon CB radio as the FCC threatened in 1964? "It would destroy an important communications network," said Gerald Reese, executive director of REACT, a national organization from Chicago that monitors the CB emergency channel 9.

Each year, the organization of 20,000 members monitors more than a million distress calls to assist police and civil defense agencies with accidents and natural disasters, he said.

Premiere Week Ratings

'Rhoda' and 'Chico' Nos. 1 & 3

By Associated Press

Ratings for television's "premiere week" show that CBS' new Rhoda series topped the list, with NBC's new Chico and the Man arriving an unexpected third after CBS' All in the Family.

But there's bad news for ABC: Four of seven new series it aired the week of Sept. 9-15 landed in the bottom of the A.C. Nielsen ratings pile.

Three ABC losers — Kodiak, Texas Wheelers and Night Stalker — bowed on Friday night, a night ABC's Six Million Dollar Man proved a victim of ratings deflation. It came in 56th out of 59 entertainment shows rated that week.

The woe didn't ease Saturday when another new ABC entry, The New Land, was last. It was seen in 6.3 million homes, compared to the 19.1 million watching Rhoda, Monday, according to the estimates.

Six new series — three on CBS, three on NBC — were among the nation's 20 highest-rated programs in premiere week, in which 21 new series were offered by the three networks.

The top-rated CBS shows were Rhonda, the Paul Sand show and Manhunter. NBC's best-rated new shows were Chico and the Man, Little House on the Prairie and Lucas Tanner.

The last two NBC shows aired on Wednesday night, which would have been a good night for NBC had it not been for its new Petrocelli series, which was rated 49th of all shows that week.

There were some surprises in ratings for new programs and old reliables alike. CBS Gunsmoke, entering its 19th TV season without Miss Kitty, slumped to a tie for 29th place with NBC's new Police Woman. New series based on hit movies didn't do too well, either. NBC's Born Free came in 36th overall, while Planet of the Apes — preceded by much publicity and top ratings for TV showings of the movie versions — came in 37th.

ABC's Paper Moon was registered at 38 on the popularity scale.

The only early bloomer in ABC's new show crop was Harry O, which came in 25th overall. ABC's seventh entry, Get Christie Love, wasn't gotten by many. It was ranked at 41st in the competition.

NBC's new Rockford Files, which followed Chico and the Man Friday night, also did well, rated 21st overall. The network's new Movin' On Thursday series also registered nicely in 23rd place. Sierra, another new Thursday show on NBC, checked in at the 50 mark among all shows rated. CBS new Sons and Daughters on Wednesday was just three marks higher.

In addition to Gunsmoke, three other top-rated CBS shows of last season weren't up there when the week's initial returns were in. They were Kojak, Hawaii Five-O, and Apple's Way.

TV Audience

There are plenty of alternatives available, including the alternative or not watching TV at all.

Painful Reminder

I suspect that a lot of the "what will my child think?" kind of complaint is a false issue. The viewer is really disturbed about what he or she will think, about the painful reminders raised by a drama of the incisiveness of Born Innocent.

If all television were geared to the febrile sensibilities of a repressed child, what we'd have would be — well, it would be premiere week minus Born Innocent. And NBC, with one foot in the likes of Born Free and Little House on the Prairie, may not need too much more encouragement in that direction.

PRESIDENT WARREN G. HARDING AND WIFE FLORENCE

Q. Isn't Mrs. Gerald Ford the first divorcée in U.S. history to become the nation's First Lady? And if she isn't, who is? And what can you tell us about her?—Denise Richardson, Raleigh, N.C.

A. The first divorcée to become the nation's First Lady was Florence Kling Harding, the nagging, domineering wife of Warren G. Harding, 29th President of the U.S. Florence Mabel Kling was born in Marion, Ohio, in 1860, the daughter of Amos Kling, one of the wealthiest men in town. In 1880, "Flossie" Kling eloped with Henry de Wolfe, a local playboy. Six months later on Sept. 22, 1880, their son, Eugene Marshall, was born in Prospect, Ohio.

In 1886 Florence de Wolfe was granted a divorce, was permitted to use her maiden name. She turned over her son to her parents. Her ex-husband, Henry de Wolfe, became a thief and an alcoholic and died in 1894 at age 35. He was buried in an unmarked grave in Marion, Ohio.

In 1891, Florence Kling married Warren G. Harding. She was 30. He was 25. In 1921, when Harding was sworn in as President of the U.S., Florence "The Duchess" Harding became First Lady in an Administration which was to become stigmatized as one of the most corrupt in U.S. history. Harding died in San Francisco in August, 1923, whereupon his widow stupidly burned most of his files and papers. She died in November, 1924, the American public having learned little of her true background. History has recorded her a shrew, her husband as a good-natured, immoral, incompetent President, one of the nation's two worst.

Q. Can you tell us anything about Joe Albritton who has bought into The Washington Star-News?—Peter Lord, Arlington, Va.

A. Joe Lewis Albritton, 49, is a Texas lawyer and banker who runs the Houston Citizens Trust Company. He also owns a majority interest in Pierce Bros. Mortuaries of Los Angeles, is chairman of the board of Pierce National Life Insurance Co. of Los Angeles and is chairman of the executive committee of First International Bancshares of Dallas. He is a religious Baptist, a conservative Democrat. He was born in D'Lo, Miss , the sixth of seven Albritton children. He is married, has an 8-year-old son.

Q. What was the secret of Winston Churchill's greatness? Wasn't it a "gift for gab" rather than a brilliant intelligence?—Morton Edwards, Raleigh, N.C.

A. Churchill was primarily a great orator. As his physician Lord Moran wrote: "Without that feeling for words he would have made little enough in life, for in judgment, in skill, in administration, and the knowledge of human nature he does not at all excel." Churchill was frequently rude, ill-mannered and self-obsessed. He was always conservative and strongly anti-labor. In 1910 he called out the troops to break the strikes. Following World War II he was voted out of office by people who unlike himself had no desire to preserve and pay for the old British Empire. He was, however, a truly great wartime leader who all his life aspired to glory and leadership.

Q. Can you tell what's happened to actress Angie Dickinson who, I understand, knew the late President John F. Kennedy in his Hollywood salad days? —T. T., Washington, D.C.

ANGIE DICKINSON

A. Angie Dickinson, married to composer Burt Bacharach, recently finished starring in Big Bad Mama, the first film to exploit the public interest in the Patty Hearst affair.

Q. It is my understanding that when a President retires from his office, only he and his wife are entitled to Secret Service protection. How come then that President Nixon's two daughters were accorded Secret Service protection long after Nixon left the White House?—Martin Bernstein, Miami, Fla.

A. They weren't accorded Secret Service protection "long after" Nixon left the White House. President Ford as a courtesy to the Nixon girls and their parents asked the Secret Service to look after Tricia and Julie for a few days.

SALLY QUINN

Q. Is Sally Quinn of The Washington Post writing a book attacking CBS for firing her from the Morning News*?—Alice Walsh, Staten Island, N.Y.*

A. Sally Quinn is writing a book, We're Going To Make You a Star, which Simon & Schuster will publish early next year. Originally planned as an article for The Atlantic monthly, the manuscript was expanded into an 80,000-word book. Miss Quinn has received a $70,000 advance on the book and will receive 60 percent of the paperback sales. "I've named all the people I dealt with," she explains. "But I haven't tried to do anyone in. I think the corporate system comes out the villain."

Q. Wasn't Adolf Hitler able to take over the German army for his Nazis because most of the army generals were homosexuals, especially their leaders, Generals Von Blomberg and Von Fritsch?—Hans Dietric, Milwaukee, Wis.

A. Most of Germany's generals were not homosexual. The two most important in 1937, Von Blomberg and Von Fritsch, were opposed to Hitler's plans for a European war. Hitler thereupon decided to remove them. In Von Blomberg's case this was fairly easy because Von Blomberg had married "a girl of the night" and could easily be blackmailed on the basis of her morals. To engineer Von Fritsch's resignation was more difficult, because Von Fritsch was widely respected. Hitler, however, had him arraigned on a trumped-up homosexual charge in a stacked court presided over by Goering. The charges were completely false and never proven, but Von Fritsch resigned anyway, whereupon Hitler proceeded to take over the army and lead it into a disastrous war.

Q. Is there no end to the Watergate scandal even with Nixon's resignation? How much of the taxpayers' money has been spent on the Watergate mess, anyway?—Robert Blake, Cambridge, Mass.

A. It should be over by the end of the year. To date approximately $10 million of the taxpayers' money has been spent on the scandal.

Death haunts Van Gogh's last self-portrait.

He sacrificed his sanity and his life to see and to paint as no one ever had before

The World of Van Gogh

is yours to enjoy for 10 days free as a guest of the TIME-LIFE Library of Art

Van Gogh sought peace in painting this church at Auvers.

Many other artists, such as Gauguin, are represented.

He tried to express his feeling for man and nature by becoming a minister, but his fervor alarmed his superiors. He fell in love with two women of his own class and they fled from him as from a dangerous lunatic. The famous incident in which he cut off part of his ear and gave it to a prostitute was only one more attempt to give something of himself to anyone who would accept it.

This torrent of emotion—for which society had no use—turned Vincent Van Gogh into one of the greatest painters of all time. Never has a man poured so much pure responsiveness into his art. You can see in it everything from salvation to suicide. Sacrificing his sanity and his life to his work, he burned himself up in a blaze of perception... in a controlled riot of color that washed over modern art like a tidal wave of lyricism.

Love, for Van Gogh, was a means of seeing... of fusing himself with his subjects. Even the lavish way he squeezed a tube of paint directly onto his canvas symbolized a generosity that knew no limits. To the humblest subject—an old pair of boots, an empty chair—he brought the special light of his own fervor. As one critic put it, Van Gogh had the courage to look the sun squarely in the face and steal its radiance.

Beside almost 1,700 works of art, Van Gogh also bequeathed to the world—in 661 letters to his brother—one of the most moving autobiographies ever written. It shows this dauntless man trying to learn Greek in order to be allowed to preach to Dutch coal miners. You find him, his hatband stuck full of candles, painting the stars at midnight. You trace letter by letter, canvas by canvas, the collapse of his sanity and his subsequent suicide.

The World of Van Gogh is your introduction to the TIME-LIFE Library of Art... a magnificently illustrated series that shows you—and helps you appreciate—the most important achievements in 700 years of Western painting and sculpture. Focusing on a major artist such as Michelangelo, Rembrandt or Picasso, each volume is a splendid exhibition, a thoroughly reliable reference work, and a most enjoyable way of increasing your family's awareness and understanding of art.

160 illustrations, 72 in full color

Written by Robert Wallace, The World of Van Gogh is 9" x 12", 188 pages, with 160 illustrations, many of them full- or double-pages. To put Van Gogh into perspective, the book also offers profusely illustrated chapters on Gauguin and Toulouse-Lautrec, as well as examples of Cézanne, Degas, Renoir, Monet and others.

For all its luxurious features, the book costs only $6.95 plus shipping and handling. With it, you receive a specially written 3,500-word essay on art history . . . plus a large, full-color chronology chart listing 368 major Western artists.

Borrow The World of Van Gogh for 10 days free. If it doesn't make you want to own it, send it back. If you keep it, you pay just $6.95 . . . and we will then send you other volumes in the LIBRARY OF ART at the rate of one approximately every other month, on the same free examination. There is no obligation, so why not fill out and mail the order form now or write to TIME-LIFE BOOKS, Dept. 5401, Time & Life Bldg., Chicago, Illinois 60611.

In The Harvest, Van Gogh captures both the lushness and the deep tranquility of the southern French countryside.

Young David Kennerly—President Ford's Personal Photographer

by Lloyd Shearer

WASHINGTON, D C.

Blessed are those who know at age 16 what they want to do in life and then proceed with unswerving determination to do it.

David Hume Kennerly, 27, a tall, blue-eyed, brown-bearded photographer from Roseburg, Oreg., who shadows President Ford day after day, is a classic example of occupational fulfillment.

Chief White House photographer in the new Administration, Kennerly is a driving, dedicated, Pulitzer Prize-winning lens fanatic who says of himself, "All I want to do is to take pictures. I gave up a good job with Time magazine to go with President Ford because he promised me that I could record on film the day-to-day activities of a U.S. President.

"Now that's a unique opportunity," Kennerly suggests, "for any photographer. It calls for persevérance and hard work on my part and an open and candid Administration on his. Before I signed on with President Ford, Time magazine assigned me to travel with him, to stay with him from the moment he was confirmed as Vice President. So I had a long breaking-in period with him—10 months in which I photographed him for the cover of Time three times—and I learned that he's a man of his word. If he says he's going to make himself available, he's going to make himself available.

Will 'play it quiet'

"Insofar as I'm concerned," Kennerly continues, "I'm going to play it as quiet and unobtrusive and diplomatic as I know how to. Generally I shoot with Nikons, but now I'm shooting with Leicas. They're more quiet cameras. You can click the shutters, and they're practically noiseless. The other day the President came out of his Oval Office and said, 'Dave, I'd like you to take a picture of my accountant.' I smiled. 'Mr. President,' I said, 'I've already done it.' I'd been in the room, sort of blending into the woodwork without his being aware of me,and I'd clicked off a couple of shots."

The President seems to treat Kennerly like a son, frequently kidding with him, and on occasion even asking his opinion. One Presidential intimate suggests that "there's a good chemistry between the two of them. Dave was the only camera guy who traveled on every single trip with Ford when he was Vice President. I guess they logged 90,000 miles together. That sort of companionship breeds either friendship or repulsion. Ford had the opportunity to dump Dave when he became President. Instead he made him chief White House photographer, which shows you how he feels about the guy."

Kennerly maintains that "Ford is a pleasure to travel with, because he's a warm, friendly man by nature, and he has a ready sense of humor. For example, he says to me about my skiing ability, 'Kennerly, you're 10 percent talent and 90 percent intestinal fortitude.' There's nothing imperious about him. And best of all, for me, he's accessible.

Bearded Presidential photographer David Kennerly with his boss, whom he describes as "a warm, friendly man by nature, with a ready sense of humor."

A whisper and a grin

"A few weeks ago when the regular White House photographers, the guys who cover the White House beat, marched into his office to take some shots, I noticed that the President had some papers on his desk right side up. I went over and sort of whispered, 'Mr. President, don't you want to turn those papers face down? They'll show up pretty easily.' He broke into a big grin. 'I told you,' he said, 'this is going to be an open Administration.' "

The son of a salesman, David Hume Kennerly was born in Roseburg, Oreg., on March 9, 1947. He attended West Linn High School where he broke in as a photographer in his sophomore year with a borrowed Speed Graphic. "All I've ever wanted to do," he says, "was to become a photo journalist. I took all the photos for our high school yearbook, and the only formal education I ever had in photography was one class in my junior year in high school. I just learned by doing. I used to sell photos to the local Oregon papers for $1.50 each, and when I went to Portland State College, I discovered after a year that as regards photography, there wasn't too much they could teach me."

So Kennerly left and signed on as a staff photographer with The Oregon Journal for $90 a week. At 18 he was the youngest staff photographer the Journal had ever hired. He was then called up by the National Guard and assigned two duty stints, one at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., the other at Ft. Benjamin Harrison in Indiana.

"When I got out," he recalls, "I was 19. I called the Associated Press in New York and begged for a chance to just show them my pictures. I'd never been to New York before, and when I got there it didn't do me much good. I said I'd work anywhere, do anything, but it was one of those 'don't-call-me, we'll-call-you' routines. I went back, took a job with The Oregonian, and in the summer of 1966 I got trapped in a raging forest fire. Luckily I got some great pictures, and on the basis of that I was hired by UPI [United Press International] and sent to Los Angeles."

'Ball of fire'

Carlos Schiebeck, in charge of the UPI photo bureau in Los Angeles, remembers Kennerly well. "He was a ball of fire," Schiebeck says. "One helluva photographer, well-liked, aggressive, ambitious, fearless. I think he'd just been divorced and was burying himself in work. He covered Bobby Kennedy, Bobby's campaign, the assassination, then got sent to New York and Washington. I believe—at 23—he was the youngest kid to cover the White House. But then he got tired of the political scene and asked to be sent to Vietnam.

"David was head of our picture bureau there," Schiebeck continues "and won a Pulitzer Prize in '72 for feature photography. He covered Vietnam, Cambodia, the India-Pakistan war. This kid will go anywhere, and he can do pretty nearly anything with a camera."

Kennerly says that like most young photo journalists his long-term goal was to achieve a staff position on Life magazine. "When I was in Saigon," he explains, "Life finally offered me a contract, starting in November, 1972. I quickly accepted. A month-and-a-half later Life folded."

But Kennerly was transferred to Time magazine, worked out of Hong Kong, went to China with the Prime Minister of Japan, then moved on to Hanoi where he covered the final release of U.S. prisoners of war.

New assignment

After duty in Mozambique and Paris, Time brought him back to the States and assigned him to cover then Vice President Gerald Ford.

On the night he was sworn into the Presidency, Ford asked Kennerly to his house in Alexandria, Va. After the other guests had departed, David and the new President sat in the President's bedroom and discussed the job as chief White House photographer. Kennerly in his 280 SL Mercedes drove home to the six-room house he rents in Georgetown.

The next morning, after discussing the personnel situation with Gen. Alexander Haig, the President phoned David Kennerly at his Time magazine office.

For $32,000 a year, considerably less than he was earning at Time, David Kennerly accepted the job on the assurance, of course, that he could still wear his beard and his blue jeans while shooting in the White House.

For $100 a week, the standard pay for most Nader staffers, Fay Mauro shepherds about 500 tourists a week through the Center, explaining to them how they can spend their time instead of spending their money She oversees a small room staffed by volunteers who offer the tourists a great variety of pamphlets and a weekly calendar that lists "events of special interest . . . tours and visits recommended . . . Congressional hearings of special interest."

Mrs. Mauro says that "we don't expect to appeal to a large percentage of tourists to begin with, because many of them are first-time visitors who want to see all the usual tourist sights But we do think that as we get better known, many people who have been to Washington before will want to do a little bit more than just look, especially if they're with their children

Recent important events

"We think that since this has been such an historical period tourists will want to become a part of it The truth is that this whole Watergate mess has proven a crash course in government for a lot of people. They really are more interested in finding out what happens here.

"We hope many of the people who come to Washington will want to become more involved with their government, that while they're here they will let their representatives know what they expect of them, not just elect them and let them go on their own for the next two, four or six years"

When tourists come into the Visitors Center, which is virtually hidden on the corner of 15th and M Streets, adjacent to the Riggs Bank, they wander around, generally collect the free pamphlets

Nader outside his "tourist bureau," only five blocks from the White House.

Fay Mauro, the Center's director, tells two young visitors how to find their way around the capital.

The Center will help students with term papers, and will send an events calendar to interested citizens.

"The first thing I do," says Fay Mauro, "is to approach them and ask if they have any particular area of interest. A lot of them say, 'No We're just wandering around You tell us what would be interesting.'

"So I ask them to look over on our bulletin board and get an idea of the sort of events and happenings which are going on And then I say something like, 'Is it of interest to you that Mr. Simon, the Secretary of the Treasury, will be speaking to the House Foreign Affairs Committee this afternoon?'

"And they say, 'Yeah, he was the energy czar, the guy who looks like Popeye. I really want to hear what he has to say.' "

"First," Mrs. Mauro points out, "we try to get tourists to Capitol Hill to see how the laws are made and to meet their Congressmen. And we actually make phone calls and appointments for them After that we suggest the various hearings."

Other services

The Center also presents documentary movies and will send any tourist its biweekly calendar of Washington events for a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It will also answer student requests for information on government and public issues in connection with high school and college term papers.

Incredibly enough, the District of Columbia has no tourist department. The job of dispensing tourist information is delegated to the Washington area Convention and Visitors Bureau, a nonprofit organization with 17 staff members, which promotes tourism and recruits conventions. Congress provides nearly 40 percent of its funding, with the remainder of its budget taken care of by area business firms.

John Phillips, its public relations director, says "we usually cater to the Mom and Pop type of crowd and the all-American families. Our job is to increase tourism and conventions. We don't concentrate on sending tourists to Capitol Hill the way PCVC does."

The type of tourists attracted to the Public Citizen Visitors Center have surprised Nader and his staffers.

Attracts a cross-section

"When we opened the Center," says Mike Horrocks, "I thought our tourists would be the young activists or the older intelligentsia. Instead, what we're getting is a cross-section of America, people from everywhere. And our best advertising is word-of-mouth."

When asked if any of the tourists were frightened by Ralph Nader's reputation as a consumer zealot, director Horrocks, who was in the Navy for 30 years, laughed.

"Let me tell you about Ralph," he said."He's about as radical as apple pie. He is one of the squarest guys I know. He is one of the few people who buckles his seat belt every time he gets in a car. He eats proper foods. I've never heard him use a profane word. He is a straight, right-down-the-middle guy, or I wouldn't be working for him."

The PCVC is funded by Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Organization but has a money box open for offerings from grateful tourists.

How grateful they are depends to a large extent upon how much they value information and awareness.

The sad truth is that the American people are poorly informed about their government at all levels At best, most of their public interest is limited to self-centered contacts with government services. Harsh words, perhaps, but not according to political pollster, Louis Harris.

A pollster's testimony

Testifying on public attitudes before Sen. Edmund Muskie's (D., Maine) Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations last winter, pollster Harris noted: "By their own admission, a majority of the people are not well-informed about what is going on in government or politics at the federal, state or local levels. Although 89 percent correctly can identify their own state's governor, no more than 59 percent can name one U.S. Senator from their state, only 36 percent can name both Senators, and 46 percent really know who their Congressman is. Substantive knowledge about the details of legislation or foreign policy might be even lower than those levels.

"Yet," in the same breath, Harris anxiously explains, "for all of this lack of specific information, a striking finding of this study is that the American people are far from apathetic, uninterested in the public affairs of their country or uninvolved. It is only at their peril that public officials can assume an apathetic public, or one which will not respond."

That's just what Ralph Nader's Public Citizen Visitors Center seeks to bring into existence—a more responsive, interested citizenry.

Consumer activist Ralph Nader talks with tourists at his Public Citizen Visitors Center in Washington. The Center's staff urges tourists to see how their government works in addition to looking at monuments

Washington's New Tourist Attraction

by Charles Peterson

WASHINGTON, D C.

This capital city not only boasts a new federal Administration this year—but a new and unusual tourist attraction, the Public Citizen Visitors Center (PCVC), brainchild of consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

Opened this past May at 1200 15th St. N.W. (phone 202-659-9053), the Center is housed in a modest storefront five blocks from the White House.

Its major purpose is "to tell people that this is your government and we want to show you how it works."

As a result, three paid staffers and numerous volunteers in the Visitors Center explain to tourists that there is far more to Washington, D.C., than the White House, the Washington Monument, the Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials—there is a government of people, of Representatives and Senators and other officials, and that these individuals can be seen in action.

"Call on your Congressman. Visit your Senator. Watch the various committees at work." This is what the staffers urge. Then they politely explain to the tourists where, when, and how to achieve these meaningful experiences.

Do it better

The Visitors Center, with a budget of $35,000, came into existence because Ralph Nader believed that the District of Columbia's $750 million tourist industry is "very mechanical and unimaginative," that while tourists find the monuments and landmarks awesome, they also find the capital "cold and out of reach. It does not invite. It offers itself to be seen uncritically and superficially."

The more Nader thought of the 19 million tourists who pour into the capital each year, many of them wandering about and gawking aimlessly, the more he decided that what Washington needed was a tourist policy which would increase citizen awareness and afford tourists a diversity of choices.

"I thought," he says, "that if they were given daily information about Congressional or regulatory agency hearings dealing with subjects close to their occupations or interests back home, they might wish to avoid the usual plastic, packaged tours with the memorized guides; that they might care to strike out on their own."

Last January, Nader asked Mike Horrocks, 56, a retired Naval officer and Nader special assistant, to "get the tourist project rolling."

Says Horrocks: "Ralph said to me, 'I don't care how much you spend on this place just so long as it's not over $500 a month,' which is like saying, 'I want you to fly from here to San Francisco but don't spend more than $60 on the trip.'

"By luck," Horrocks continues, "I found this storefront with one office on the first floor and another on the third; so the owners—the American Nursing Home Association, not among Ralph's heartiest supporters—let us have it for $560 a month."

The director

The director of the Public Citizen Visitors Center is Fay Mauro, 29, a tall, sweetly intelligent, hazel-eyed young woman from Indianapolis who started "my college career at Catholic University in 1963 and finished at the University of Vermont in 1973. I spent a lot of my time," she explains, "putting my husband through graduate school."

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Bad Girls

According to a new study by the Institute for Juvenile Research, delinquency among U.S. teen-aged girls in recent years has zoomed.

It has now reached the point where girls fight, shoplift, cheat and take drugs almost as frequently as adolescent boys.

"Our findings," says Patricia Miller, director of the study, "appear to refute some stereotypes about girls and indicate a need for a radical adjustment in law-enforcement thinking about who is involved in delinquency. Strong-arming has increased among teen-aged girls. So have carrying a weapon and gang fights.

The study involved 3000 teenagers in Illinois, and its findings agree generally with statistics in the FBI crime reports.

Keys to Success

If you're a college or high-school dropout looking for a job, don't panic. Personnel officers may soon shelve experience and education as the traditional hiring criteria.

Race, age, sex, education and previous experience are "completely irrelevant," in determining a job applicant's potential success; so declare psychologists Herbert and Jeanne Greenberg.

Factors determining an employee's success, say the psychologists, include ego-drive, empathy, growth-potential, leadership, decision-making ability, and the ability to work with details.

In a study for the Marketing Survey and Research Company of Princeton, N.J., Herbert and Jeanne Greenberg analyzed traditional job criteria.

Herewith a few of their findings:

SEX: "They [women] are at least as reliable, somewhat less complacent, and somewhat more sociable. Women are a bit more impulsive than men, and certainly do not trail men in their energy level or willingness to work."

AGE: "Fundamentally the older and younger groups vary little, but the older group is statistically more responsible, better at delegating, and far better at detail than their younger competitors."

EXPERIENCE AND EDUCATION: "Simply put, the inexperienced applicant is just as likely to be successful as his experienced competitor, and the high school dropout is just as likely to be an effective salesman as the man or woman with several college degrees."

The Greenbergs conclude that "a reexamination, reappraisal, and modification of outmoded, ineffective hiring practices is needed," pointing out that "men and women, black and white, old and young, with or without experience, and regardless of education, can be top producers for themselves and for their employers."

Back to the Dorms

The soaring costs of off-campus living are forcing students to return to college dorms this fall.

Directors of student housing from all over the country report that more students will be living on campus this year than at any time in the past five years.

The reason, of course, is that old devil—inflation, which has raised the price of off-campus rents, food, and utilities sky-high. In contrast, campus prices are a bargain.

Another reason for the trend is that in many colleges the rules for dormitory living have been relaxed, permitting in many ways the personal freedom which made off-campus living attractive to so many students in the first place.

ANGELA: SPAIN'S FIRST WOMAN BULLFIGHTER

Female Matadors

Male chauvinism has been gored in Spain.

Last month, following a three-year court battle, Angela Hernandez, a 27-year-old blonde, triumphed over government forces, thus giving all Spanish women the opportunity to become matadors.

On hearing the news, Ms. Hernandez, who was supported by Spain's great bullfighter, El Cordobes, declared: "I am overjoyed. I hope there will be hundreds of women bullfighters within a short time. It's an art requiring both grace and courage and therefore superbly suited for modern women."

Nation's Police Honored

A Cop Who Helps Kids Gets Top Award

by John G. Rogers

ST. PAUL, MINN

Burly, 48-year-old Howard G. Skillings is a St. Paul police officer who has chased killers and rapists, robbers and burglars, and has an excellent batting average for bringing them in. That's his job. But the chase that he likes best is done on his own time—trying to nail down facilities and money to improve the lives of disadvantaged boys and girls by taking them on outings and arranging recreation places where they can meet for games and rapping.

"My own father took off when I was 5 years old," says Skillings, "leaving my mother with me and nine brothers and sisters. It was tough. I was never able to finish high school. We all had to work and even then sometimes there wasn't enough food to go around. I understand the problem of broken-home kids in trouble because I've been there myself. I know how easy it can be to take a wrong turn in life and find yourself stuck for good with the consequences. I do what I can to help these kids. They have to know that somebody cares."

Honors pour in

Skillings, who has received many awards and honors for his work, including several from the Dispatch-Pioneer Press, the city's big newspaper publisher, is about to receive another one. For his superior record as a policeman and his humanitarian activities, he has been chosen as recipient of the ninth annual Police Service Award conferred by PARADE and the International Association of Chiefs of Police. His award —like 10 others to honorable-mention officers—is a symbolic one designed to salute all of the nation's nearly 500,000 law officers on whose dedication orderly society depends. Plaques will be presented this Tuesday at the IACP convention in Washington, D.C.

This year's selection of Skillings and his 10 colleagues was a repetition of previous years—an agonizing problem for the judges. Police chiefs from the entire country poured in a record number of nominations, all of very deserving officers. Their dossiers outlined in sharp detail the vast variety of police work, duty, risk and responsibility. Some were forced to look down the barrel of a shotgun held by a jittery, hopped-up robber. Some delivered babies—Skillings was one of these and he says it's a lot more satisfactory than arresting somebody. Some organized sports teams in ghettos. Some lectured in schools. Some risked their lives to save persons from drowning. And many simply went on humdrum patrol, day in and day out, showing their fellow citizens that authority was available when needed.

About Skillings, St. Paul Police Chief Richard H. Rowan says: "He's something like your old-fashioned beat cop.

Top cop Howard Skillings says working with youngsters "makes me feel good"

Sure, he's not on foot, he's in a patrol car, but he has the eye of an eagle and he almost literally knows everything and everybody in his area. He never works routinely. He has a deep interest in every case and is sharply observant. Once he broke a major burglary simply by noticing that a garage door was ajar."

Skillings, 20 years a cop, father of two sons, married to a petite, pretty brunette whom he adores, picks up the story with his typical humor. "A safe had been stolen from a medical clinic. I had a hunch that a young fellow named Mickey might have been in on the job. You see, I make it my business to try to know about anybody in my area who might turn out to be a 'customer' of mine. So I drove through this neighborhood and saw this garage door slightly open. Anytime I went by there in the past it was closed. I parked the car, peeked into the garage and, what do you know, there's old Mickey sound asleep on top of the stolen safe. I had pictures taken of him dozing there. He argued later that I had picked him up and put him on the safe while he was groggy. But I didn't—he made his own 'bed' and I caught him in it."

At the "clubhouse": Skillings visits neighborhood kids he helped set up in an old two-car garage. Many, from fatherless homes, use it as a substitute home.

Hunts for house

Skillings is a modest man. Ask him why he spends so much time helping kids and he actually shows embarrassment and tells you, "I don't know why except that it makes me feel good."

Recently, Skillings and one of his youth groups were kicked out of their clubhouse for lack of money. Skillings then scoured the area and found an available two-car garage, reachable through an alley. The kids—they range in age from 7 to 20, the majority from fatherless homes—use it as sort of a substitute home, the younger ones during the day, the older ones later on. Skillings imposes only two rules. The kids have to tend the grounds of the owner and keep them in good condition. And there will be no smoking in the old frame structure.

PARADE accompanied the officer recently when he drove up the alley to the garage for an inspection visit. It was remindful of an old "Our Gang" movie. Boys and girls in various garb—all well-worn and sort of patchwork—swarmed out of the garage and surrounded Skillings' squad car. All were cheerful and pleased by his sudden arrival.

Although the 200-pound officer has encountered some pretty tough people in his work, he has fired his service revolver only once. "It was during a high-speed stolen car chase," he recalls. "I was hoping to hit a tire. Just as I fired, two boys on the sidewalk dropped to the ground. I was terrified. I thought my bullet might have bounced off and hit one of the kids. Turned out it had not but I was so scared I don't believe I'd ever use my gun again. I've had people immobilized with a shotgun but once when I had two robbers in that situation until help arrived, one of them asked. "Would you have shot us?" I told him no. He replied, "Now you tell us."

Once shined shoes

Skillings' pathway from a deprived boy to a place of honor in his profession and community took many turns. Forced out of school by poverty, he was a shoeshine boy, a newspaper deliverer and a machinist. Subsequently he earned his high school equivalency certificate.

Skillings frequently receives phone calls or visits at his home by people in trouble. "That's when my problem comes into play," he says. "I can't say no to anybody who needs help."

The "1974 Police Officer of the Year" is a prime example of a concept that not everyone appreciates—police spend more time helping people than arresting them.

Tall Girls fashions fit you better 7 ways!

Let's face it. If you're 5'7" or over, you're taller than the average girl. And misses' sizes were not meant for you. Not only wouldn't you look right in misses' sizes, but you wouldn't feel right either! The sleeve length would be uncomfortably short. The shoulder seams would bind. And the bodice would be too snug.

TALL GIRLS fashions, on the other hand, are designed to fit your taller-than-average figure...to let you move in comfort...to give you a look that's unforgettable! To make doubly sure you get a perfectly proportioned fit, there are two lengths to choose from: TALL-BE-TWEEN LENGTH for girls from 5'7" to 5'10", and TALL LENGTH for girls 5'10" or taller.

Shop for beautiful TALL GIRLS fashions in the comfort of your own home...from the TALL GIRLS Catalog. This 80-page catalog is yours free...and it's just brimming with a lighthearted collection of clothes to live in and love...dresses, coats, jeans, pant suits, loungewear. Smart shoes, too, in sizes 9-14, AAAA to E. There's a full money-back guarantee on everything you buy from TALL GIRLS...and you may charge your purchases!

The 10 Honorable Mentions And Their Achievements

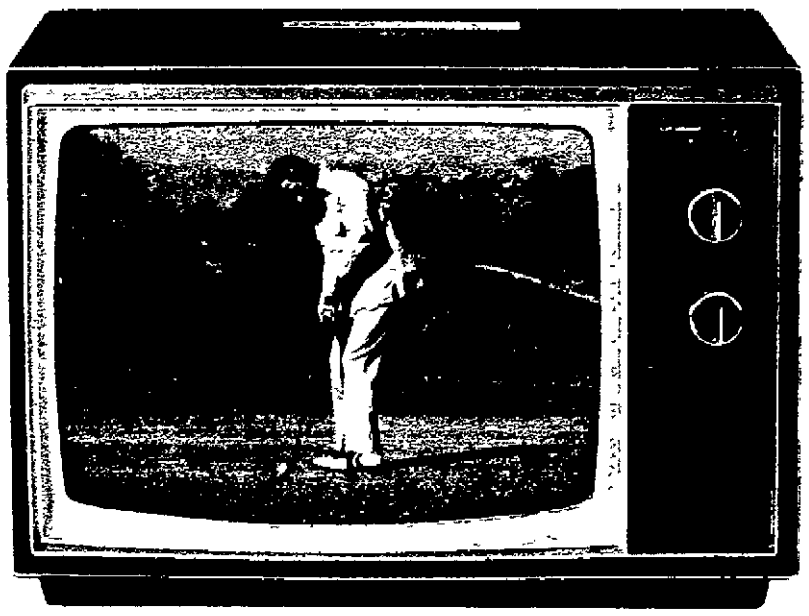

Officer Moses Webb, Menlo Park, Calif.
A community relations officer, Webb found the key to halting juvenile vandalism of houses repossessed by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration—which had been costing $100,000 a year. He got the VA and FHA to hire 10 neighborhood youths at $50 a week as junior housing inspectors. They quickly identified vandals, got them to refrain, talked to parents. Result: vandalism is down 90 percent and dozens of other cities have asked Menlo Park for Webb's formula.

Sgt. Donald C. Steinman, Bridgeton, Mo.
Answering an alarm from a stereo shop where a holdup was in progress, Steinman confronted two robbers, one with a shotgun. Steinman fired immediately, forcing the gunman to drop his weapon. While a customer held the gun on the man, Steinman chased the other culprit into a parking lot and captured him The Missouri Police Chiefs Association named him its Officer of the Year.

Patrolman Jack Fleetwood, Wilmington, Del.
Assigned to the Housing Authority Protective Services, Fleetwood, who is white, received a citation from a committee of blacks for "outstanding and dedicated" service. His superior calls him a "one-man community relations team" for racial harmony. At Christmas he distributes toys and candy to 500 children at his own expense.

Detective Deloy K. White, Ogden, Utah.
This officer played the lead in solving one of the year's most vicious crimes. Two men entered a record shop and during a $24,000 robbery tortured five hostages for 2½ hours, killing three of them, and raping an 18-year-old girl. One hostage had a ballpoint pen driven into his ear, and all were forced to drink caustic fluid. White's diligent detective work helped bring about the arrest of the suspects within 24 hours.

Officer Charles Simmons, Orlando, Fla.
A Vietnam vet, Simmons, according to his chief, has a knack for being "where crime is happening." He's been shot at, severely beaten by a gang of rioters, has broken up three auto-theft rings, and recovered more than $500,000 worth of stolen cars. Most recently, he's been active in community relations, and has organized the Police Explorers, a group of 60 young people helping neighborhood projects.

Officer Kevin P. Reilly, Nassau County, N.Y.
With two fellow officers, Reilly entered a dress shop being robbed by an armed man. The gunman grabbed two women hostages, threatening to kill them unless the police withdrew. They did so, but Reilly managed to position himself so he could move in quickly. In a moment he saw his chance, and dove between the robber and the hostages. Then he managed to deflect the robber's shotgun and shoot him dead.

Detective Armando De Blassis, Yonkers, N.Y.
Working with police from neighboring New York City, De Blassis solved the murder of a woman whose dismembered body was found near the city line. On a hunch, he began asking delivery workers about missing women in the area, and eventually found clues leading to the dead woman's husband, who was arrested.

Sgt. Clarence Erickson, Chicago.
As director of special activities for the Chicago police, Erickson handles everything from graduations to funerals. Every large department needs a cop of his versatility. One of his responsibilities is the sad task of notifying the family when an officer is killed or injured. He also sees to it that a police widow is informed of her full pension rights, and that she gets $1,000 for funeral costs, donated by the "100 Club," a group of citizens.

Detective Eileen Lindstrom, Superior, Wis.
Miss Lindstrom, a specialist in crime prevention, has been a police officer for 24 years. In a city of 33,000, most of her work deals with women and girls, but she also finds that troubled young boys are receptive to a woman officer. She believes that if young offenders are dealt with in a kindly manner, they won't return as police problems when they're adults.

Trooper Cornel B. Plebani, New Jersey State Police.
Trooper Plebani was first on the scene of a pile-up on the fog-shrouded New Jersey Turnpike in which nine were killed and 42 injured. Ignoring his own safety, he crawled into the blazing tangle of trucks and cars, hauling out victims. At one point a burning trailer's fuel supply exploded, throwing him to the side of the road, but he returned, his uniform singed and torn. Although he was at the point of collapse from exhaustion, he kept on working until other rescuers arrived, and then he helped direct their operations from his squad car.

How You Can Make a Killing in Coins...

That May Be Slipping Through Your Fingers Every Day!

Stop giving away valuable pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters!

Do you know what the coins in your pocket or purse are really worth?

Is it worth a few minutes of your time each day to find out, if it can mean earning enough extra cash to buy a few of the luxuries in life before you are too old to enjoy them? Then continue to read and find out how profitable your coins can be.

In case you missed the news. Collecting is the craze now in the U.S.

More than at any other time people are collecting everything. From oil paintings to old magazines. From records to plates. With coins heading the list as the most popular and profitable item. Yes. The very coins you spend and receive every day are being turned into fortunes.

Now you can discover how to cash in on this bonanza by taking advantage of the collector's demand for your find.

Hit the jackpot once and you can make more money than you would be able to earn in a week's time at your present job.

Don't think for one minute it can't happen to you. It can happen to anyone.

For example, a taxi driver who knew nothing about coins turned a penny into $55 profit by accident. Now he examines carefully every coin he receives in fares.

Or, for just a minute imagine yourself as one of the lucky owners of a 1973 dime worth an incredible $35 (a slight error actually made the dime increase in value almost overnight).

It's so easy to make extra money this way, anyone can do it. There are literally thousands of collectors with plenty of cash waiting to buy your find... at a big profit to you.

People just like you are making a killing in coins every day — with one important exception... they know what to look for.

It's hard to believe but it's true. And so ridiculously simple.

To start making money in coins you don't have to do anything different than you are doing right now. There is no investment to make. You can train yourself to be a coin expert... and learn to recognize valuable coins. When you know what to look for — you profit. When you don't — you will spend the coin and someone else will make the killing.

Just think of the money that may be slipping through your fingers each year because you are not in the habit of watching your coins. There is nothing to lose... and the money you can make is unlimited.

If you happen to discover one of the rarest of coins (17,000 were originally distributed) you would make $28,000.

Or, you could make $1,000 profit if you discovered one of the 7 million coins worth 100 to 1000 times their face value.

Even if you don't discover one of these extremely valuable coins, it is possible for you to add a coin of value to your pot-of-gold almost every day. A penny worth $2... a dime worth $7... or a quarter worth $16 change hands constantly just waiting to be discovered. Not a bad reward for doing nothing more than going through your coins daily.

The trick is to know what you are looking for. A slight difference — like a special marking — can make two identical coins vary considerably in value... as much as $1,000 in fact.

"Too fantastic to be true," my wife and I were told. But we discovered coins to be the safest way to make money. Just a few minutes a day is all it takes for you to start cashing in on this bonanza.

Have you spent a coin today worth more than its face value? By training yourself to watch for valuable coins you can easily double or triple your money.

You could easily have a coin worth a lot of money only to pass it on to someone else for no more than face value.

I guarantee this will never happen to you if you have a copy of the book that tells you how to make money in coins.

The book is entitled "How to Make a Killing in Coins." Everything you need to know to make a killing is included in this book. It is written so anyone can understand. And profit.

Every U.S. coin and its present value is included — along with the names and addresses of several hundred collectors who will buy your coins at the current market value. The tips, advice and guidance you will receive make this book a gold mine.

Even though it can mean thousands of dollars to you, the book is priced at only $4.95. It will really open your eyes to this incredibly simple way of making money. For example.

- — You will discover how to avoid wasting your time. Go after the coins that guarantee you the greatest return.
- — You will discover what coins are valuable and what profits you can expect.
- — You will discover which coins you should save for future sale... to earn the most profit.
- — You will learn how to avoid the one mistake almost everyone makes that will cause valuable coins to be almost worthless.

You will be amazed at how fast your new found knowledge will start making money for you. Soon you will be the envy of your relatives and friends. They will be coming to you for advice on which coins you think are valuable enough to keep.

One word of caution. When you start saving and selling coins your friends may ask why you bother "that penny is only worth 10¢ or that dime just 25¢" they might say. Pay no attention to them. In one year's time if you managed to acquire $500 face value in valuable coins just think of the profits you would have.

But make no mistake — without a book like this you don't stand a chance.

You Can't Lose

You can make a killing in coins with absolutely no risk. The coins you discover will never be worth less than their actual face value. The same is true of the book, "How to Make a Killing in Coins." There is absolutely no risk. If you don't like the book when it arrives, return it for an immediate refund. Or, keep it and use it for a full year. If you are not convinced you have discovered the easiest, safest way to make money, return the book. You still get your $4.95 back.

Three Reports — FREE

The value of coins can go up overnight (remember the 1973 dime). To guarantee you will make the most money on each coin, a special monthly report entitled the "How to News" has been prepared to keep you current and up to date. If you order the book right now, you will receive free, a three month trial subscription.

Make a Killing Now

The boom in coins is on. More and more people are discovering the fantastic profits to be made. The time to start is now. Don't wait another minute. BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

THE ONASSIS TAPES—AN EYE-OPENER

OPEN-EYED ONASSIS

Last month, while Jackie and her two children were living it up on safari in Kenya, her multimillionaire husband, Aristotle Onassis, was strolling around Paris, his eyes taped open.

He was a strange sight to behold. And the paparazzi who shadow him, almost as eagerly as they do Jackie, recorded his condition, focusing on the Band-Aids applied over his eyebrows and extending to his eyelids.

Apparently the muscles controlling the Onassis eyelids are not sufficiently strong to hold them open. Without the assistance of Band-Aids, the eyelids drop shut.

How serious a condition this is, only Onassis and his doctors know. Naturally enough they refuse to discuss the condition with the press.

Neurologists to whom the Onassis photos have been shown, suggest the prognosis of myasthenia gravis, a chronic debilitating disease associated with wasting of muscles. Others say it is probably a simple case of myatonia, lack of muscle tone or strength and that in time, Onassis will regain the full use of his eyelids.

Myatonia is mostly a concomitant of old age, which raises the question of how old Aristotle Socrates Onassis really is. It is well-known that Jackie Onassis was 45 this past July 28th, but who knows what birthday Onassis will reach on Jan. 15th next?

According to the Argentine passport issued Onassis in Buenos Aires, it reportedly carries his birthdate as Jan. 15, 1901. Onassis insists, however, that he was born in 1906 in Smyrna, Turkey, and sent to Buenos Aires in 1923 when he was only 16. Reportedly, in order to get a job with the United River Plate Telephone Company as a switchboard operator, he had to give his age as 21. Hence the difference between his passport age of 73 and his true age of 68.

Whatever his age, and despite his taped-up eyelids which he describes as "a bloody nuisance," Onassis claims to be in excellent health. He was especially happy to have Constantine Caramanlis return to Athens as Prime Minister of Greece. Caramanlis is not only an old friend, but it was he who helped Onassis put together the Olympic Airways deal, and Onassis reportedly is much happier with Caramanlis in power than he was with the Greek military junta.

FORD AND ROCKEFELLER: UNBEATABLE TEAM?

THE POLITICAL SCENE Who can beat the incumbent Republican team of Ford and Rockefeller in 1976? Ted Kennedy, Gene McCarthy, Fritz Mondale, George McGovern, George Wallace, Scoop Jackson or Fred Harris, all of whom will probably enter the New Hampshire primary when the time comes?

How many of the nation's voters after the scarring, two-year trauma of the Nixon Administration, will want to change the nation's leadership in 1976?

Unless Ford goofs badly, as Herbert Hoover did by edging the American people into the worst depression in the nation's history, chances are excellent that like Calvin Coolidge, Ford will rescue the Republican party from public blame for the widespread scandal of a previous Administration, and win election handily.

Last month when Ford assumed the Presidency he probably doomed the last hope Ronald Reagan had of running for that office.

Reagan, 63, who with no political background of any sort, rose from Warner Brothers and TV to become governor of the nation's largest state, felt until Nixon's resignation that he stood some chance of participating in the 1976 Presidential sweepstakes.

Now, he surely realizes that Gerald Ford as an incumbent has his party's nomination if he wants it.

At 69, Reagan will probably be too old to run in 1980. He has about 100 days left in office as governor, and whatever happens to him politically, history will record him as the first film star to become governor of California.

EXECUTIVE PAY Executives are earning more money than ever.

A survey taken by Wytmar & Co. reveals that the average salary of chief executives last year was up 11.5 percent over 1972. A chief executive, for example, whose company grossed $5 billion or more, earned $481,000 dollars a year in salary, bonuses, deferred compensation, and director's fees.

Business Week, lists the following five as the top-paid U.S. executives of 1973: Phillip B. Hofmann of Johnson & Johnson, $978,000; Richard C. Gerstenberg of General Motors, $938,000; Henry Ford II and Lee A. Iacocca of Ford, both $878,746, and Edward N. Cole of General Motors, $846,500.

LEGAL AID FOR HALDEMAN Z. Wayne Griffin, 67, a veteran Hollywood character who used to be the musical director of the Pasadena Playhouse, a radio writer, a talent agent, and finally a film producer, has solicited 1200 business executives to contribute to a legal defense fund for Harry R. "Bob" Haldeman, chief of staff in Nixon's Watergated Administration.

Griffin claims to be an old family friend of the Haldemans who supported Nixon from 1956 onward.

Although the Haldeman family is reputedly a wealthy one—air-conditioning and at one time Chrysler-car-agency people—it is estimated that to defend Haldeman on charges of obstructing justice in the Watergate scandal will cost between $300,000 and $500,000.

In his letter of solicitation, retired producer Griffin writes: "...Bob's ultimate innocence will have to be determined by the judicial process. In the meantime, however, he is entitled to the presumption of innocence and to the very best possible legal defense."

Since Nixon's resignation, Haldeman has been accused by many White House observers of having contributed to his boss' fall by isolating him, abusing power, refusing to permit dissent, and surrounding himself with arrogant, ruthless, untruthful, paranoidal, subservient aides.

Had Haldeman been an official of the Committee to Re-Elect the President like John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, his legal fees would be taken care of by the committee, which still has in excess of $2 million for that purpose. Unfortunately he was not. Now he must pay his own defense costs and rely upon the charity of others to help. The same thing is true of his one-time assistant and buddy-no-longer, John Ehrlichman.

PASTA FOR A PARTY

by BETH MERRIMAN

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

NEW YORK, N.Y.

The next time you are planning a party keep Mary Stuart's menu suggestion in mind—Linguine Carbinara. Ms. Stuart, known to many for the last 23 years as Joanne Tate in the daytime serial "Search For Tomorrow," is equally well known among friends for her culinary talents.

Her Linguine Carbinara consists of linguine, in a mixture of eggs, cheese, parsley and pepper flavored with sautéed bacon and onion chips.

Another of Ms. Stuart's off-camera interests is composing and singing. Her recent album, "Mary Stuart," a collection of popular songs, contains several of her own compositions.

LINGUINE CARBINARA

5 eggs
1 cup grated parmesan cheese (freshly grated preferred)
3 tablespoons freshly chopped parsley
Black pepper (freshly ground), to taste
12 slices bacon, chopped
1 small onion, chopped fine
1 lb. linguine

Combine eggs, cheese, parsley and pepper in a mixing bowl; mix thoroughly with a wire whisk or rotary beater. Sauté bacon until crisp, and onions until clear. Pour off most of the drippings; set aside. Cook linguine according to package directions. Meanwhile warm a large bowl or serving pan thoroughly, and warm the serving plates or bowls you plan to use. Lift some of the cooked linguine from the water with two forks or serving spoons, letting the water run off for just a moment, then drop it into the egg and cheese mixture and stir. The hot pasta will cook the eggs. Repeat this process until all of the linguine has been added. Add bacon and onions; mix well. Serve immediately in heated bowls or plates. Serve additional grated cheese at the table. Makes six servings.

Note: If you wish, serve Linguine Carbinara with a green salad, made in advance and refrigerated. Sprinkle it with basil before the dressing is added.

TESTED IN PARADE'S KITCHEN

"When we found out what AARP does for people over 55, my wife didn't mind telling her age."

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

Irma and Peter McNulty

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. Non-profit. Non-partisan. An association of more than 6 million people. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's probably one of the few organizations in the world that offers you the opportunity to give so much of yourself, if you so desire and at the same time provides so many benefits and services. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health insurance. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents your interest with state legislatures and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights for all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf, and what remains to be accomplished.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So one of AARP's most important benefits is eligibility for supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They help you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a Skilled Nursing Facility and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by more than 6 million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? The AARP recommended travel service can help you do it. You can choose from a wide variety of quality tours and cruises, ranging from luxury to economy, escorted by experienced tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, may be able to help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are over 1600 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aide Program. Or just meet new friends.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

As an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto-insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Only statutory coverage available in North Carolina, Texas and Massachusetts.

WILL THIS TALISMAN BRACELET BRING YOU GOOD LUCK?

For ages past the tribes of Kenya have thought so.

ORIGINALLY created with intricately knotted elephant hair, these bracelets were thought to inherently possess good luck and were often given by tribesmen to hunters after a successful elephant hunt.

Later, made in multi-strand gold, silver and copper wire, they became talismans of good fortune for either sex in finding a mate . . . getting and keeping good health . . . and success in any enterprise.

Can you solve the riddle of its ancient design?

The first question people will ask you about this Talisman bracelet is, "How do you take it off?"

When you mysteriously slip it off your wrist, you'll be asked more:

Is it all one piece of wire? Where does it start . . . where does it end? Does it really give you good luck?

And why have elephant hair styled bracelets suddenly become so overwhelmingly desired?

As old as Africa . . . as new as today!

Based on the original ancient design from the tribes of Kenya, these bracelets have been re-created in 5-strand copper, silver-plate and gold-plate wire. These handmade bracelets have an untamed, sophisticated look that is sure to attract attention wherever you go.

One of the most ingenious features of these unusual bracelets is that they're completely adjustable and look as well on men as they do on women.

At last at a price you can afford!

Only wearing these bracelets can show you how superior they are to any elephant hair bracelets you've yet seen.

The handmade feeling . . . the unusual knots . . . the way each bracelet adjusts . . . the mystery of its design can only be experienced by actually wearing one of these bracelets. The good luck is not guaranteed, but complete satisfaction is.

Please compare them with the $40 . . . $50 . . . and $100 elephant hair bracelets you've seen. Unless you feel these Talisman bracelets are superior, return for no cost.

Only $3.98 for the copper, $4.98 for the silver-plate, $5.98 for the gold-plate —or $11.98 for the entire collection.

Please rush me the following Talisman Elephant Hair Styled Bracelets on no risk 10-day trial. If not delighted I may return for full refund.

_____ Copper at $3.98 ea. _____ Silver-plate at $4.98 ea.

_____ Gold-plate at $5.98 ea. _____ Entire collection $11.98 ea.

my favorite jokes

by daphne davis

EDITOR'S NOTE: Even before the nostalgia craze, Daphne Davis mastered impressions of Hollywood movie stars of the '30's, '40's, and '50's, amusing audiences with her clever parodies She also likes to poke affectionate fun at her native Australia

She tells of arriving in the U.S and how thrilled she was by the sight of the Statue of Liberty—which in her case was particularly touching because she landed in San Francisco

Daphne first arrived in New York City on Labor Day Weekend and it felt just like home There seemed to be so much room for so few people! Daphne's performed across the country, including major clubs in Las Vegas, New York and San Francisco

Here are some of her favorite jokes and stories

I often portray Liza Minnelli in my act. She was in the movie Cabaret, which takes place in a time of violence, sexual permissiveness, and political corruption—nothing like today

Liza plays the part of Sally Bowles, the decadent, depraved, debauched, but innocent girl who dresses very cheap—like she wears green nail polish that was originally gold

I always wanted to play opposite Sabu because I figured that somebody who's been around so many elephants wouldn't notice my thick ankles

I never wanted to play opposite Tarzan because he's so dumb the way he beats on his chest and screams He can't figure out that if he stopped beating on his chest it wouldn't hurt and he wouldn't have to scream

I feel most nostalgic when I do my Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald number in my act They were very puritanical in their relationship. But every once in a while they would do something daring like sneak off into the woods and sing something with a beat!

I tried to get into the movies in Australia but they make very few There was an Australian version of Come Back,Little Sheba The role of Sheba was played by a boomerang and it came back, and came back, and came back

Australia's film industry is quite small There's still only one major studio—14th Century-Fox

And, there's very little money for films There's an Australian version of War and Peace—no war, just peace In the big battle scenes we have two soldiers hitting each other with brooms.

We almost had an energy crisis in Australia last year, too There was a shortage of candles.

When I was growing up we didn't live in the most elegant place I remember we had a sampler on the living room wall saying "Dump Sweet Dump"

My parents wanted to come to this country but they were afraid they would fall off the earth

In Australia they make documentaries on how to break out of Australia

Look, it's tough there sometimes How do you tell a kangaroo you won't see him again in the city!

They've just built the first McDonald's in Australia It's listed under gourmet dining

As Mae West, I tell my audience. "The other night I ran into my local preacher He said, 'Mae, I prayed for you last night.' I said, 'You silly boy, you should have called'"

As W C Fields, I say: "My drinking is medicinal for an injury acquired when I accidentally straightened my elbow teaching a child to swim."

As Lucille Ball: "I remember when Ricky and I had our first baby. We were so scared. It was the first time we ever did anything without the Mertzes of our television show."

When I came to America I was looking forward to my very first party. It was a disaster; across the room I saw a woman holding a poodle. The dog wore a sweater, hat, shoes to match. I quickly ran home to change—we had on the same outfit.

Where trees will grow: Memorial Chairman Nash Castro, Lady Bird Johnson and Jack Fish, National Capital Parks head, visit grove site near Washington's National Airport.

An Unusual Memorial to LBJ

by Liz Carpenter

(former press secretary to Lady Bird Johnson)

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Presidential memorials in this monument-bestrewn city have a way of being elaborate, expensive and controversial. But a new kind of memorial is in the works to honor the 36th President of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson, who died Jan. 22, 1973.

Even though LBJ himself was a controversial figure, with the pros and cons of his achievements still fiercely argued, few people are likely to quarrel with the unusual plans which have been made to commemorate his years in office.

LBJ isn't going to be honored with a statue, equestrian or otherwise, and he isn't going to have a building or an obelisk erected bearing his name. Instead, his memory will be kept green in a very literal way, with a 15-acre grove of trees, shrubs and trails to be set aside for public use.

The unusual memorial is in line with the philosophy of LBJ's wife, Lady Bird Johnson, who devoted much of her time in Washington to improving the quality of the nation's scenery. In fact the stretch which the LBJ grove will occupy, on the west bank of the Potomac, already is a public park named in honor of Mrs. Johnson.

Earth and stone

The LBJ grove, designed by landscape artist Meade Palmer, will have its ground-breaking this Friday and should be ready for the 1976 Bicentennial. In its center will be an earthen mound in which a 45-ton granite rock from the late President's Texas hill country will be set. Some of Johnson's words will be inscribed in the rock.

The park's elevation will command a panoramic view of Washington across the river. Nash Castro, general chairman of the LBJ Grove Committee and a 30-year veteran of the National Park Service, says he visualizes the park as a perfect starting point for a sightseeing visit to the nation's capital. Hike and bike paths will meander amidst the white pine trees and flowering shrubs, and there also will be picnic tables and benches for public use.

The LBJ Grove will cost $2 million, a modest sum as Presidential memorials go, with public contributions channeled through the Society for a More Beautiful Capital (LBJ Grove), P.O. Box 5557, Washington, D.C. 20016. No government funds are involved. So far $700,000 of the needed sum has been raised, headed by contributions of $100,000 each from Laurance Rockefeller, Mrs. Vincent Astor, and Mrs. Charles Englehard, all leaders in the conservation field.

The children's contribution

Smaller contributions are coming in from across the country. In New Jersey, a third-grade class sponsored a yard work week and raised $70. In Oregon, schoolchildren held bake sales and sent in the proceeds.

Mrs. Johnson feels that the grove will be a perfect memorial to her husband because it will emphasize the feeling of sharing and participation which he regarded as essential to government.

The former First Lady recalls a long Sunday drive which she took with her husband and House Speaker Sam Rayburn years ago. As they approached the Potomac, they saw the Capitol dome shining "like a beacon light."

"All of us felt a surge of spirit," she says, "and Mr. Rayburn said: 'Lady Bird, how do you like my Capitol?' We all felt it was our Capitol in our own particular way. That sense of possession is what democracy is all about."

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieves Pain & Itch...

Gives prompt temporary relief in many cases from hemorrhoidal pain and burning itch in such tissues.

There's an exclusive formulation which actually helps shrink the painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from itching and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues.

The sufferer first notices relief from such painful discomfort. Then this medication helps to gently reduce swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues. Tests conducted by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C., and at a Midwest Medical Center showed this to be true in many cases.

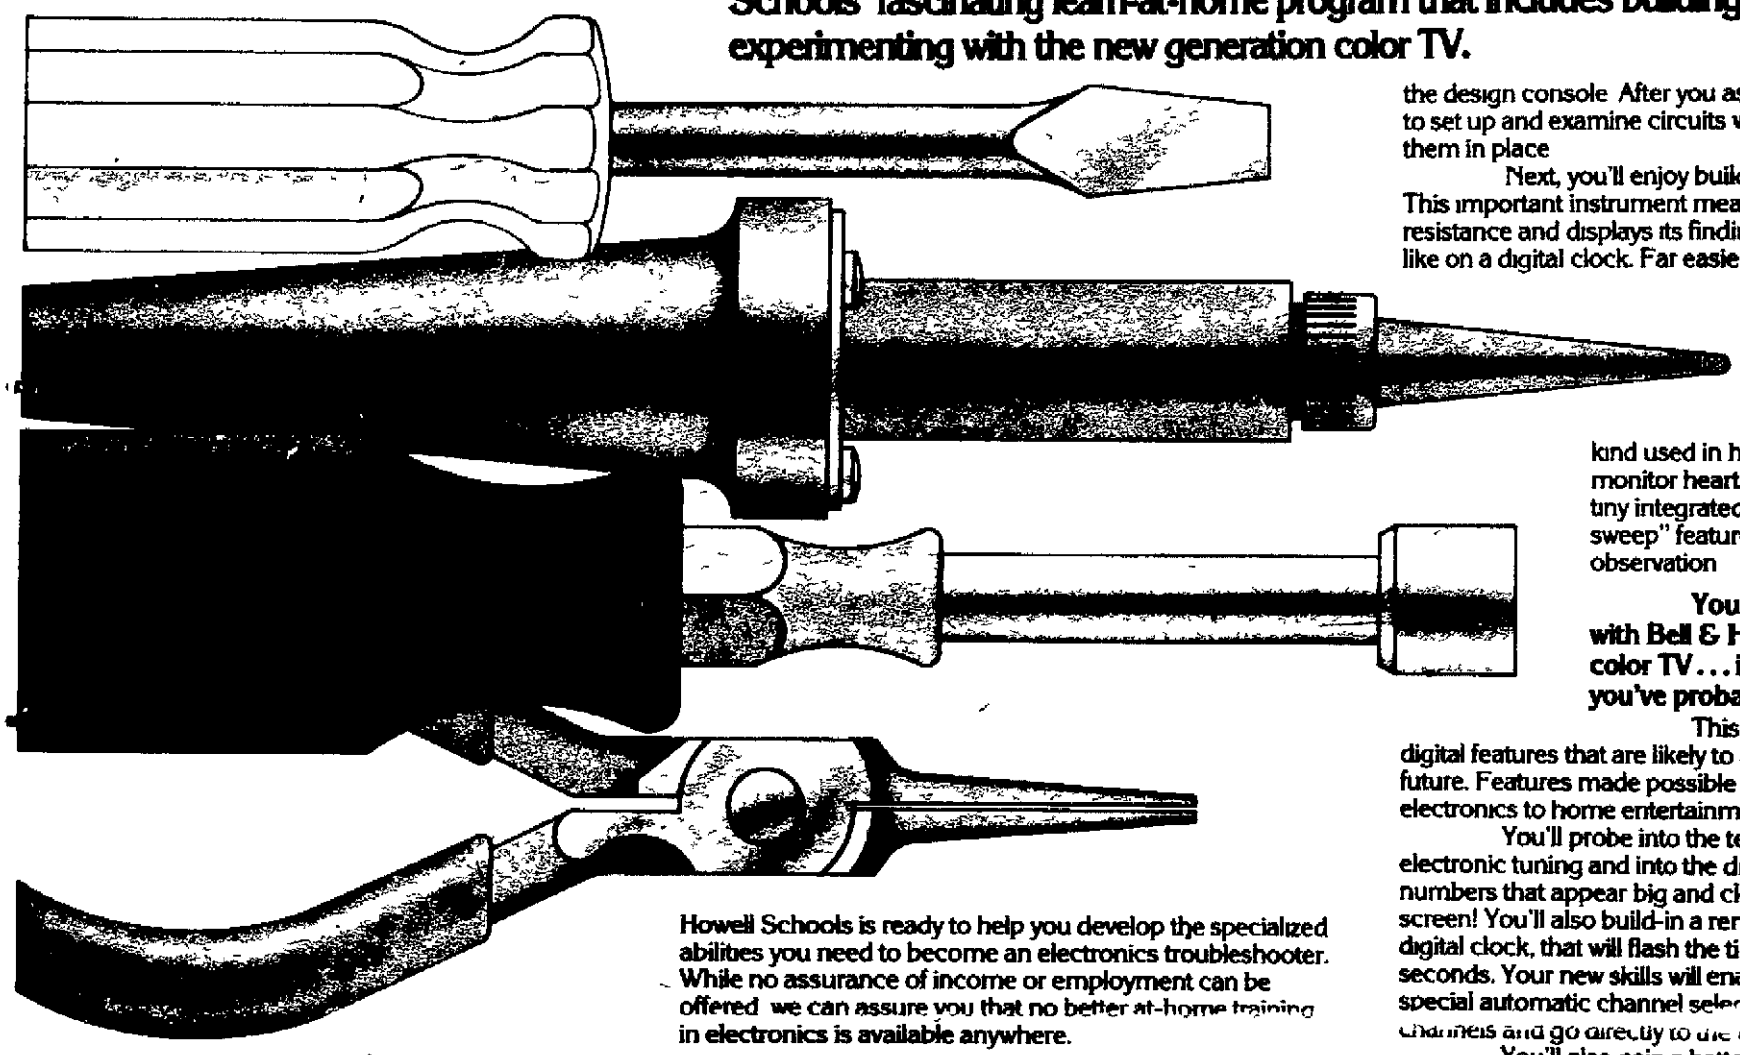

The medication used by doctors in these tests was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Preparation H also lubricates the affected area to protect the inflamed, irritated surface and so helps make regularity more comfortable.

There is no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

If you can use any of these tools...

You can gain exciting new skills as an electronics troubleshooter in Bell & Howell Schools' fascinating learn-at-home program that includes building and experimenting with the new generation color TV.

You may already have some of the skills you need.

Most of us at one time or another have put a screwdriver, a pair of pliers or some other basic tool to work. Fixing a bicycle wheel, tightening a window latch, putting up a bookshelf, or what have you

But here's a thought.

Using these same simple tools as a starting point, you can develop the ability to put them to work for you in far more ways than you ever dreamed of. And Bell & Howell Schools' fascinating home learning adventure in electronics will show you how.

These days when it seems like there's an "electronic everything," it makes good sense to have occupational skills in the servicing and repair of such products as TV's and other home electronic equipment. If you're a person who recognizes a future in this field, Bell & Howell Schools is ready to help you develop the specialized abilities you need to become an electronics troubleshooter. While no assurance of income or employment can be offered we can assure you that no better at-home training in electronics is available anywhere.

Simulated TV picture/test pattern

We have an exciting way for you to pick up these specialized skills in your spare time.

Don't think for a moment that we want you to spend your off-hours just reading a bunch of "how-to" books That would bore anyone after awhile. What we at Bell & Howell Schools offer is the modern way to learn... a very different approach from the way you've been used to.

First of all, we believe that when you're exploring a field as fascinating as electronics, reading about it is just not enough. That's why throughout this learning adventure you'll get lots of "hands on" experience with some of the latest electronic training tools available today. You'll test and experiment with them and gain exciting new skills all along the way.

Once you've completed this program a number of directions are open to you.

1. Use your training to seek out a job in the electronics industry.
2. Use your training to upgrade your current job.
3. Use your training as a foundation for advanced programs in electronics.
4. Use your training in a business of your own—a few of our graduates are even doing this now!

No electronics background necessary.

That's one of the many attractions of this program. We start you off with the basics and help you work your way up one step at a time. As a matter of fact, with your very first lesson you receive a special Lab Starter Kit to give you immediate working experience on equipment as you are picking up the fundamentals. It makes the learning process faster and certainly a lot more interesting.

You'll build and perform exciting experiments with Bell & Howell's Electro-Lab® electronics training system.

You build the Electro-Lab step-by-step, too. First, the design console After you assemble it, you'll be able to set up and examine circuits without having to solder them in place

Next, you'll enjoy building a digital multimeter. This important instrument measures voltage, current and resistance and displays its findings in big, clear numbers like on a digital clock. Far easier to read than "needle pointer" meters

Then comes the solid-state "triggered sweep" oscilloscope which is similar in principle to the kind used in hospital operating rooms to monitor heartbeats. You'll use it to analyze tiny integrated circuits. The "triggered sweep" feature locks in signals for easier observation

You'll actually build and work with Bell & Howell's new generation color TV... investigating features you've probably never seen before!

This 25" diagonal color TV has digital features that are likely to appear on all TV's of the future. Features made possible by the applications of digital electronics to home entertainment.

You'll probe into the technology behind all-electronic tuning and into the digital circuitry of channel numbers that appear big and clear, right on the screen! You'll also build-in a remarkable on-the-screen digital clock, that will flash the time in hours, minutes and seconds. Your new skills will enable you to program a special automatic channel selector to skip over "dead" channels and go directly to the channels of your choice.

You'll also gain a better understanding of the exceptional color clarity of the Black Matrix picture tube, as well as a working knowledge of "state of the art" integrated circuitry and the 100% solid-state chassis.

Having actually built and experimented with this TV, you'll come away equipped with the kinds of skills that could put you ahead of the field in electronics know-how.

We try to give more personal attention than other learn-at-home programs.

1. Toll-free phone-in assistance. The program is designed so that you can proceed through it smoothly, step-by-step. However, should you ever run into a rough spot, we'll be there to help. Many schools make you mail in all your questions. We have a toll-free line you can call when you have a question that can't wait.
2. In-person "help sessions." These are held in 50 major cities at various times throughout the year where you can talk shop with your instructors and fellow students.

Why wait? Find out more on how you can pick up new skills in electronics troubleshooting as you work with Bell & Howell's new generation color TV. You've got the tools to do it!

Mail the postage-paid card today for full details, free!

September 27 is the day your Ford Dealer introduces his new 1975 Fords, including the new Granada.

Automobiles built to back a challenge: The Closer You Look, The Better We Look.

Ford honestly believes this is the finest, fullest range of automobiles we have ever offered. And here are the facts–facts on quality, innovation and value–to back up that belief.

Granada 4-Door Sedan shown with optional bodyside accent molding, WSW tires and deluxe bumper group.

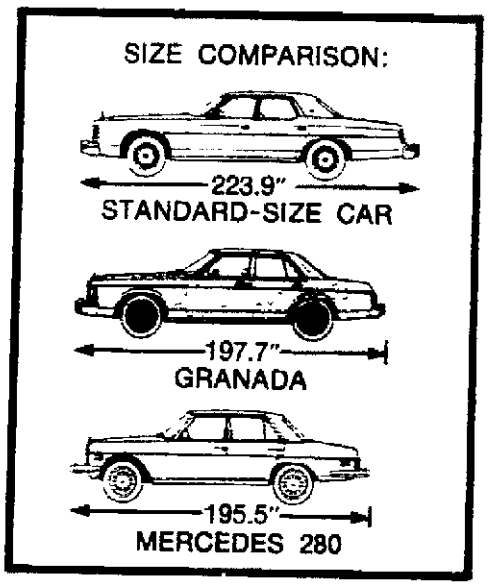

Introducing a new car designed to give you efficient use of space, fuel and money. Ford Granada: 14-18 mpg city, 18-26 mpg highway.*

The design:

Ford Granada is designed to help deal with such problems as crowded roads, increased fuel costs and maintenance. Granada is about two feet shorter and a half ton lighter than most standard-size cars. So you can expect excellent gas mileage. Yet there's family-size room inside.

Granada was designed to be functional. It has a generous glass area that doesn't slant or curve severely so visibility is good all around.

Granada's high roofline provides excellent front and rear headroom. The squared-off tail houses a roomy luggage space that can hold eight assorted pieces of luggage.

The economics:

A luxurious car today has to earn its keep. Granada doesn't back away from that fact. Its trim design helps reduce needless weight and excessive fuel consumption.

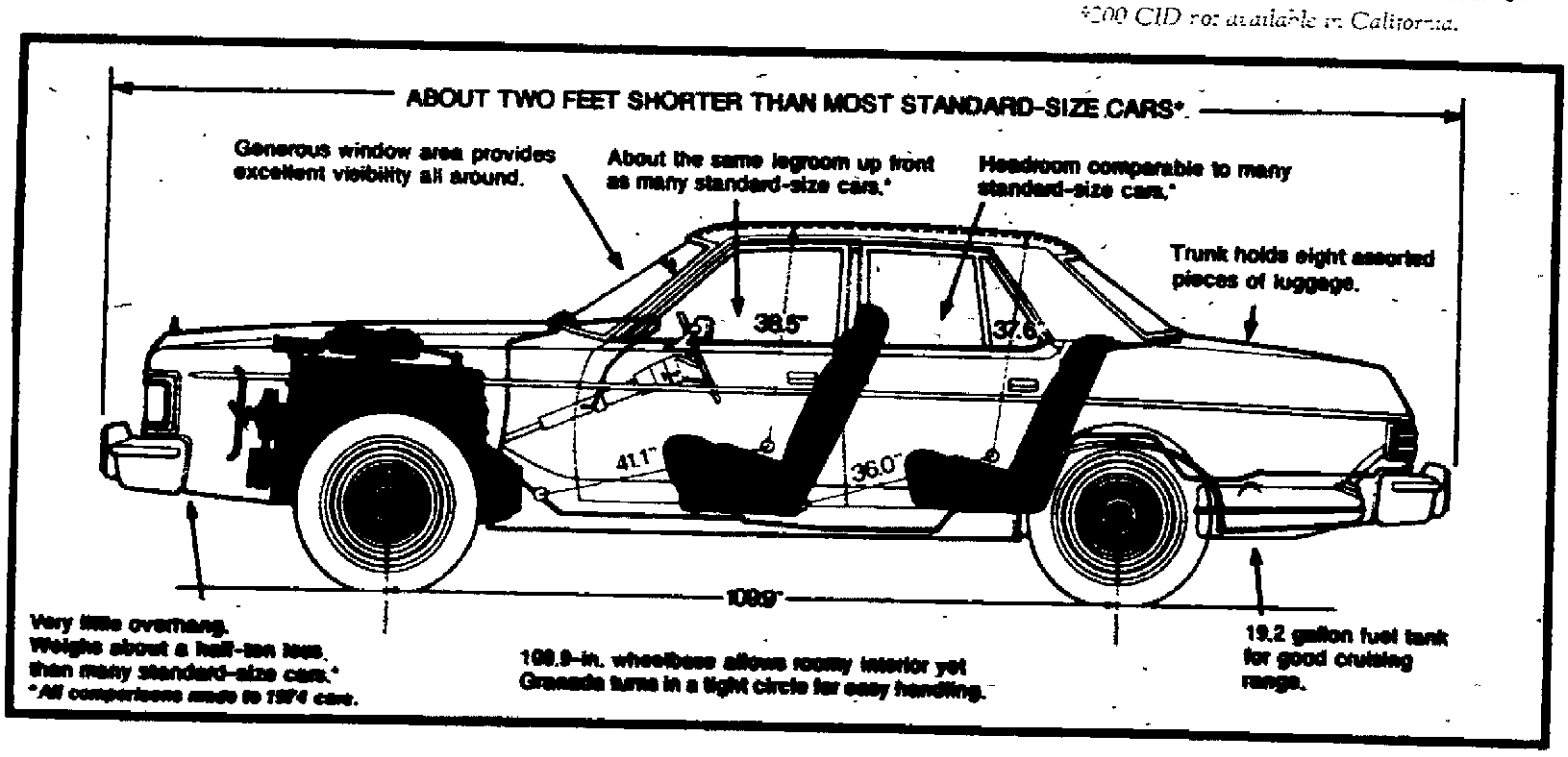

It comes with gas-saving, steel-belted radial ply tires that deliver excellent tread wear.

Granada's base engine is a 200 CID† Six that's economical and easy to maintain. Along with the optional Six (250 CID) and V-8's (302 and 351 CID), it's precisely balanced to resist the vibrations that can cause engine wear. All Granadas feature solid state ignition for less scheduled maintenance than former systems.

†200 CID not available in California.

*HOW MANY MILES PER GALLON

Based on results of tests conducted by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (as of 8 9 74) using a dynamometer to simulate city and highway driving conditions, on this type of car equipped with a 250 1V engine and frequently purchased options. Your gas mileage will depend on the type of driving and driving habits, maintenance, road and weather conditions and how your car is equipped. For example, a larger engine or power-assisted options like air conditioning (in constant use) or power steering can reduce your gas mileage somewhat.

FORD GRANADA— WHAT YOU GET

In addition to standard equipment noted at left, Granada comes with = Front disc brakes = Individual reclining seats = Deep cut-pile nylon carpeting = Burled walnut tone instrument panel = Full wheel covers.

And Granada Ghia offers even more standard features and appointments = 250 CID Six engine = Odense grain vinyl roof and matching bodyside molding = WSW steel-belted radials = Deluxe wheel covers = Remote control mirror = Deluxe sound and ride package = Deluxe interior with super-soft vinyl seats = Map pockets = Assist straps = 22 oz. cut-pile carpeting = Deluxe door panels = Quartz crystal digital clock = Luxury steering wheel, and more.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®
NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

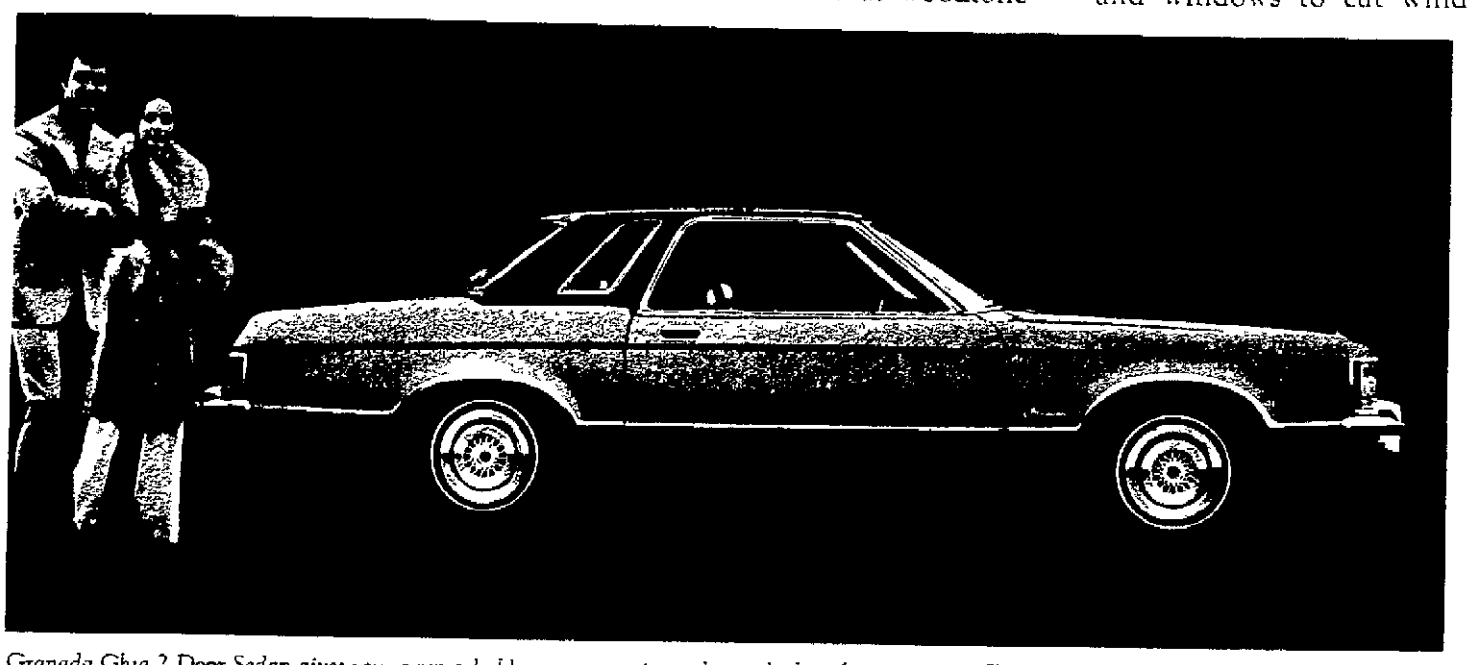

The comforts:

Granada offers a lot of pure driving pleasure. A closer look shows that this car was thoughtfully planned for passenger riding comfort and durable good taste. Both contoured front seats recline and adjust in more than one hundred positions for your individual comfort. (A feature you'll especially appreciate on long trips.)

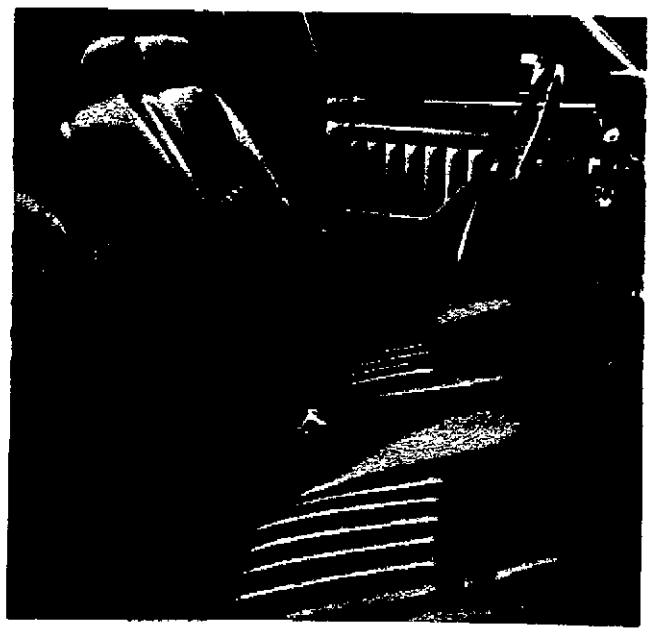

The instrument panel, with its handsome burled walnut woodtone applique, is recessed to add to front passenger comfort. Controls are within easy reach. The plush nylon cut-pile carpeting is molded for smoothness and is stain resistant.

There's weatherseal around doors and windows to cut wind noise. Granada's tuned suspension, tight body construction and sophisticated use of insulation result in a smooth, quiet ride.

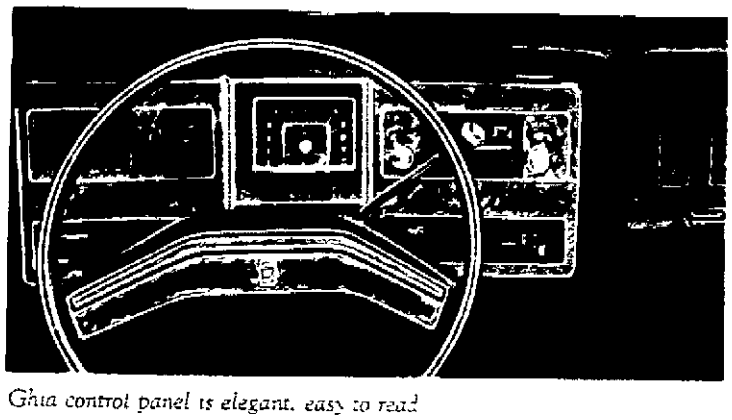

For added elegance there is the quiet luxury of the Granada Ghia in both 2- and 4-door models.

Granada Ghia 2-Door Sedan gives you a remarkably roomy interior and a wide door for easy entry. Shown with optional deluxe bumper group.

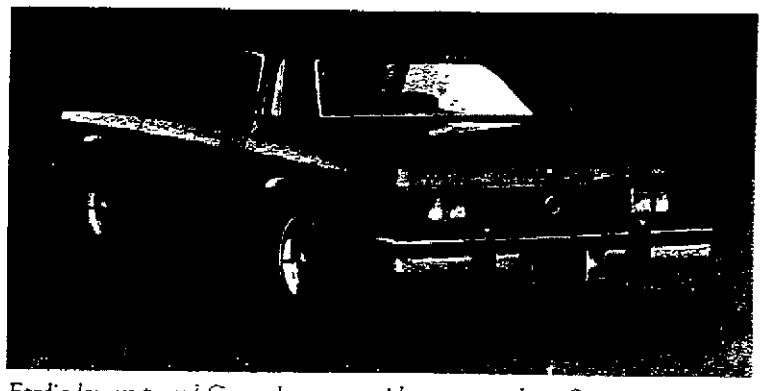

Granada Ghia. Rich look, spacious feel, full-scale comfort.

Ghia control panel is elegant, easy to read

Ghia touches: map pockets, assist straps.

Ford's lowest-priced Granada comes with opera window. Spacious interior. Options shown: deluxe bumper group, WSW tires, bodyside accent molding.

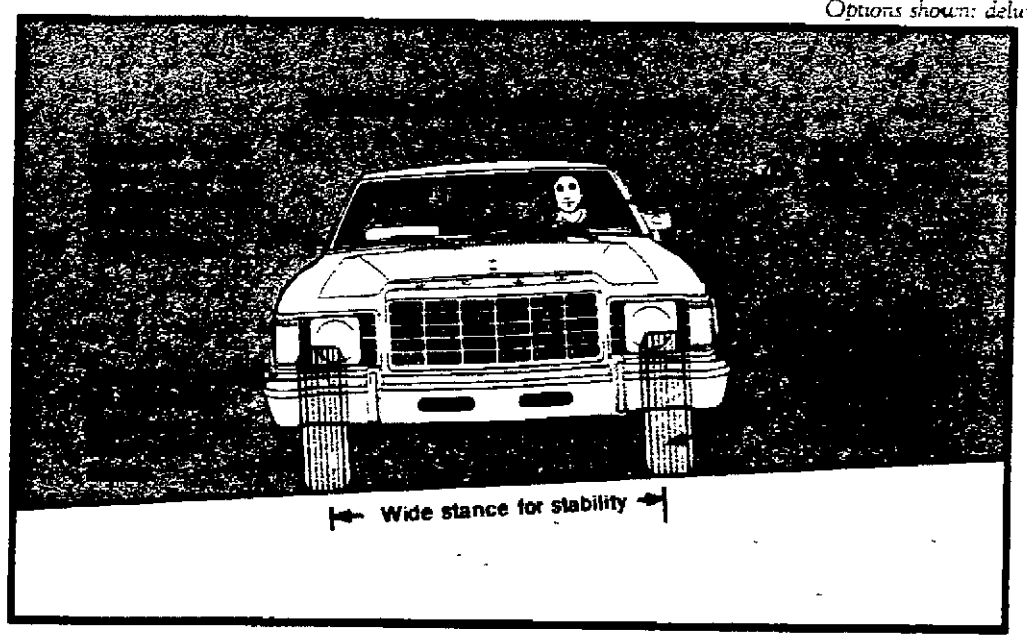

The construction:

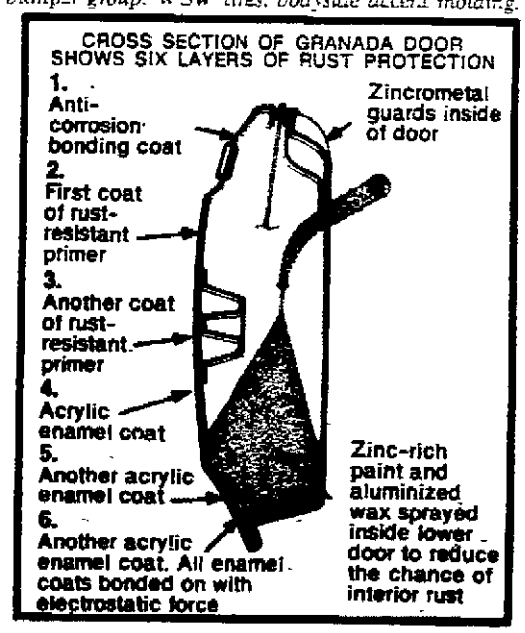

Granada is put together to stay together. Precision machinery holds body parts in tight alignment as they are welded into a solid unit. In a separate process, the body panels are treated to help minimize vibration.

To help protect against rust, Granada's body is covered with 13 pounds of primers and chip-resistant baked enamel.

Every Granada is subjected to hundreds of inspections while it's being built so that every Granada owner will have a car with the same high level of quality.

The feeling inside Granada is solid and secure: it hugs the road. It has about the weight of a Mercedes 280.

EVERYONE SAYS COMPARE FORD TELLS YOU HOW.

Tips on how and where to look for quality and value in a new automobile.

Sheetmetal: Notice the quality of the body work. Make sure that large sheetmetal areas are not wavy. They should look smooth and taut.

Paint: A good paint job helps make a quality automobile. Be sure there are no "runs," and be sure that the texture of the paint is not rough or grainy. The color should be uniform, with all surfaces having a high gloss and luster.

Body seams: Where two panels join, make sure that the seam is even and narrow. Adjoining surfaces of metal panels should be uniform.

Vinyl top: There should be a tight fit free of ripples over the entire surface. Seams must be straight, the metal trim snug and there should be no sealer or untrimmed edges showing.

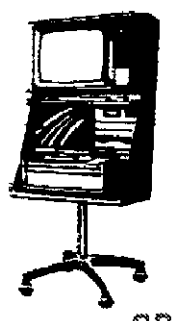

Trim: Check bright-finished areas such as bumpers and door handles closely. Surfaces should be free from discoloration. Look for a tight, even fit around windshield and windows, with no gaping joints. Exterior moldings should fit snugly and align properly.

Carpeting: It should fit snugly around seat bases, door sills, and floor tunnel. It should lie flat with no unsightly bulges and it should be thick and color-coordinated.

Instrument panel: All segments of the panel should fit precisely. Instruments must be easily readable and should be illuminated. Controls must be reachable and easy to operate. The steering column and wheel should be color-coordinated.

Windows: Raise and lower all windows to check that they move smoothly. Check for even fit all around, and full contact with weather stripping when windows are closed.

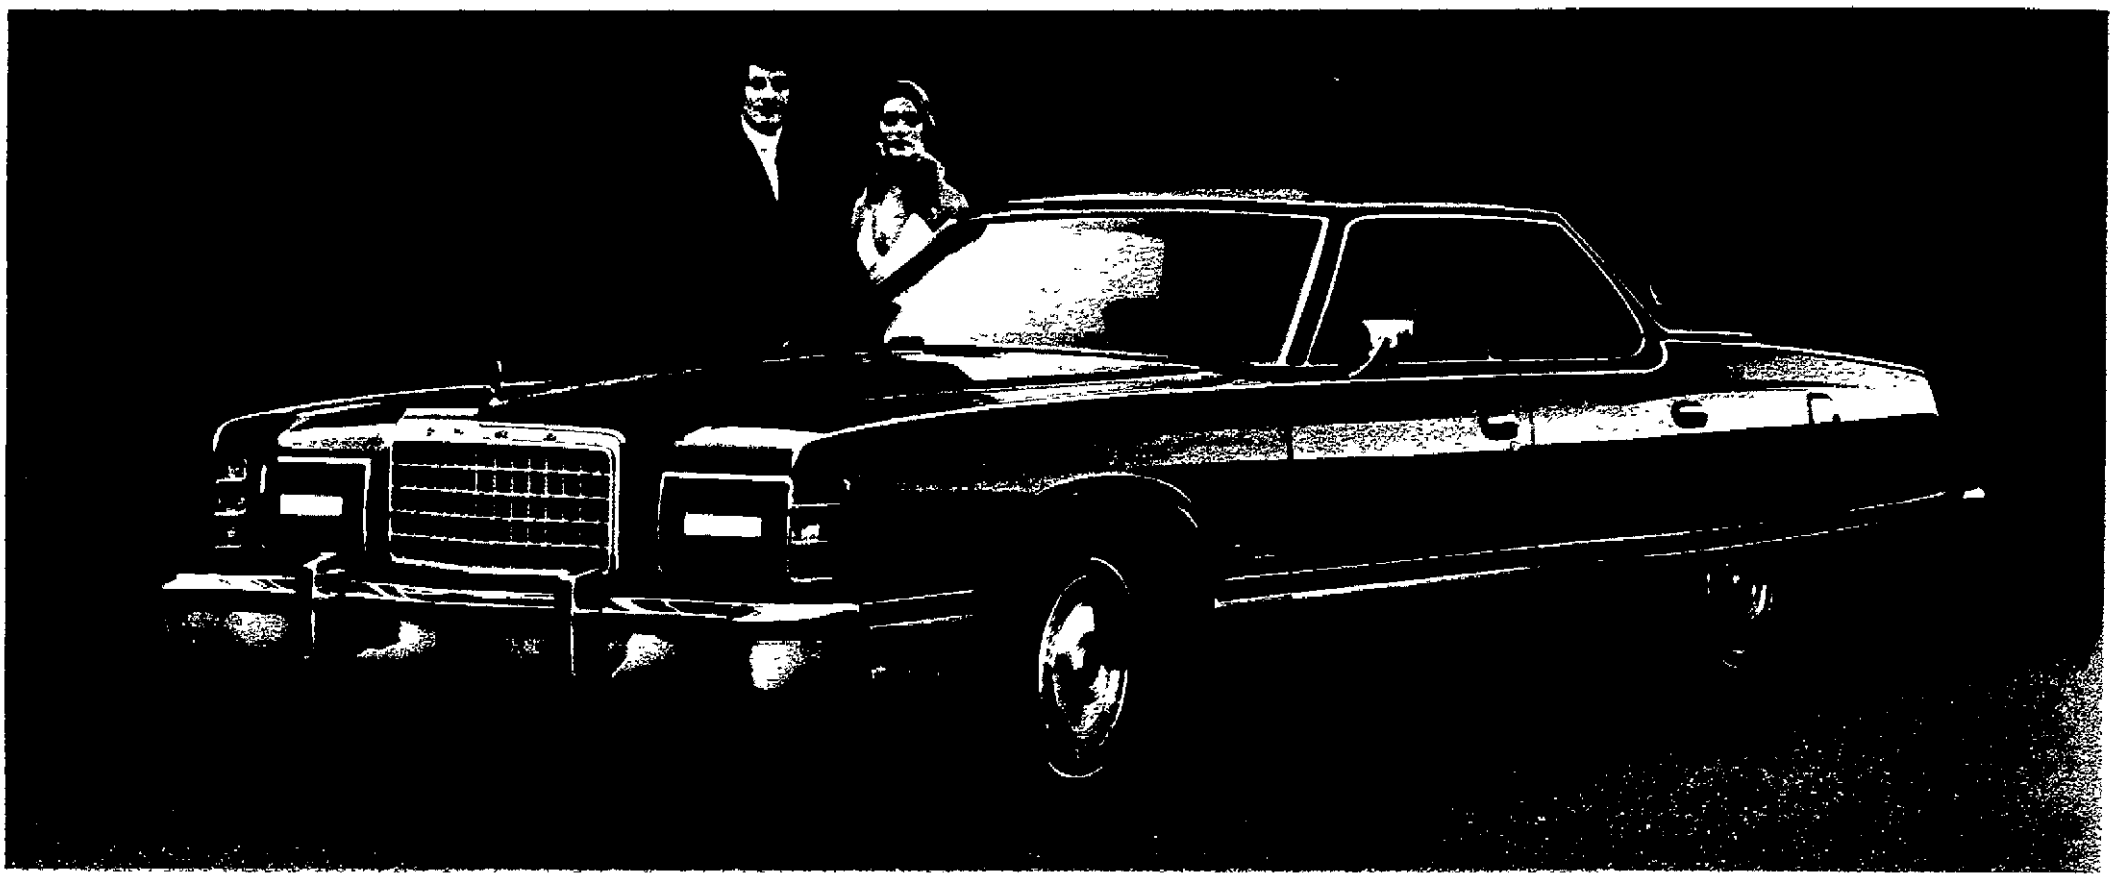

Doors: The opening line between a door and the body should be narrow and even for its full length. Door should latch firmly with a solid "slam." A handle should not feel loose to your touch nor contain rough edges. Interior door paneling should harmonize with the seat trim, and have "scuff" protection along its bottom edge.

Your Ford Dealer invites you to see and learn all about the new Fords on his Video Network.

Ford introduces two new luxurious standard-size cars...

LTD Landau 4-Door Pillared Hardtop shown with optional Landau Luxury Group (see interior below) and fender skirts

Ford LTD Landau: A logical alternative to longer, heavier, more expensive luxury cars.

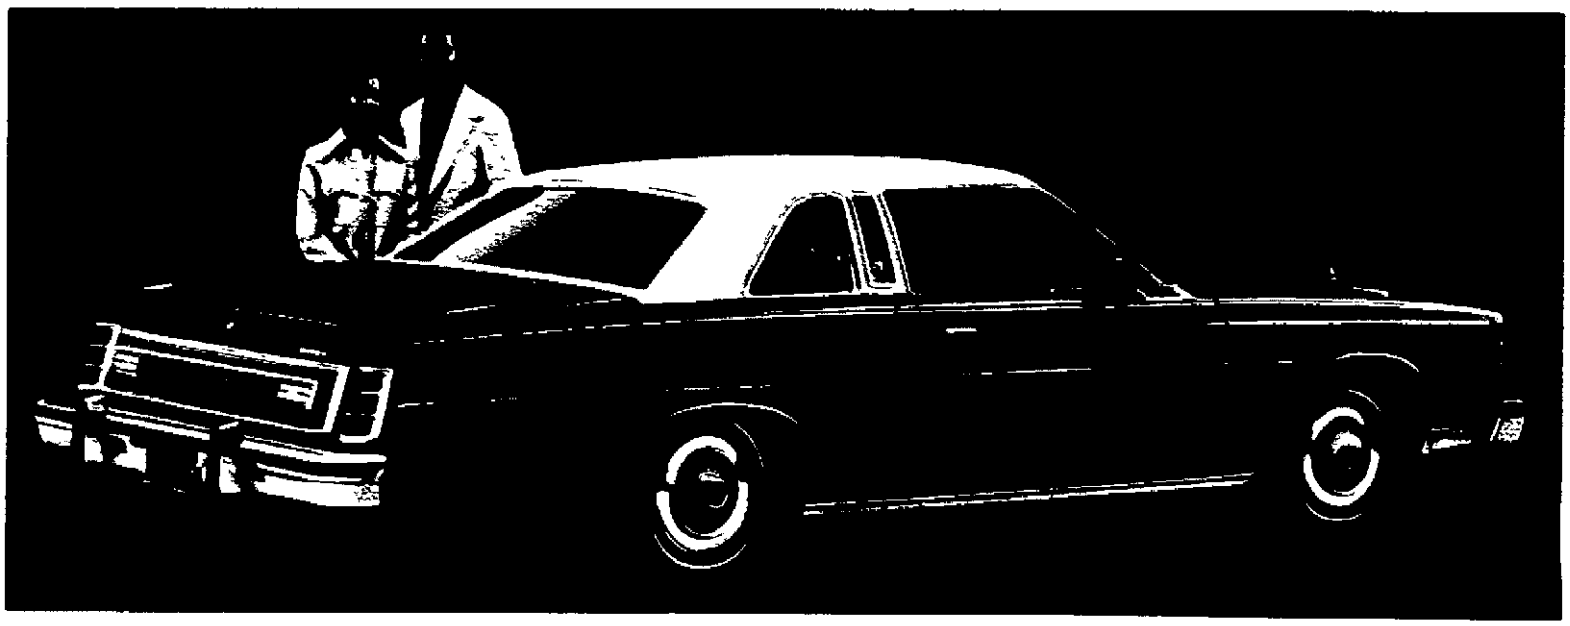

Compare the workmanship in LTD Landau as well as its size, comfort and luxury, to much more expensive luxury cars. The main thing you don't get is hundreds of pounds of extra weight and almost a foot of extra length (compared to longer, heavier, costlier cars).

Yet you have the security of a solid full-size, well-made automobile.

The LTD Landau has all standard equipment featured in the LTD sedan. And in addition, special features and appointments of its own that make the Landau so distinctive. Compare them with more expensive cars.

LTD 2-Door Pillared Hardtop shown with optional WSW tires, vinyl roof, full wheel covers, deluxe bumper group, front cornering lamps, paint stripes and bodyside group. Note distinctive color-keyed styling. An even higher level of luxury can be found in the popular LTD Brougham 2- and 4-Door models.

Ford LTD: Traditional LTD Quality. Value priced.

"LTD Quality" is synonymous with a well-made, comfortable full-size car. And for 1975, LTD comes to you as the lowest-priced car in the line with a high level of quality.

Consider LTD's reputation for quiet ride. Consider its resale value. Consider that it comes with steel-belted radials and solid state ignition.

Consider the peace of mind you get from its solid construction. Designed and priced as it is, we think it offers a new level of value in a standard-size car.

What you get for your money: An impressive list of standard features and appointments.

For basic value
= SelectShift Cruise-O-Matic transmission = 351 V-8 engine = Power steering = Power front disc brakes = Vinyl insert bodyside moldings.

For economy and low maintenance
= Solid state ignition = Steel-belted radials.

For luxury details that make an LTD an LTD
= Brocade cloth upholstery trim = Color-keyed cut-pile carpeting.

INSIDE STORY:

Ford shows you hidden value you can't see for yourself.

1. Solid state ignition

On all Ford car engines for 1975. It eliminates points and condenser for less scheduled maintenance.

2. Steel-belted radial ply tires

Reduced rolling friction for better gas mileage. Excellent tread wear. Standard on all Ford cars for 1975.

3. Long intervals between routine service stops

30000

. . . can save you maintenance. All Ford cars, for example, are scheduled for oil changes just once every 5,000 miles and chassis lubes every 30,000 miles.

Torino: Six-passenger comfort in a solid mid-size car.

We put six seat belts in the Torino because it seats six people comfortably.

Torino gives you full-size passenger space with plenty of room for knees, heads and hips. Yet you have easy handling and mid-size economy.

Torino has the solid construction and the remarkably smooth, quiet ride that makes it such a good mid-size value. Plus a higher level of standard equipment than ever offered before on our mid-size car: 351 V-8 engine, Power Steering, Power Front Disc Brakes, Select-Shift transmission, Steel-Belted Radials. Even Solid State Ignition.

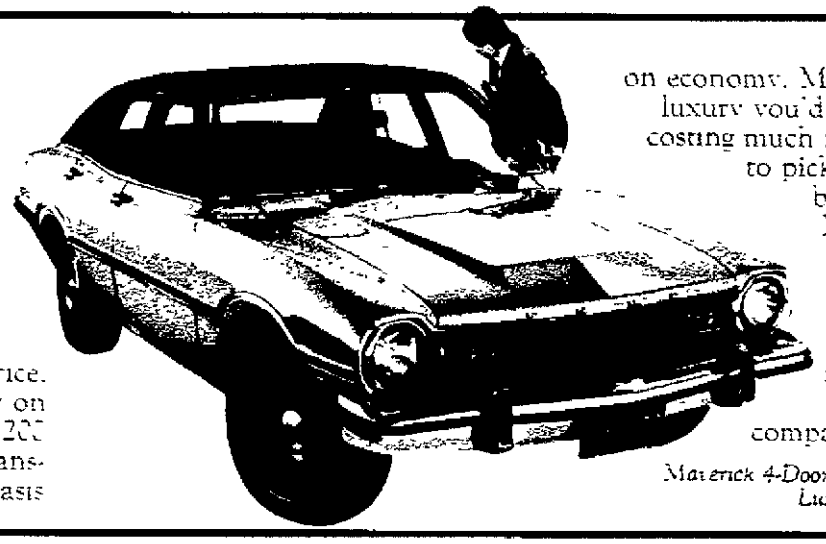

Miles and miles on one tank of gas. With a big 26½ gallon fuel tank, Torino has an impressive cruising range. So for comfort and confidence on the road with mid-size operating economy, take a good look at the '75 Torino, Gran Torino, Gran Torino Brougham and Gran Torino Sport.

Gran Torino 4-Door Pillared Hardtop with optional WSW tires, deluxe bumper group, deluxe wheel covers.

Maverick: The proven family compact.

The one that sets the standards. Maverick—a choice of over 1,400,000 owners. Designed to be a practical car, easy to service, handle, and park. Yet very stingy on its diet of gas thanks to a standard 200 CID Six* and 3-speed manual transmission. And despite the emphasis on economy, Maverick has the luxury you'd expect in a car costing much more. If pressed to pick one word that best describes Maverick we'd choose "value." And maybe that's why Maverick has been the best selling 4-Door compact in America.

Maverick 4-Door Sedan shown with Luxury Decor Option

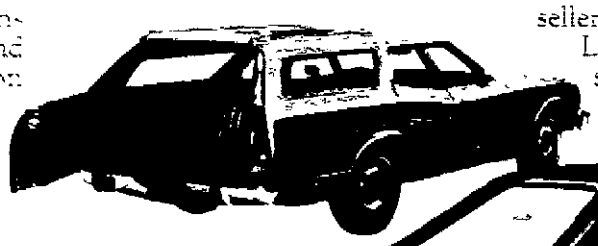

You have a choice of three models. A 2-Door Sedan, a 4-Door Sedan and a 2-Door Grabber. You can add the special Luxury Decor Option (shown at left) that gives you a Maverick with all-vinyl trim, individual reclining seats, cut-pile carpeting, map light, vinyl roof, WSW steel-belted tires, color-keyed wheel covers, vinyl body-side moldings, a special Sound Package, and much more. All still at a price that's within easy reach.

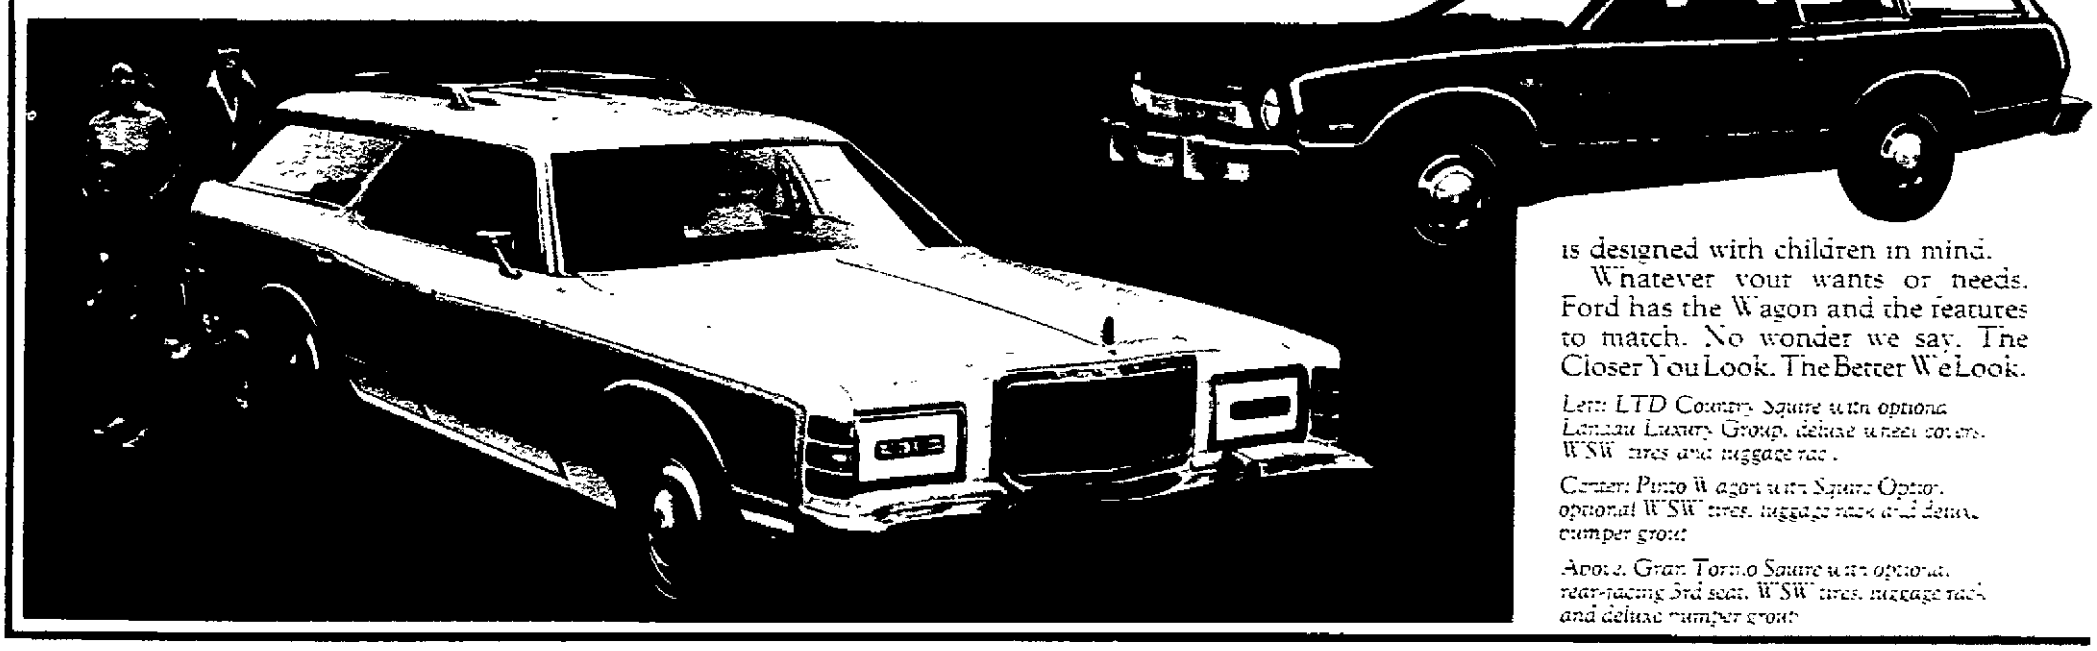

*200 CID not available in California.

Three sizes from the Wagonmaster:

In all three sizes the big plus is the efficient and flexible use of cargo and passenger space. The best-selling compact Pinto Wagon carries four passengers comfortably, or with back seat folded down has almost 60 cu. ft. for cargo. All three Torino Wagons offer the economy of mid-size and 55 cu. ft. for cargo. The LTD Wagon has 94.6 cu. ft. of cargo space. And with the rear seat option both LTD and Torino Wagons can carry eight passengers.

But it is wagon conveniences that have helped make Ford Wagons best sellers, like the 3-way doorgate on both LTD and Torino Wagons. Cargo space that converts to passenger space in seconds. The optional recreation table in the LTD is designed with children in mind.

Whatever your wants or needs, Ford has the Wagon and the features to match. No wonder we say, The Closer You Look, The Better We Look.

Center: Pinto Wagon with Squire Option, optional WSW tires, luggage rack and deluxe bumper group.

Above: Gran Torino Squire with optional rear-facing 3rd seat, WSW tires, luggage rack and deluxe bumper group.

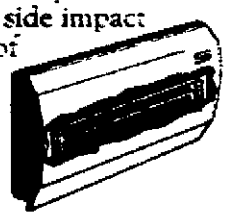

4. Nine-point Insulation Package

At least nine different locations of insulation materials are used in all Ford car lines to promote a quiet, restful ride.

5. Side door beams

Located in the doors and designed for added protection in the event of side impact collision. One of Ford Motor Company Lifeguard Design Safety Features found on all Ford-built cars.

6. Six-step paint process

Anti-corrosion bonding coat, two coats of epoxy primer and three coats of acrylic enamel for lustrous, durable, corrosion-resistant finish.

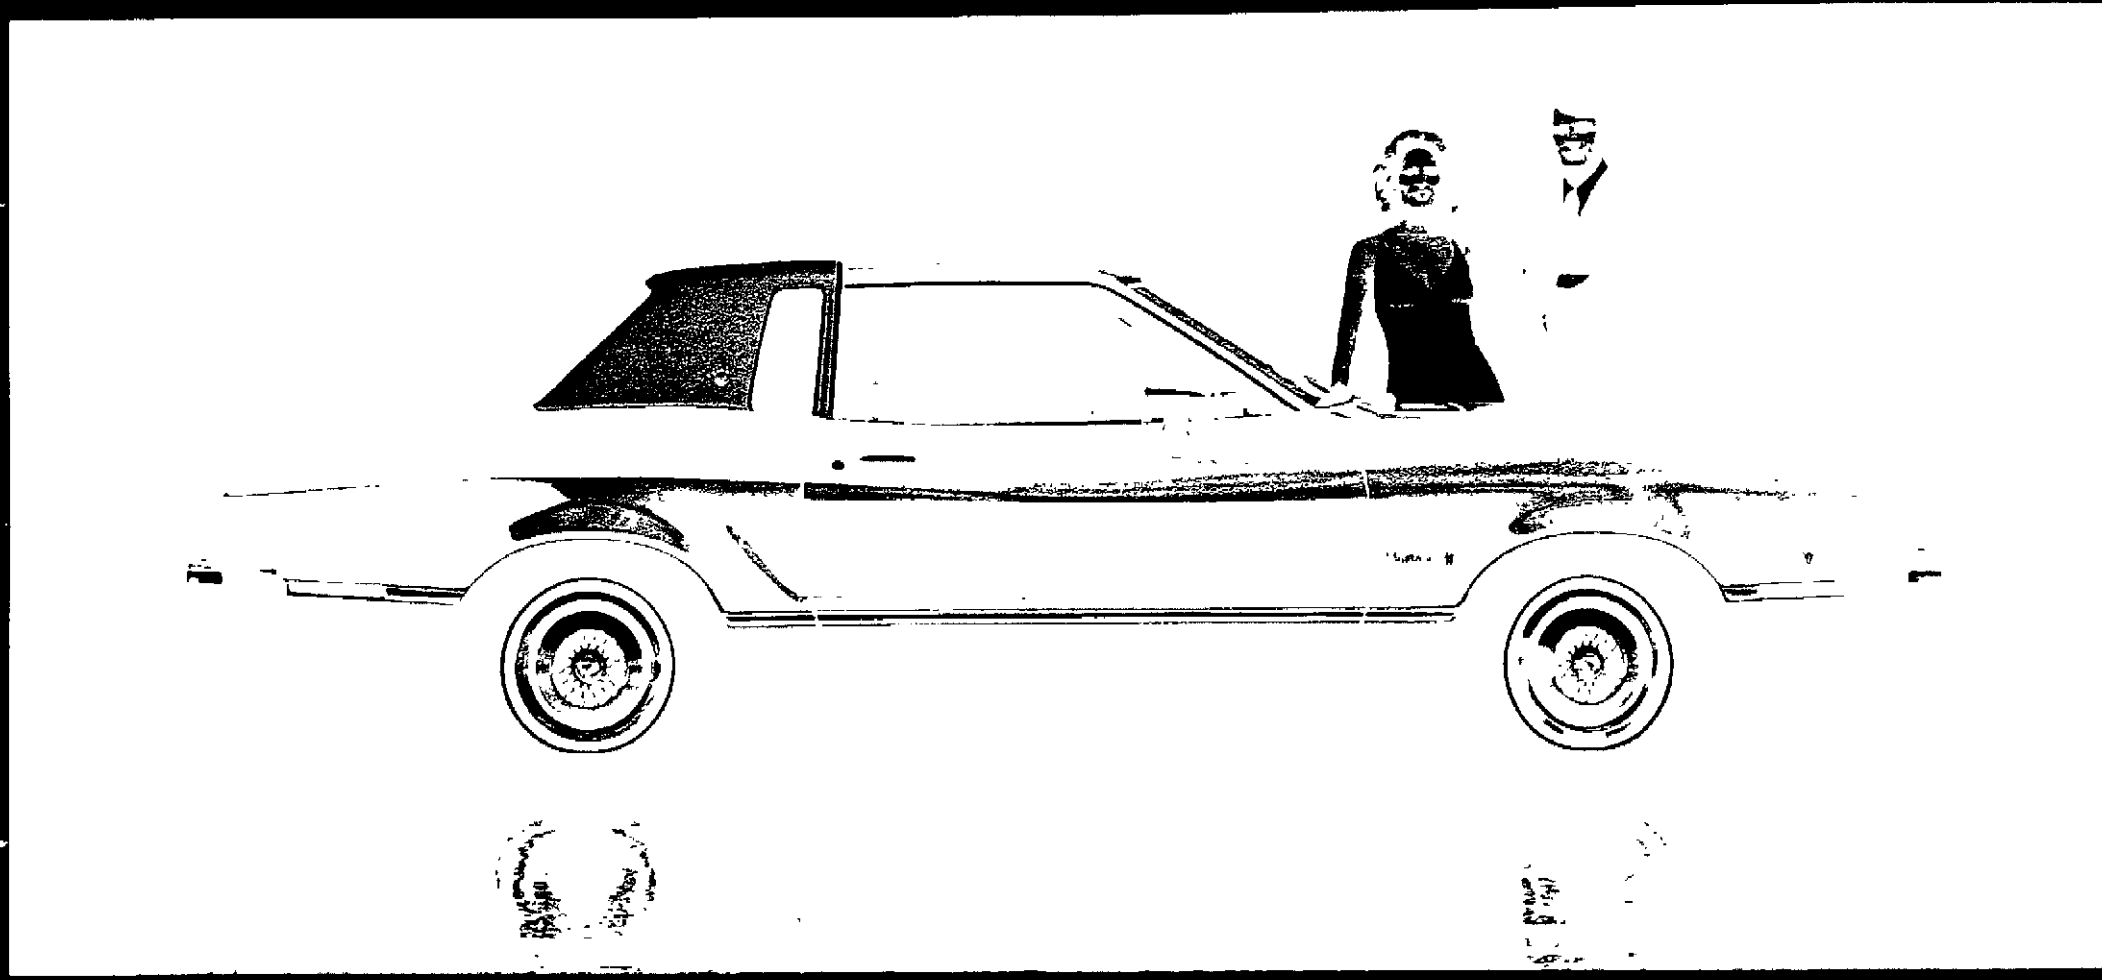

Something else you can't see.

Personal luxury in 3 sizes...

Mustang II Ghia 2-Door Hardtop shown with optional V-8 engine and bumper guards.

Mustang II: The sporty personal luxury car...now with a V-8 engine.

The success car of '74 is doing it again.

In its first full year Mustang II was a new idea that ran away from all its so-called competition.

Now for '75 we've made Mustang II even more exciting with a new optional 302 V-8 and a 2.8 Liter V-6. And to the impressive list of standard features, we've added improvements: gas-saving, steel-belted radial ply tires, and solid state ignition for less scheduled maintenance. Other standard features include bucket seats, 4-speed transmission, front disc brakes, a gas-stingy 2.3 Liter 4-cylinder engine, rack-and-pinion steering.

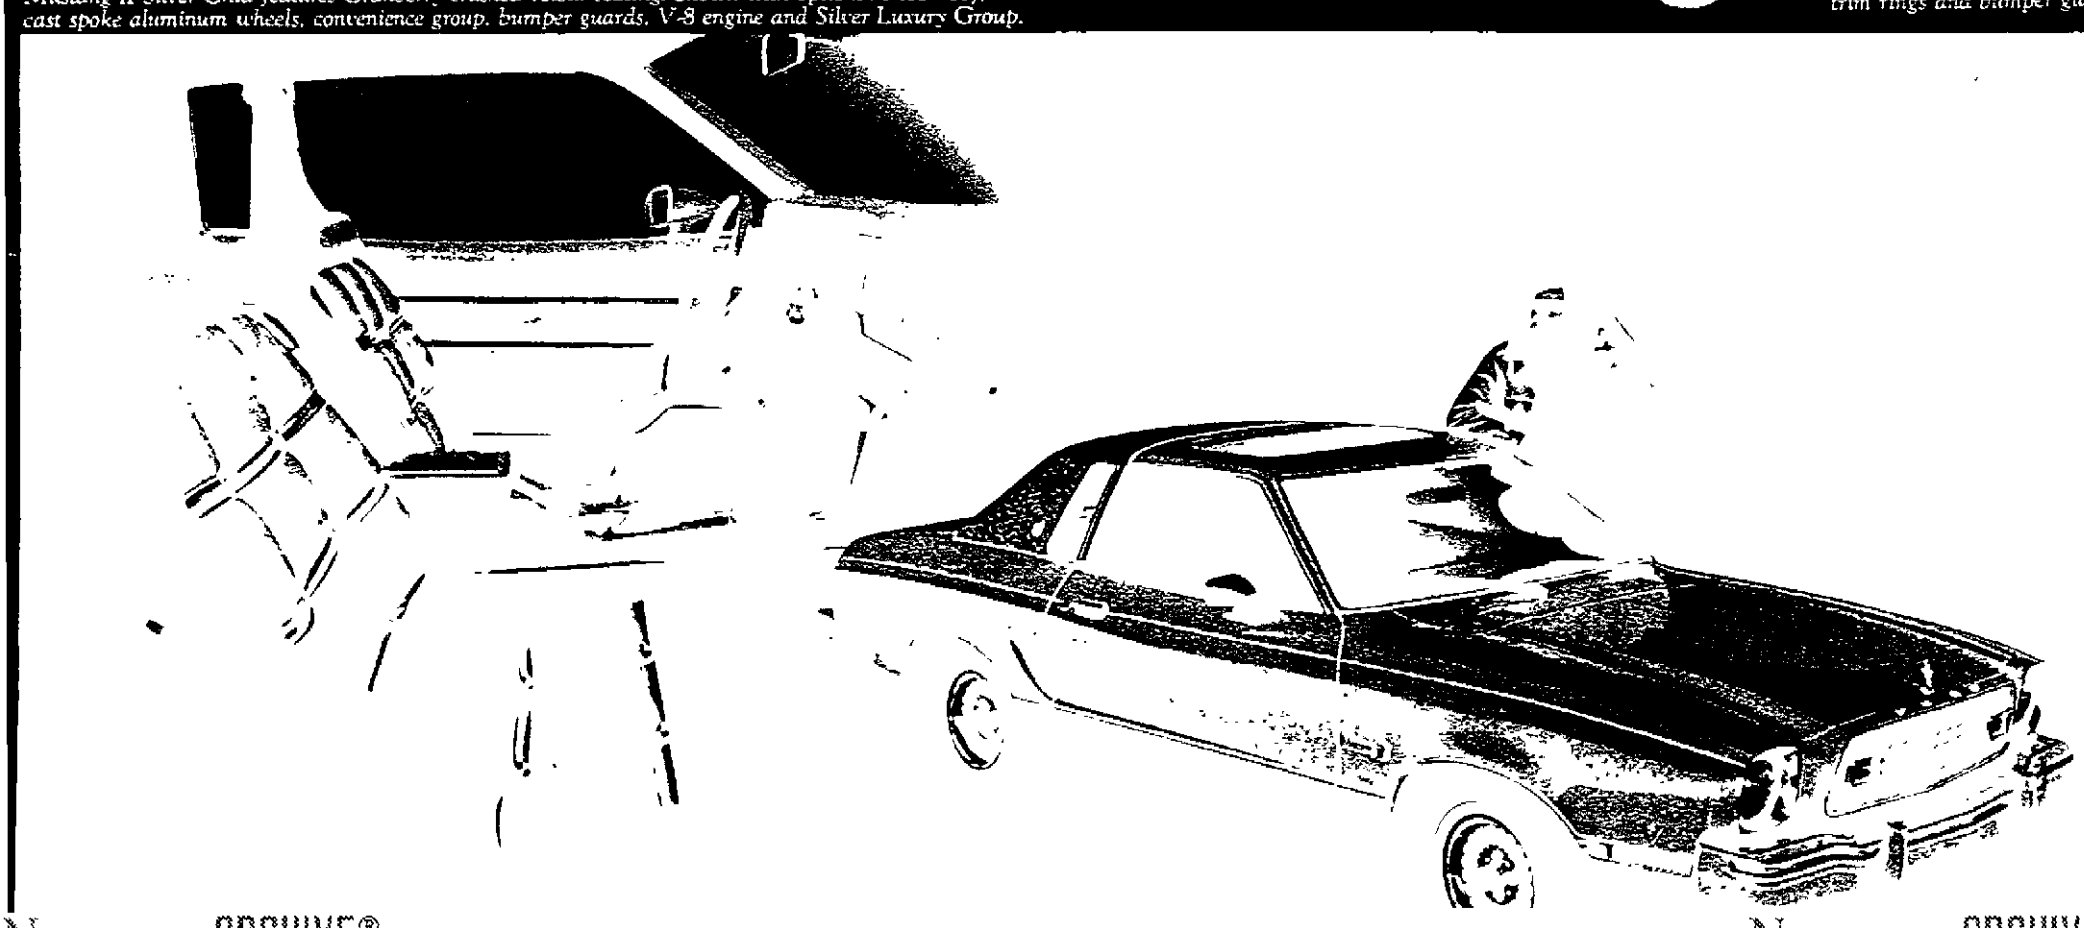

For '75, the luxurious Mustang II Ghia sports exciting new styling changes. From its distinctive new grille and opera windows to the classic vinyl roof, Mustang II Ghia is a small car with a high level of style and luxury. Inside you'll find plush bucket seats, a digital clock and extra-thick deep shag carpeting.

Last year's success car offers even more of a personal choice in '75. 2-Door Hardtop, 2-Door Ghia, 3-Door 2+2, and a sporty Mach 1. Whichever one you choose, Mustang II offers plenty of driving excitement for your money.

3-Door 2+2 with optional WSW tires, wheel trim rings and bumper guards.

Mustang II Silver Ghia features Cranberry crushed velour seating. Shown with optional Moonroof, cast spoke aluminum wheels, convenience group, bumper guards, V-8 engine and Silver Luxury Group.

...and at three price levels.

Elite shown with optional WSW tires, deluxe bumper group, power-operated glass Moonroof, interior decor group, and deep dish aluminum wheels.

Ford Elite for 1975: The tradition of Thunderbird in a mid-size car.

This mid-size is unique because Elite combines the economies of mid-size with classic styling and luxury in the Thunderbird tradition.

And in the Thunderbird tradition of value, Elite comes to you complete. Vinyl roof. Protective bodyside molding. With driving conveniences standard too: Power steering, power front disc brakes, SelectShift transmission, and steel-belted radial tires. Even an electric clock. Elite also comes with Thunderbird-inspired options such as a power-operated glass Moonroof. A luxury upholstered split bench seat and 22 oz. shag carpeting.

But with Elite it is luxury designed for the times. Along with mid-size operating economy, Ford Elite offers a 26½ gallon gas tank that gives you a cruising range you can rely on—even on long highway trips.

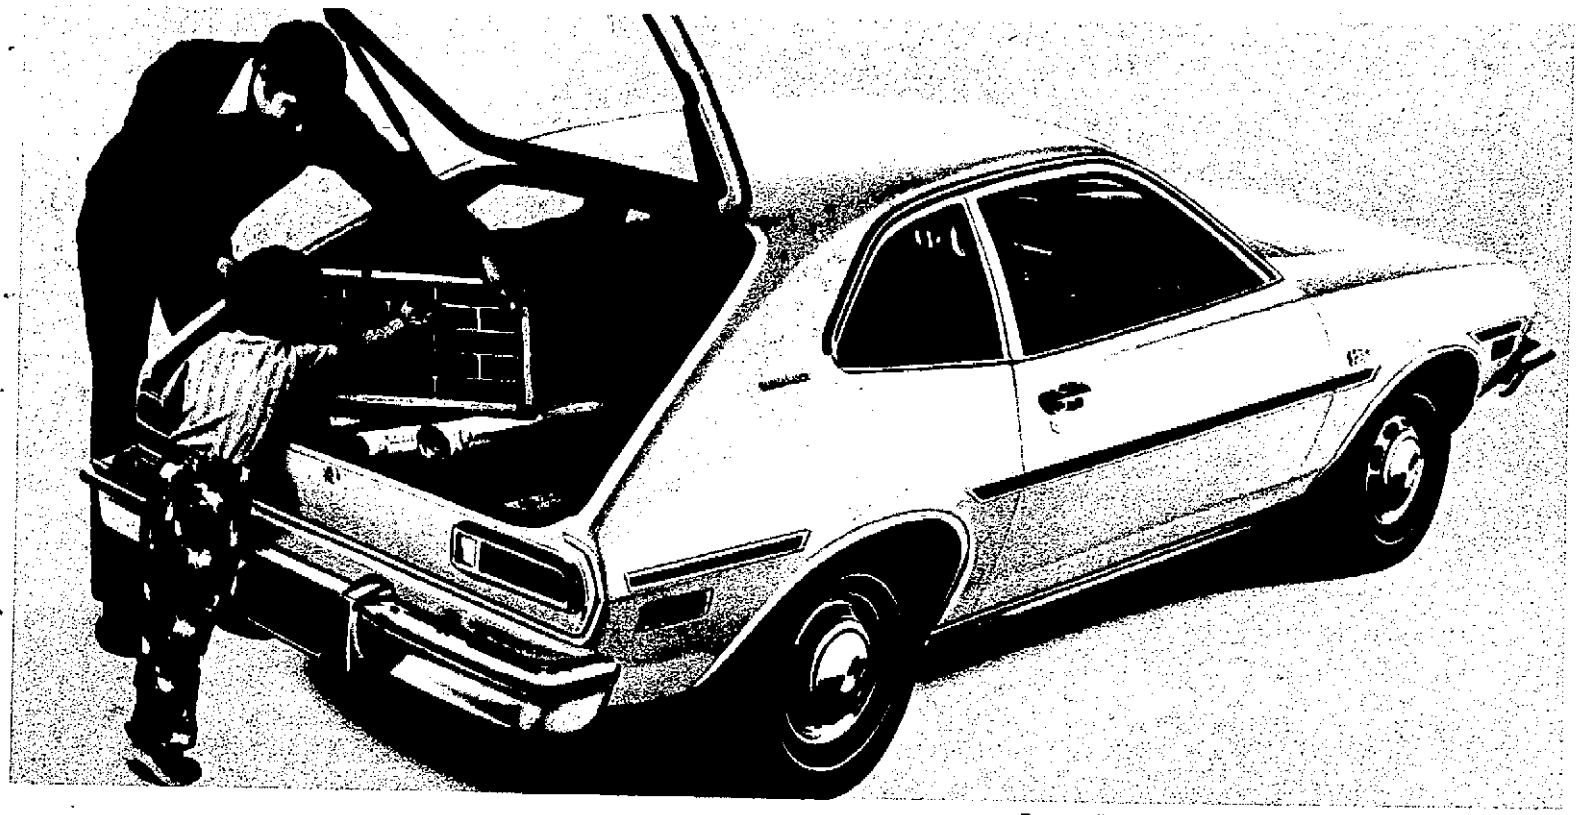

Personal luxury mid-size for 1975. Built by the same company that built Thunderbird. And built for the way you drive today.

Pinto 3-Door Runabout shown with optional WSW tires, deluxe bumper group and exterior decor group.

Pinto: Still a leader in basic transportation.

Check out Pinto's price for 1975. It's very competitive. Check out Pinto's gas mileage. It's great. Then when you discover how well-made it is (see column at right), you understand why Pinto remains a leader.

Lots of room, too. Open up a Pinto 3-Door Runabout and you'll find a surprising amount of luggage space. Sit inside a Pinto and you'll enjoy the design efficiency that makes for real riding comfort.

Important features. Pinto is the only American-made subcompact from a major manufacturer to offer rack-and-pinion steering for precision handling. Pinto has a 4-speed transmission standard, not a 3-speed. And a 2.3 Liter engine. New this year is an optional 2.8 Liter V-6 engine on the Runabout and Wagon models. You can even order power steering and power front disc brakes on all models.

With three kinds of Pintos to choose from—2-Door, 3-Door, and Wagon—is it any wonder Pinto's outsold every other subcompact in America since its introduction.

Pinto, like all Ford cars–well made at any price.

The Pinto is built up to Ford standards not down to a price. Because a small car has to offer the same thing as a big car . . . value for the money. Here are some of the common features:

1. Big Car Safety Features. All Ford Lifeguard Design Safety Features in an LTD are found in the Pinto.
2. Solid state ignition. For less routine scheduled maintenance.
3. Full immersion electrocoat body primer. Electrical attraction forces rust-proofing primer into nooks and crannies of the Pinto body.
4. Long scheduled maintenance intervals. Pinto's long intervals between service help make it economical to own.
5. Self-adjusting front disc/rear drum brakes. Pinto's disc brakes that resist heat and moisture are combined with long-wearing drum brakes for good stopping power.
6. Rubber-insulated suspension components. Road noise and vibration are greatly reduced with Pinto's front and rear rubber-insulated suspension system.
7. Steel-belted radial tires. They give excellent tread life and also help gas mileage.
8. Six-step electrostatic paint process. Anti-corrosion bonding coat, two coats of rust-resistant primer and three of acrylic enamel are applied to the steel body shell by an electrostatic process for a tough, beautiful finish.
9. Double-wrapped aluminized muffler. Saves money on the service life with a muffler that resists corrosion.
10. Corrosion-protected under body parts. Galvanized sheet steel and zinc-rich primer protect vital areas.

You haven't seen anything yet.

We can't show you everything here. There's just too much to see. In value. In features. In exciting new models. Both cars and trucks, too. So go to your Ford Dealer. Above all, get set to look close.

How to look close at pickups

Ask your Ford Dealer for this new free book. It covers tips on how to check pickup quality, durability, operating economies, resale value, and more.

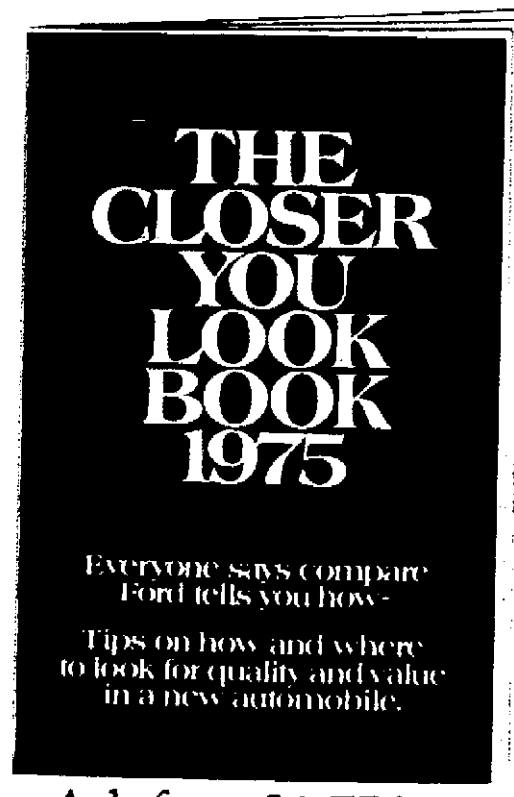

Everyone says compare. Ford tells you how. When you're about to buy a new car or truck, you'll probably look around for the model that you feel will give you outstanding quality and value. How can you be sure what you look at measures up?

To help you decide, Ford asked its technical experts for suggestions on what to look for in judging any size car or pickup. Their helpful tips have been compiled in two books available free at your Ford Dealer's.

"The Closer You Look Books" cover tips on how and where to look for quality and value. For example—how to look for extra precautions taken to ensure durability—like careful workmanship and the quality of materials used. Body fit and finish. How well the interiors are tailored. How easily windows work. Small details, but all together they tell the story of quality and value.

Now that you've had a brief look at the well-made '75 Fords—Thunderbird, LTD Landau, Elite, Torino, Ford's new Granada, Mustang II, Maverick, and Pinto—you can recognize some of the innovations that are a hallmark of Ford. But we urge you to take an even closer look—to see, drive and experience our new cars for yourself. If we're right about them, you won't be disappointed.

Ask for it. It's FREE.

Your local Ford Dealer invites you to see all the new 1975 Fords now.

A DOCTOR DISCOVERS VERMONT'S SECRET

WHY PEOPLE IN VERMONT ARE HEALTHIER, LESS OVERWEIGHT, STAY YOUNG LONGER, LIVE LONGER THAN PEOPLE OF ANY OTHER STATE IN THE UNION

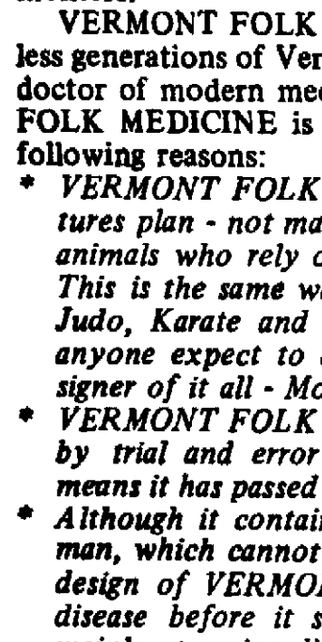

Did you know that:

* You were designed by nature to live an average age of 105?
* A high protien - low carbohydrate diet is unnatural for you and dangerous to your health?
* Overweight is caused by bad nutrition which also causes other common visible disorders such as loss of hair, acne, arthritis, nervous tension, insomnias, etc.
* Senility, and loss of productivity in old age can be avoided and in fact is not in natures plan?
* The average American diet creates a perfect blood chemistry for the growth of harmful bacteria that leads to both minor and serious diseases?
* You can get high without the use of drugs if you have the proper nourishment that nature intended.
* Everything you need to lead a longer, healthier life is right at your local grocery store?

These are just a few of the discoveries made by Vermont doctor, D. C. Jarvis M. D., in his life-long study of the unbelievably effective health practice known as VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE. VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE is a practice that can help you achieve good health, increase your life span, avoid senility, become more attractive and more productive. For 200 years, before publications by Dr. Jarvis, this practice has been known only to native Vermonters.

VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE was developed by countless generations of Vermonters. Dr. Jarvis M. D., a respected doctor of modern medicine himself, states that VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE is superior to modern medicine for the following reasons:

* VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE was developed from natures plan - not man's. It was developed by watching the animals who rely on their instincts provided by nature. This is the same way the super-effective defense arts of Judo, Karate and Kung Fu were developed. How can anyone expect to develop a better system than the designer of it all - Mother Nature?
* VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE works. It was developed by trial and error over a 200 year period. This also means it has passed the acid test of time.
* Although it contains some of the best cures known to man, which cannot be found in medical books, the main design of VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE is to prevent disease before it starts. Modern Medicine is directed, mainly at curing disease - diseases you should never have in the first place.

D. C. Jarvis, M. D.

VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE is based on the premise that man does not have to undergo psysical impairment and weakening with age. In Vermont you can see people in their eighties putting in a full days work in the fields with sound minds and bodies.

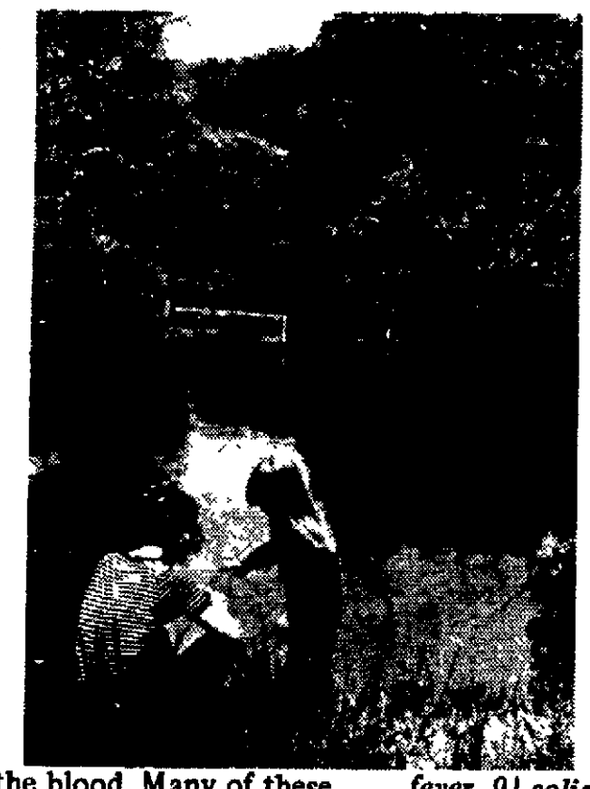

VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE was designed to help man live his full average life which by nature's plan should be 105 years. Yes, it's true. It is a common fact that an animal lives to be 5 times his maturity age. A horse matures at 4 years and easily lives to be 20. A cow matures at 2½ years and easily lives to 12. A dog matures at 1½ years and easily lives to be over 8-many live much longer. Man is an animal. BUT, THE AVERAGE MAN IN THE U.S. WHO MATURES AT 21 WILL DIE AT AGE 62. THAT'S 43 YEARS BEFORE HIS TIME! With the exception of a notorious retirement state, which can't be counted, Vermont leads all other states in percentage of population over 65. Not long ago it had 40,000 persons over that age, and each year nearly 2500 reach it!

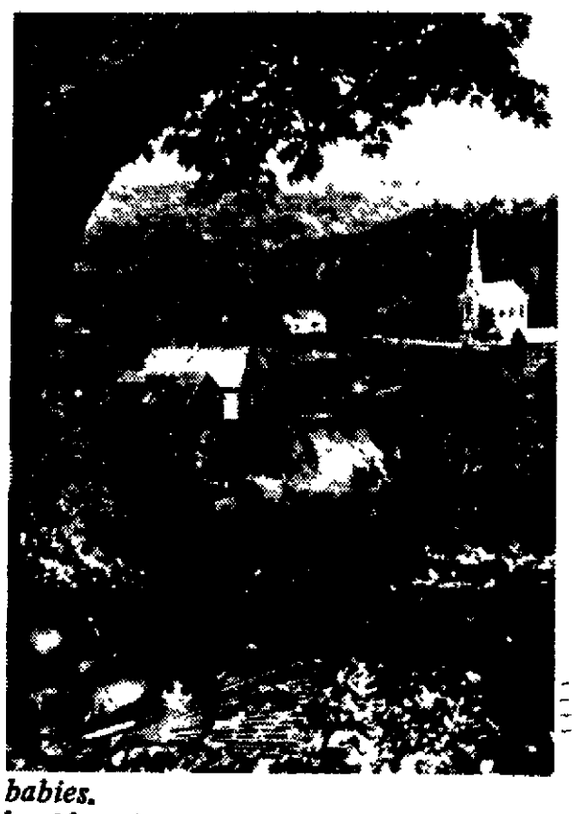

Short lives, senility, excessive disease, and so on are not in nature's plan. What's the culprit? The free will of man! Although free will is indeed a wonderful thing, it does have some bad side effects. Unlike the animals, we stray away from our childhood instincts.

The first thing discovered by VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE is that each species is designed to have a different diet. Nature's plan for man's diet requires a high intake of carbohydrates represented by fruits, berries, edible leaves, and honey, and a low in take of protien represented by eggs, meat, milk, cheese, etc. Man was also designed to eat foods derived from corn and rye and not from wheat, which produces an alkaline blood condition.

Nature designed nearly all animals to have a natural blood condition on the acid side. Blood which leans toward the alkaline side is a health hazard. Medical school studies show that harmful bacteria breeds best in an alkaline environment. Also, alkaline blood is thicker than acidic blood. This makes it more difficult for the blood to nourish cells, and increases the probability of heart attacks.

Tucked away in the rustic northeast portion of the United States, Vermont is indeed a beautiful state where people live close to the land and the animals.Photos courtesy of the Greater Vermont Chamber of Commerce.

So, everyday Americans are killing themselves with high protien-low carbohydrate diets which contain many wheat products. In turn, the diets are 1) hard on the system, 2) do not provide the correct elements for nutrition.3)Produce the bad alkaline condition in the blood. Many of these diets are the result of weight watching. Little do these people know that overweight is caused by 1) bad nutrition of the glands, 2) a blood condition which is not acidic and 3) a wrong carbohydrate consumption. The correct carbohydrates burn up instantly and do not turn in to excess fat.

The following are symptoms of bad nutrition and a diet that is contrary to nature's plan: low energy, depression, insomnia, itchy skin, chronic headache, sensitivity to temperature, sinus trouble, lingering colds, dizzy spells, gas and indigestion, poor blood circulation, falling hair, dandruff, blemishes, lack of skin color, and overweight.

Two important foods in VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE are honey and apple cider vinegar. They are a major contribution toward providing the correct carbohydrates, the correct nutrition and an acidic blood condition.

Why honey? Nature intended that we have a trickle of sugar passing thru the intestinal walls at all times and one teaspoonful of sugar in our blood stream at all times. The latter is ultra critical. In honey, the sugar has already been digested in the bee's stomach. Therefore, honey contains two natural sugars dextrose and levalose, which go into the blood stream immediately. Honey is free from bacteria. Experiments show that bacteria will not live in honey. Honey is a mild, natural sedative which is calming to the body. Honey is a mild, natural laxitive. Honey is nonirritating to the digestive track. Honey is, of all sugars, handled best by the kidneys. Honey is rich in vital minerals from the flowers. By an infallible instinct, the bee has a way of knowing which flowers are high in quality and which are not. Therefore, honey is a perfect food derived from only the healthiest plants. In Vermont there is a saying, "We've got to trust someone - why not let it be the bee?"

Why apple and vinegar? Apple cider vinegar carries with it all the vital life elements of the apple. Apple cider vinegar maintains the proper acid level of the blood. Apple cider vinegar can maintain your proper weight. Dr. Jarvis's book describes a method using apple cider vinegar where the person eats normally but will gradually lose weight until the body finds its proper weight level. With this method women will gradually see their dress size go from 20, to 18, to 16 and gradually stop at their natural body size. Men will see a 40 inch waist line drop to 38, then 36 finally to the proper size as the body properly burns off excess fat because it is in the proper chemical state that nature intended.

It is not enough, however, to only know the ingredients of good health. You must know how and in what combination to use honey, vinegar and other vital products of nature. Dr. Jarvis has published the results of his life long study of VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE in his book titled FOLK MEDICINE. In every day language he tells you how to use VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE. Here are some of the highlights of this book:

* How VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE can help you live a longer, fuller, healthier life.
* How to use honey and apple cider vinegar to: 1) gain renewed health and energy, 2) as part of prenatal care to produce a strong healthy baby, 3) Produce sound sleep, 4) Reduce your susceptibility to disease, 5) Reduce the chance of heart attacks, 6) Produce a relaxed comfortable state of being.
* How to use honey and apple cider vinegar to cure: 1) morning sickness, 2) sinus, 3) migrain headaches, 4) dizziness, 5) arthritus, 6) bed-wetting, 7) coughs, 8) hay fever, 9) colic in babies.
* How to use apple cider vinegar, castor oil, and corn oil to 1) produce beautiful healthy skin and bring color back 2) clear up blemishes, 3) get rid of dandruff, 4) grow healthy hair and eyelashes, 5) cure hives, 6) cure hemorroids, 7) get rid of moles, 8) relieve lameness, 9) treat poison ivy, 10) treat shingles, 11) eliminate night sweats, 12) get rid of varicose viens, 13) get rid of ring worm, 14) treat impetigo, 15) get rid of hangover.
* How to get your daily requirement of the all important minerals phosperous and potassium which: 1) form healthy bones, teeth and hair; 2) maintain proper growth control; 3) replace wornout tissue; 4) fight disease; 5) cure high blood pressure; 6) cure heart trouble, 7) cure migrane headaches.
* How you can rebuild your body after age 50 and be alert, active and productive in your eighties and beyond.
* How to lose weight and maintain your proper weight level with a special method using apple cider vinegar.
* What diet you should have according to your sex anatomy, race and native origin.

At this point I would like to insert the opinion of the writer. Today there are many exagerated claims and falsehoods. I can tell you that everything you see written here is true. VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE and Dr. Jarvis's studies do exist. A phone call or letter to any official office such as the Greater Vermont Chamber of Commerce will verify this. As a reporter, I rarely get excited about a project. But, before writing this article, I used the diets and methods described in Dr. Jarvis's book for 3 months. Few Americans have any idea what it is like to be truly healthy as nature intended. Life was meant to be very pleasant. VERMONT FOLK MEDICINE has had the following effect on me: I feel very calm and at peace with the world. I have an abundance of energy and endurance. I look better and healthier. But, most of all, I just feel good all over. In fact, at times, I feel so good that I tingle all over and feel like I'm walking on air. If people would only know what it's like to feel as nature intended, they would never take drugs. Nature's plan allows you to get high without drugs.

For those interested in obtaining a copy of Dr. Jarvis's book, FOLK MEDICINE, the following information is given: The book is being distributed by PCA - The Publishing Corporation of America. On a blank piece of paper write the words, "FOLK MEDICINE," followed by your name and address. Mail this along with $9.95 in cash, check or money order to P.C.A.; Dept. C-41; 6233 Whipple Avenue N.W.; Canton, Ohio 44720. The price includes postage and handling. Make checks payable to PCA.

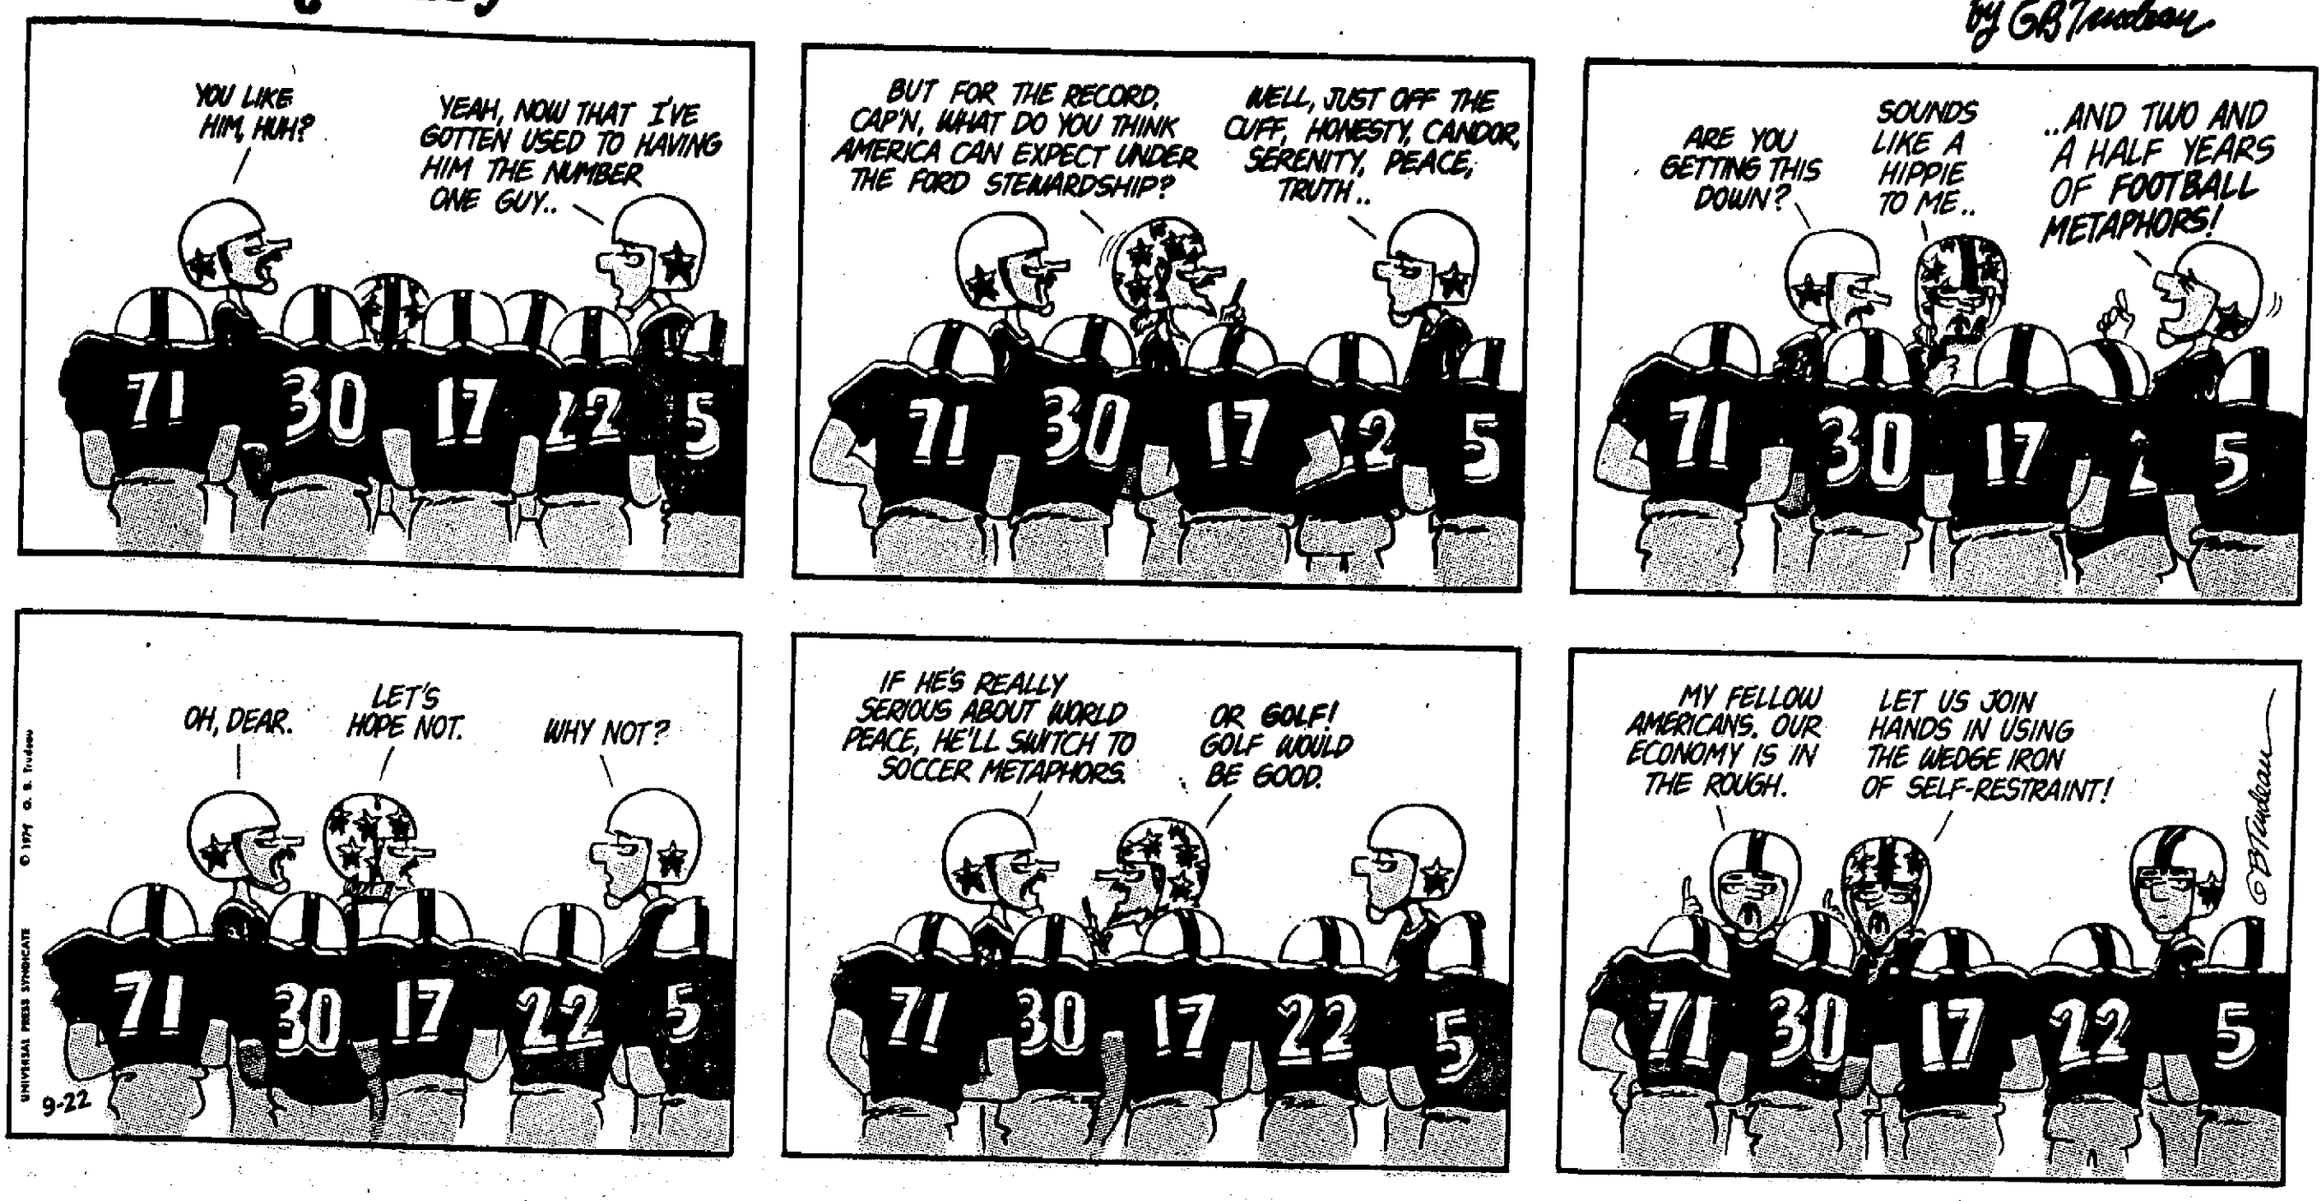

Today, if you wish, you can get this book at a large discount. P.C.A., in a survey, would like to know what age group is interested in this book. During this survey, those who include their date of birth along with their order will get a bonus discount. The cost to you, if you submit your date of birth, is only $6.95. You get a full 30% discount. To qualify, simply write your month, day and year of birth after your address.

Should you spend a couple minutes and a few dollars to acquire this valuable health knowledge? Studies show that people will think nothing about spending hundreds or thousands of dollars on homes and cars, but are reluctant to spend a few cents on themselves. As the proverb goes: "When you have your health you have everything - lose your health and nothing else really matters."

Good Earth ALMANAC

WILD RICE is one of the most delicious of wild foods, and is the very same food that gourmet food lovers pay dearly for in the supermarket. In some parts of America you can gather your own wild rice.

Wild rice is an easily recognized tall grass. It grows from 4 to 6 feet tall and has small dark seeds enclosed in husks ending in a stiff hair-like tip. Wild rice is normally found in shallow water over mucky, muddy bottoms such as river sloughs or along backwaters of lakes.

Unless you're collecting just enough handfuls for a meal, the best method of gathering wild rice is the old Indian method of paddling a canoe in among the rice.

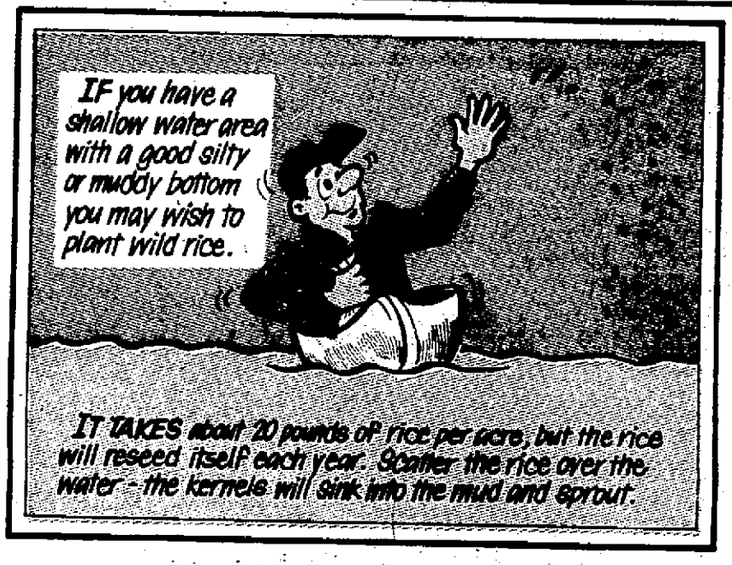

Lay an old blanket or piece of plastic in the canoe bottom; bend the rice over the canoe and beat off the seeds with the canoe paddle.

Spread the gathered rice out on a piece of clean plastic or newspapers in a warm dry spot such as an attic and allow to dry thoroughly. Rub the kernels through your hands to loosen and remove the husks. On a windy day pour the kernels back and forth between two buckets to remove husks and chaff. Store the cleaned rice in jars in a cool dry place.

Wild rice can be substituted for domestic rice, but it is especially good with wild game dishes. If you wish to remove the heavy "wild" flavor wash the rice thoroughly in cold water several times before using.

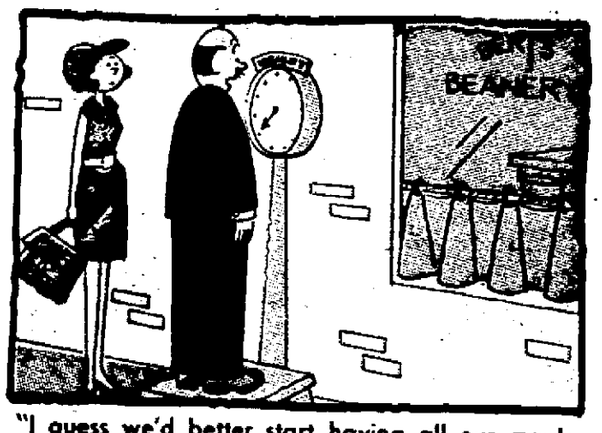

"You've been sleeping so long, I'd say it's time for you to go out in the woods and scratch around for honey and berries!"

"Stanley has a remarkable memory — he can recall things that happened 35 to 40 years ago as if they were yesterday."

"I guess we'd better start having all our meals at home so I won't be tempted to overeat."

"Certainly we can have a talk — I have an open date right after the World Series."

"That's a real bargain — let's buy your mother's Christmas present early!"
